EUROPE PASSES BUCK ON DEBTS TO UNCLE SAM

Britain Expects 'Aid' from America.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Europe's gentle art of passing the buck to America is again in evidence. The United States will be blamed if the Lausanne agreement on reparations, which reduces Germany's burden from an original sum of 65 billion dollars to a lump sum payment of $714,000,000, does not go into effect.

This fact emerged from speeches delivered in the house of commons tonight by both champions and critics of the Lausanne agreement in a debate in which the former allies' debts to America played a prominent part. It was made clear that ratification of the Lausanne agreement depends on America's attitude toward revision or even cancellation.

If America approves the allied settlement with Germany, it was announced that Great Britain's offer to wipe out the debts due her by other European nations holds good.

Ready to Cancel Debts.

"We are still ready to cancel all debts due us," Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain said. "If the United States should decide to cancel all debts due her our offer is still open.

"If America still feels she must ask us to pay more than we have received, we must consider what we are going to do. Before we know what America will propose to do in the matter it would be unreasonable for us to consent to cancel the debts of our European allies."

It was fairly evident by the chancellor's address that he believes the United States will "toe the mark."

"Now that we have shown that we can harmonize our difficulties, America will never refuse to play her part in solving the world's crisis," he continued. "We can count upon her being ready and willing when the proper moment arrives."

Clears Up Mystery.

Chamberlain's statement thus cleared up the mystery as to the exact position Britain and the rest of Europe have taken on the Lausanne agreement. Earlier Prime Minister MacDonald had outlined the Lausanne agreement, declaring:

"Those of us who have exchanged views with people whose views are worth exchanging are convinced that the agreement will not fall through."

"The gist of American public opinion is to let Europe first publish to the world what its views on reparations and war debts are," he continued. "Then the United States will consider what part it could reasonably play. I am conscious that in dealing with this matter with America we are touching tender spots, and no one has a right to blame America for taking the attitude that it has.

Expect Help from U. S.

"Although America has never given a pledge so far as I know, or indicated in any way how she is prepared to meet us, I for one believe there is no nation in the world more ready than the United States to lend a hand in straightening out the troubles with which we are surrounded.

The next step, added the prime minister, is the proposed world economic conference.

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon was in the gallery and listened to the premier closely, his chin cupped in his hand.

His insistence that the British public be fully informed of what took place at Lausanne resulted in the government's denial that the agreement was based on any secret Anglo-American understanding that the United States would cut or cancel debts.

Lloyd George in Attack.

"I want to know whether what has been called a 'gentlemen's agreement' is a clear cut link between the reparations settlement and adjustment of the American debt," he cried. "Will the Lausanne document be considered null and void if the United States refuses to revise debts due her?"

"This document," he shouted, shaking aloft a copy of the text of the Lausanne agreement, "is not a real agreement. The most important act that happened at this conference is not in the document. We are not playing the game."

POPE PIUS TELLS U. S. PILGRIMS GOD SOON WILL HELP THE WORLD

VATICAN CITY, July 12.—(AP)—Pope Pius is confident that God soon will come to the aid of the people of the world in the present spiritual and material crisis, he told 200 American pilgrims today.

The pilgrims were led by three high churchmen—Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland, Bishop Michael James Gallagher of Detroit, and Bishop Karl J. Alter of Toledo.

"The time is ripe for intervention by God," the pope said. "History tells us again and again that when men reached the lowest ebb and began to curse and deny God, then was the moment when God manifested himself, reinfused confidence into men, and started the return to better things. Even in Russia, where men blaspheme God, this will be the case."

Worried Over Taxes, Broker Leaps to Death

Mark Smith, 40 years old, who was until Monday a clearing house member of the Board of Trade, leaped to his death from a fourteenth floor window of the Insurance Exchange building at 175 West Jackson boulevard yesterday morning.

His body crashed through a skylight over the inner court and struck the floor in front of the cigar store in the lobby.

Mr. Smith had been ill and had announced his intention to retire from business. His sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Blakeslee of 846 Hinman avenue, Evanston, attributed his illness in part to worry over the imposition of a new federal tax of 5 cents on every $100 transaction handled by a grain broker, which on top of other taxes already in effect added to the difficulties of the grain business. Last Monday open grain trades totaled 15,058,000 bushels, while one year ago the total was 54,378,000 bushels.

Despondent Over Taxes.

"The new tax had made him despondent," Mrs. Blakeslee said. "He had talked of quitting business because of this tax. It made him nervous and upset. He had not talked of taking his life, however."

It was learned by investigators that Mr. Smith withdrew from the Board of Trade clearing house on Monday and arranged to transfer all open accounts to another concern, Daniel F. Rice and company. He also subleased his office at 332 South La Salle street, retaining only desk room.

He left his office shortly before 11 a. m. and for the last time entered the huge room in which the grain pits of the Board of Trade are situated. He greeted several acquaintances who were on the floor and left the building.

Sees Broker's Death Leap.

A few minutes later Miss Rose Zender, 7225 South Aberdeen street, looking across the court from the offices of the Railway Underwriters, saw him stop in front of a window and leap out.

Mr. Smith is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elsie B. Smith, who lives in their home at 854 Hinman avenue, Evanston.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow from the home.

PAINT BRUSH HITS HORNETS' NEST; MAN FALLS OFF A ROOF

Milwaukee, Wis., July 12.—[Special.]—While painting the roof of a house at 2252 Woodward avenue today, George P. Miller, 44, 807 East Linus street, struck a hornets' nest with his brush. The swarm of hornets caused Miller to roll off the roof, fall ten feet to another roof, and then roll off it to the ground twenty feet below. He escaped the hornets, but was taken to Johnston Emergency hospital suffering from a fractured right heel, cuts, bruises, and a sprained back.

COUNCIL CUTS PAY ROLLS 10% IN PARK RIDGE

The city council of Park Ridge voted to cut salaries of officials and employés an average of 10 per cent last night in approving the 1932 appropriation ordinance which calls for maximum expenditures of $220,473, approximately $10,000 under that of 1931.

A number of officials whose salaries cannot legally be cut volunteered to return 10 per cent to the treasury. Among the volunteers were Mayor William A. McKee, aldermen and department heads.

Exceptions in salary decrease were made in the cases of the city physician, city nurse, city clerk, city treasurer, and city collector whose pay is nominal. Firemen and policemen were cut only 5 per cent.

WARN SCHOOLS: $15,000,000 CUT OR NO BANK LOAN

Bankers Tell Board to Reduce Levy.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Fred W. Sargent, head of the Citizens' Committee on Public Expenditures, told the school board last night that it must reduce its expenditures, and its 1932 tax levies, by at least $15,000,000, if it hopes to reëstablish its credit. The trustees agreed to try to make such a cut, after the First National, the Continental Illinois and the Harris Trust and Savings banks had backed up the demand of Mr. Sargent.

The task of trimming will start Thursday morning in the office of Ernest R. Graham, architect, who is a member of the Sargent committee. Graham told the trustees that the committee is prepared to show the trustees where millions can be saved.

Puts Conditions Up to Board.

"We believe that you can and indeed should reduce your expenditures by at least $15,000,000," Mr. Sargent told the board. "I am obliged to say that in my opinion it will not be possible for the school board to finance its operations unless it does comply with the request of the committee for such a reduction.

"We are in no ordinary times. Seemingly impossible things must be done if government is to function. In this unprecedented economic degeneration through which we are passing expenditures and tax levies should be limited to things necessary for the operation of governments.

Cuts Essential to Loans.

"I am not prepared at this moment to say, even if you reduce your appropriations and tax levies in the amount stated, that it would be possible to secure sufficient revenues through the sale of tax anticipation warrants or otherwise to enable you to function the remainder of the current year. I am prepared to say, however, that unless you make these reductions, the difficulties in the way of financing appear to be quite insurmountable."

Mr. Sargent asked for wholehearted coöperation, and continued: "Until evidence of this spirit is manifested financing will be exceedingly difficult, if not indeed impossible." He also told the trustees that the legal uncertainties regarding the board's securities, now pending in the state supreme court, must be settled.

Pledges Committee's Help.

"If this litigation is decided favorably," said Mr. Sargent, "and if the board will recognize the great emergency to the extent of reducing its appropriations by at least $15,000,000, than your committee will use its best efforts to secure sufficient cash to enable the schools to function throughout the remainder of the year. It will also use its best efforts to find ways and means to pay back salaries.

"The indispensable thing now is to reduce expenditures so that the overburdened taxpayer may know that he will receive at least that much relief from the school board during the current year and on his 1932 tax payments."

Banker Backs Committee.

Edward Eagle Brown, executive vice president of the First National bank, said that the responsibility for operating the schools in the present crisis rests upon the school board. He then backed up the Sargent demand with the following statement:

"We are responsible for other people's money deposited with us, and we will be largely influenced by the recommendations of the citizens' committee. Frankly I believe that expenditures should be cut as much as the emergency demands."

John Dennison of the Continental Illinois bank said that every government must live within its income.

"The budget must be balanced," said George Packard of the Harris bank.

Savage Presents Alternative.

Trustee Joseph P. Savage argued that it would be better for the board to retain its tax levies, although cutting its expenses, so that with a high levy, the board would get enough money, even when thousands do not pay their taxes.

"We believe that you will get more tax money under reduced levies," re

Police Arrest Pair on North Shore Estate

An extortion plot which police believe had for its purpose collection of a defense fund for two ex-convicts who served time in the Joliet penitentiary with Jack Durand, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Bluff, was stopped yesterday when Chicago detectives arrested two of the gang at Mrs. Durand's Crab Tree farm.

The prisoners are Peter Cunniff, 52 years old, 518 South Central Park avenue, and Joseph Verdico, 1522 Wisconsin avenue, Berwyn, former special policeman in Berwyn. Durand's wife, Genevieve, identified them as the pair who a few days ago threatened to kidnap her 2 year old daughter, Patricia, unless Durand or his foster-parents paid a $50,000 ransom.

Husband Fails to Identify Pair.

Young Durand did not identify the prisoners. Neither did he inform police of the extortion plot. Chief of Detectives Walter Storms said last night, although he had been negotiating with the gang for a month.

Instead, Chief Storms said, Durand went to Frank Dzan and Fred Lorimer, alias Laumer. He met these men when he was serving a term in Joliet several years ago for the robbery of the Lake Forest home of the late F. Edson White. Dzan is in the county jail and Lorimer is held in the Bridewell hospital. Both were captured in March in the act of robbing a north side gambling house.

Parties to the Plot.

The detective chief advanced the theory that while this pair ostensibly interceded with the kidnapers on behalf of Durand, they were really parties to the plot and were to use whatever funds were obtained. His suspicions in this direction were strengthened by the fact that Cunniff and Verdico were using Lorimer's automobile when they were arrested.

Chief Storms learned a month ago that the gang planned to kidnap young Durand. He assigned Detectives William Hennessy, James Burns and Timothy Donovan to the case. They and Police Chief Eugene E. Spaid of Lake Bluff made the arrests yesterday.

It was the original plan of the police to allow the gang to kidnap Durand and then to capture the whole crew. This plan had to be dropped when the gang decided to abduct little Patricia.

Gets Letter from Dzan.

After receiving the original threat the detectives learned Durand went to the county jail to interview Dzan. He also talked to Lorimer. Dzan was tried and acquitted a year ago of robbing a bank at Mundelein, near Lake Bluff, and was also suspected in the jewel robbery last winter at the Lake Forest home of William H. Mitchell. He told Durand that he would give him a letter to show the kidnaping gang.

That letter, which Durand surrendered yesterday to police, follows:

"Hello, Mushmouth: Just a few lines in regard to a few fellows. If any one comes out to see you just show them this letter. They are gonna ask you for money. There's nothing to worry about. Just tell them you sent the money to me.

Just Another Drink.

"You don't have to worry about this letter, as I am not sending it through the office. Just a minute till I take another drink. Boy, it's sure good.

"In regard to case (Dzan is accused, with Lorimer, of a bank robbery in Berwyn), there's nothing to it. I have

SENATE DROPS VETOED SECTION; ADDS ANOTHER

Chance for Chicago to Get Help.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The senate's half of the last big job to be done before congress adjourns was accomplished tonight when half a hundred tired and hungry senators shouted out the "ayes" that passed the compromise federal relief bill carrying 1 billion 300 millions of new credit for the Reconstruction Finance corporation and an appropriation of 322 millions for public works.

The mammoth measure which the senate passed without the formality of a roll call was in most of its features such a bill as President Hoover demanded when he vetoed the first Wagner-Garner relief bill.

It will be brought up for action in the house of representatives tomorrow and tomorrow night should see it passed by the house.

An Important Difference.

In only one important respect does the bill approved by the senate tonight differ from that requested by the President and from the house relief bill reported out by the house ways and means committee earlier in the day.

The difference lies in a section prepared by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] to permit federal reserve banks for a two year period by vote of the federal reserve board and in "unusual and exigent circumstances" to make loans to any individual or corporation unable to secure credit from other banking institutions.

That provision neither has the approval of Mr. Hoover nor has it the approval of the house, which in a mood far different from the one in which it recently defied the President in the matter of loans to private individuals showed every determination today to stay within the strict limits of the White House relief prescription.

Hits at Dawes Bank Loan.

One other amendment likely to be offensive to the administration was written into the bill by the senators and that was a proviso forbidding the Reconstruction Finance corporation to loan money "to any financial institution any officer or director of which is or has been a member of the board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation during 12 months preceding the approval of such loan."

Evidently and admittedly the prohibition was aimed at preventing a repetition of the 80 million dollar loan which went to Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank and Trust company only a few days after his resignation as president of the Finance corporation.

This amendment was urged by Senator Couzens [Rep., Mich.], who said he doubted whether such a large loan to one bank was advisable.

"I am not raising any question," said Couzens, "of impropriety of the loans by the corporation. I have one exception—the loan of $80,000,000 to the Chicago bank. I don't know whether the security was adequate. I'm afraid it was not sound public policy to loan so much money to one bank."

Oppose Eight Directors.

The senate also only half agreed to the President's request concerning a change in the membership of the corporation's board of directors. It agreed to eliminate the governor of the federal reserve board and the farm loan commissioner as ex-officio members.

But the number of directors was kept at seven—the secretary of the treasury and six appointed members, four Republicans and three Democrats, instead of increasing the board to eight, as the President urged.

Otherwise the bill was that decided by the President in the message with which he yesterday accompanied his veto of the earlier relief bill with its provision, insisted on by Speaker John N. Garner, for loans to any one with security to offer.

Chicago May Get Loan.

The new bill authorizes the loan by the Reconstruction Finance corporation of 300 millions to the states and to municipalities within the states, upon affidavit of the various governors. Need, instead of population, as in the first Wagner bill is to be the criterion on which the money is distributed. One state can receive as much as 45 millions.

That means in terms of Illinois and Chicago, that upon Gov. Emmerson's application Illinois might be able to borrow as much as 45 millions. Part of that could go to Chicago "to be used in furnishing relief and work needy and distressed people and in relieving the hardship resulting from unemployment."

But as interpreted at the capitol that does not mean money to pay the bank salaries of Chicago's unpaid city employes.

Loans so made may be repaid in any way agreed upon between the state and the corporation, or they may be paid back by deductions over five years from the state's annual federal aid highway allotment.

The chief provision of the bill and the one over which all the controversy has been about is the section authorizing the corporation to make loans (1) to states or their political subdivisions to aid in financing self-liquidating projects; (2) to limited profit housing or slum clearance associations; (3) to private corporations for the construction or repair of bridges, tunnels, docks, and other self-liquidating projects devoted to public use; (4) to private limited dividend corporations for self-liquidating reforestation and natural resource development projects; (5) for the purpose of financing the construction of bridges partly paid for taxation.

Loans also are authorized for aiding the export of farm commodity surpluses and for the marketing of staple commodities. The corporation is directed to set up a regional agricultural credit corporation with paid up capital of not less than three millions in any one of the twelve land bank districts.

Loans Must Be Public.

One important amendment was made to this loan section and that was that all loans made under this portion of the new act were to be of public record and not secret as under the present Reconstruction Finance corporation act.

To enable the corporation to meet the new demands imposed upon it the new bill increases its power to issue debentures by one billion 800 million dollars. With the half billion dollars originally furnished by the treasury and the one and a half billions of debentures originally authorized, the corporation thus becomes a three billion 800 million dollar institution with the United States government furnishing or at least guaranteeing the money.

Money for Public Works.

The third and last section of the bill provides an appropriation of $322,224,000 for federal public works, 120 millions for roads, 16 millions for forest and national park roads and trails, 30 millions for rivers and harbors, 15½ millions for flood control, 10 millions for Boulder dam, half a million for air navigation facilities, 3 million 810 thousand for lighthouses and other aids to navigation, one and a quarter million for coast and geodetic survey engineering work, 10 millions for the navy's bureau of yards and docks, 100 millions for public buildings, 15 millions 164 thousand for buildings at army posts.

It was that last appropriation to carry out the army housing program that provoked the bitterest fight of them all during the four hours that the bill was under senate debate.

For Senator William H. King [Dem., Utah] did not approve of it. There were too many army posts now, most of them useless, he declared. And why entrench the general staff still more securely in a wasteful policy?

Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] seconded him with another argument. He opposed housing for officers, and canned goods, and airplanes, and recreation halls and gymnasiums for soldiers when the government refused to give shelter or food to thousands of homeless and hungry human beings.

Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] chairman of the military affairs committee, feared an adverse vote and tried to adjourn. It was past dinner time then but the senators refused to quit their job. At last they took a vote and the army post appropriation stayed in the bill, 22 to 30.

There were other amendments. Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] got one in amending the original Reconstruction Finance corporation act to permit loans to closed savings banks.

Fail to Limit Certain Loans.

Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.] did his best to knock out the loans to finance agricultural exports, but went down to defeat. He tried again to prohibit loans to corporations paying any officer more than $25,000 a year but again was beaten.

Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] tried to strike out the billion and a half dollars loan section. Projects that were actually self-liquidating, he said, would have been started anyway and this was just another way of ringing the government in on a lot of nonproductive enterprises.

Under the push and prod of Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], chief author of the relief bill, and Democratic Leader Robinson the senate had the bit in its teeth.

And when at last President Pro Tem Moses put the final question there was a rollicking shout of "aye" and the senators darted for the swinging senate doors with adjournment at last within sight.

Home Loan Bill, Proposed by Hoover, Is Passed in Senate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The home loan bank bill, carrying as a rider the Glass currency inflation bill, was passed by the senate today without the formality of a record vote.

Having already been passed by the house in a somewhat different form, the measure will go to a committee of conference. It is the last of the list of emergency relief bills proposed by the President at the beginning of the session.

Under the senate bill four home loan banks would be set up to rediscount home financing paper secured by real estate mortgages. Each bank would be capitalized at not less than $15,000,000, the capital to be subscribed by member home financing associations, but with the government standing behind the system to furnish capital up to a total of 125 million dollars in case the necessary capital is not subscribed.

Calls for Commission.

Under the house bill between 8 and 12 banks with a minimum capital of $5,000,000 would have been set up. The system under both bills would be administered by a home loan board of three members.

More important than the bill itself, perhaps, is the amendment originally drawn up by Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] as a substitute for the Goldsborough inflation bill passed by the senate. The Glass substitute was offered as a rider to the home loan bank bill by Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho] and was approved by the senate yesterday.

The Glass bill provides for a maximum inflation of the currency of some 995 million dollars by granting the circulation privilege for three years to all government long term bonds bearing up to 3½ per cent interest.

Having already gone on record in favor of a much more radical inflationary measure in the Goldsborough bill, the house is not expected to balk at the Glass amendment.

Loans on Homes.

By the terms of the bill building and loan associations, banks, insurance companies and similar institutions handling home loan paper would be eligible for membership in the home loan bank system and to rediscount their paper.

Loans would be made on residence real estate the value of which does not exceed $20,000. On mortgages carrying amortization provisions and with not more than eight years to maturity, an advance of not more than 60 per cent of the unpaid principal would be granted, but in no case more than 40 per cent of the property's value. In the case of mortgages not of the amortized type the respective percentages would be 50 and 30.

ALDERMEN HOLD UP RELIEF ACTION TO AWAIT U. S. AID

Sexton Is Hopeful of Federal Help.

Acting on Corporation Counsel Sexton's suggestion, the city council committee on unemployment yesterday tabled two resolutions on job relief—deciding to wait for federal help from Washington, which Mr. Sexton said he was "perfectly satisfied" would be forthcoming.

Acting on the advice of Gov. Emmerson and Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet, president pro tempore of the state senate, Mr. Sexton may go to Washington today or tomorrow, he told the committee, to help Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, in pushing Chicago's claims for federal charity aid.

Sexton Is Optimistic.

With others appearing before the committee, the corporation counsel expressed optimism over Chicago's share in the distribution of the $300,000,000 relief program pending in congress. The relief commission reports it will be out of funds by Aug. 1 and estimates that at least twenty-five or thirty million dollars will be needed to care for the poor during the next year.

One of the resolutions tabled was presented by Ald. James B. Waller [43d]. It would memorialize congress to separate the relief bill from all other legislation. It was aimed to take the measure out of politics. The other resolution, introduced by Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], would call upon the governor to convene the legislature in special session to act upon bills allowing counties to use their share of the gasoline tax for relief work.

Wilfred S. Reynolds of the relief commission, Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities; James Nicholson of the Red Cross, Joseph L. Moss of the county bureau of public welfare, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William A. Cummings of the Catholic charities all seconded Mr. Sexton's suggestions to table the resolutions.

Criticized by Aldermen.

Mr. Reynolds was criticized by several aldermen who have had complaints in their wards that relief is not administered fairly. Asked what percentage of the $18,500,000 fund authorized by the last special session of the assembly is expended on overhead, Mr. Reynolds replied: "Nine per cent." He said this was a low percentage.

"We realize that in caring for 650,000 persons complaints are bound to arise," he said.

The commission's work will be examined today when the legislative commission on expenditures meets again to study complaints regarding the operation of the agency. The committee, headed by Senator Martin R. Carlson [Rep., Moline], will meet in State Auditor Nelson's office, 33 North La Salle street, at 10 a. m.

The committee showed interest in the announcement of Ald. John A. Massen [49th] that he would discuss his plans for three super-highway projects this morning before the council's road committee.

SENATE REJECTS PLEA OF PRESIDENT FOR ONE MORE R. F. C. MEMBER

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The senate's refusal today to include in the new relief bill the President's recommendation that the membership of the board of the Reconstruction Finance corporation be increased from seven to eight added a complication to rumors that Mr. Hoover intended to offer the presidency of the corporation to Owen D. Young.

The senate acceded to the President's request that the governor of the federal reserve board and the farm loan commissioner be eliminated as ex-officio members of the board and that these places be made appointive. But because of Democratic objection it refused to make the board a strictly bipartisan affair of four Republicans and four Democrats.

By so doing it cut out a possible place for Mr. Young, a Democrat, since the three Democratic places on the board are already filled. Unless the limitation in the bill is changed by the house or Mr. Hoover should be willing to create a Democratic majority the places left vacant by the elimination of Gov. Meyer of the federal reserve board and farm loan commissioner, Bestor, must be filled by Republicans.

The board of directors of the corporation has been officially minus a president since the resignation of Gen. Charles G. Dawes a month ago.

CITY'S VOUCHER PAYMENTS FOR MAY SHOW DROP

City Controller Szymczak yesterday gave City Clerk Brady the list of payments made by voucher by the city for the month of May. They totaled $19,724, as compared to $33,347 for May, 1931.

Among the larger payments were $3,175 to the Bemis company, appraisal engineers, for services in connection with the city's gas rate case before the Illinois commerce commission; $1,000 to Dr. Miller McClintock of Harvard university, who is making a traffic survey; $2,450 to Samuel J. Elson for audits of accounts; $3,750 to Chapman & Cutler, bond attorneys, for opinions on city securities; and $1,395 to the Institute of Public Administration in New York for the police survey made by Bruce Smith.

Many of the services for which the May vouchers were issued were rendered in 1931, Mr. Szymczak said.

DEMAND HOOVER TELL U. S. PART IN DEBT TREATY

Johnson Leading Senate Fight for "Truth."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Aroused by reports that American representatives had secretly professed this country's willingness to consider debt revision, anti-cancellationist senators today pressed vigorously for passage of the McKellar resolution calling on the President for a full explanation of the United States' part, if any, in the Lausanne reparations negotiations.

Senators Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] and Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], the resolution's author, loudly denounced the President's policy with regard to the European war debts. His record and his utterances, they asserted, completely belied recent protestations by Secretary of State Stimson, who declared that the United States would oppose revision.

Act On Resolution Today.

They refused to accept from Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, a recital of a conversation which Senator Borah had with Secretary Stimson this morning, in which the secretary denied that any American representatives had held any conversations concerning debts or reparations.

Denied immediate consideration of his resolution because of an objection made by Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] Senator McKellar finally consented that the resolution be referred to the committee on foreign relations. Senator Borah promised that it would receive consideration at tomorrow's committee meeting.

Senator Johnson opened the discussion with characteristic vehemence. He was indignant over the London dispatch, carried in the morning papers, in which the British chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain, stated that the Lausanne agreement had been reached on the basis of conversations with representatives of the United States.

Johnson Demands Facts.

"My views may be nationalistic, or chauvinistic, if you please," cried Senator Johnson, "and I suppose I must accept what the secretary of state says, but I can't forego a bit of comment when this spokesman of the British government says something wholly at variance with what the secretary of state has said.

"It is incredible, of course, that representatives of the United States should hold conversations that have been hidden from the American people."

The representatives referred to were Ambassador Hugh Gibson and Norman Davis, who are American delegates to the Geneva disarmament conference, and have been reported as in communication with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and others.

He had predicted, said the California senator—President Hoover's long time foe—that the Hoover moratorium would prove but the beginning of a trail that would lead to cancellation.

"We can't complain," said Senator Johnson, "if the foreign nations took the moratorium as an invitation. I said then and I say now we were touching fire that was bound to consume us so far as the burden on our taxpayers and our chances of collecting the debts is concerned."

Tells of Talk with Secretary.

Referring to the report of Chancellor Chamberlain's statement, Senator Borah said:

"After reading this in the morning paper I had a conversation with the secretary of state, who said I was at liberty to state publicly the substance of that conversation.

"I desire to say, therefore, that the secretary stated to me explicitly that there had never been any conversation on the part of this government with the representatives of foreign governments touching the settlement at Lausanne; that we were not consulted and in no way advised with reference to what is called the 'gentlemen's agreement'; that the position of the government had been, throughout the negotiations between the governments in Europe, that our government regarded the debts and the question of reparations as separate propositions; that we neither by communication nor through representatives who are now in Europe representing this government at other conferences had anything whatever to say or do with reference to the reparations settlement, and in no wise is this government bound by any supposed gentlemen's agreement, either expressly or impliedly."

Europe Obscures Debt Agreement

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—Conflicting statements issued by the chancelleries of Europe indicate that Europe again is playing her game of war debts with the United States behind a smoke screen.

The Lausanne agreement on reparations, initialed last Friday by Germany and the former allies, scaled down Germany's payments from 65 billion dollars to 714 million dollars.

It transpired, however, that the agreement was hobbled with a "joker." This "joker," which THE TRIBUNE correspondent managed to obtain for exclusive publication last Sunday, was a so-called "gentlemen's agreement" among Germany's creditors—America's war debtors—that the reparations treaty should not be ratified until and unless America responded by revising or even canceling debts due her. The "gentlemen's agreement" was a secret officially.

What Governments Said.

Following the publication of the secret paper, statements by the European governments represented at the Lausanne conference combined to create a diplomatic fog. Here is what they said:

PREMIER HERRIOT OF FRANCE: "If the United States finds the Lausanne agreement good, and if a satisfactory arrangement concerning debts can be reached, the Lausanne agreement on reparations will be ratified and will come into effect. If that is not the case, everything is reserved."

CHANCELLOR VON PAPEN OF GERMANY: "Germany has nothing whatever to do with any 'gentlemen's agreement' between England, France or other powers. We have consistently refused to be drawn into any combination whatsoever against the United States."

PRIME MINISTER MacDONALD OF GREAT BRITAIN: "I believe there is no nation more ready [than the United States] to lend a hand in straightening out the troubles with which we are surrounded. I say that, although America never has given a pledge, so far as I know, or indicated in any way how she is prepared to meet us."

Expect Aid from U. S.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, BRITISH CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER: "We are still ready to cancel all debts due us. If America cancels debts due her our offer is still open. If America accepts our settlement with Germany our offer to cancel all debts still holds good. If America feels she still must ask us to pay more than we receive, we must consider what to do. But now that we have shown that we can harmonize our difficulties, America will not refuse to play her part in the world settlement. We can count on her being ready and willing when the proper moment arrives."

SECRETARY OF STATE STIMSON: "No European power has made any proposal for a revision of debts owed to the United States. Furthermore, no representative of the state department had anything to do with the framing of the so-called 'gentlemen's agreement.'"

BAT'A, CZECH SHOE KING, KILLED IN CRASH OF PLANE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, July 12.—Thomas Bat'a, who has made more shoes than any one else in Europe, was killed today when his private plane crashed at Zlin, Moravia. His pilot also lost his life. The "shoe king" was 56 years old.

Bat'a was known as Czecho-Slovakia's Henry Ford because of his introduction of large scale production methods in Europe. Bat'a learned in America how to do business on a big scale by working in various shoe factories.

Bat'a's 2,600 factories and stores extended into practically every part of the world. There are twenty-three stores in Chicago. He owned the entire stock of the company and its subsidiaries and was mayor of Zlin, where the main plant was located.

GARNER RELENTS; CALL OFF INQUIRY OF U. S. FINANCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The threatened congressional investigation into the treasury and federal reserve system collapsed today when Speaker John N. Garner [Dem., Tex.] withdrew his support from the plan.

The house rules committee postponed until next December consideration of resolutions calling for an inquiry after the speaker made it plain he was not desirous of pressing it lest it further increase public anxiety in the midst of the depression.

The committee's action came as no surprise to the house. The demand for an immediate investigation arose suddenly out of a gale of political oratory in the house last week, in the midst of which Speaker Garner snatched up a challenge from the Republican side to substantiate charges that the treasury and federal reserve system were ridden with corruption.

A decided cooling off has taken place on both sides and it was apparent neither wanted to press the matter further. Arthur A. Ballantine, acting secretary of the treasury, and Eugene Meyer, governor of the reserve board, told the committee an inquiry now might be extremely detrimental "to a renewal of public confidence."

The matter was not permitted to pass without a vigorous objection by Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.] from the floor. He charged an inquiry would disclose that the Republican party had been financed out of money refunded by the treasury to big taxpayers.

terjected a demand that the government publish the "gentlemen's agreement."

"You know," he said, "it has never been published officially."

[The so-called "gentlemen's agreement" was published exclusively in The Chicago Tribune last Sunday.]

Prime Minister MacDonald arose and announced that the government had no objection to the publication of all the Lausanne documents, including the "gentlemen's agreement." Later Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, announced that telegrams had been sent to all the other powers represented at Lausanne asking them if they had any objection to the publication of supplementary agreements.

Insists There's No Mystery.

Then Chamberlain spoke.

"There is no mystery about the 'gentlemen's agreement,'" he said. "It would have been better for America to have been represented at the conference, for then the Lausanne agreement could have been made finally and unconditionally. As it was, there were conditions and those were dependent on what the United States will do. Nevertheless, I believe that those conditions are satisfactory and that the Lausanne agreement will stand permanently."

Prime Minister MacDonald in his speech today hit back hard at the criticism of Mr. Churchill yesterday, when the former chancellor said that Europe had endangered her case with America by signing the "gentlemen's agreement."

"I don't believe any more unfortunate approach to debt cancellation could have been made than the procedure at Lausanne," Churchill said last night. "It would have been better to extend the moratorium and leave the final settlement of debts and reparations to the proposed world conference at London.

Questions End of Reparations.

"Germany within fifteen years of the war has been freed of its burden. She has not paid as much in reparations as the United States and Great Britain have given her in loans. I question whether reparations have been ended for all time."

He concluded his attack by saying: "The impression is that Europe is to be saved once more—at British expense, but Europe has only been saved subject to ratification."

LIBBY HOLMAN QUITS TRAGEDY SCENE FOR HOME

Reynolds' Death Inquiry Not to Be Dropped.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Libby Holman, musical comedy blues singer, who was released from arrest last night as a material witness in the fatal shooting of her wealthy young husband, Smith Reynolds, last Wednesday morning, suddenly quit the Reynolds estate here today. She departed by train for Cincinnati.

Coincidentally with the departure of the former actress Sheriff Transou Scott issued a statement saying that his investigation is not closed. The sheriff admitted that he intends to summon handwriting experts to examine a curious entry in the Reynolds family Bible, written a few days before the 20 year old Smith Reynolds was found with a bullet wound in the temple.

"Born November 5, 1911, died shortly thereafter of old age."

Considered Suicide Hint.

At the coroner's inquest the widow had told of her husband being afflicted with moods in which he frequently threatened to commit suicide. Both she and Albert Walker, Reynolds' intimate friend, asserted that the Bible entry was made by him.

"I saw him write that thing in the Bible," the widow said. "I said, 'O, my God, it isn't even funny to do a thing like that in such a sacred place.'"

The sheriff's statement was as follows:

"So far as I and my office are concerned, the investigation is not closed. No case is closed as long as it remains unsolved mystery. But I am not in a position to give any statement in what particular way the investigation will be conducted."

The sheriff declined to make any comment on last night's decision by the cororer's jury, which, after hearing testimony for three days, refused to fix any responsibility for the shooting, saying that it was done "by a party or parties unknown."

Not Yet Grand Jury Case.

Solicitor Carlisle W. Higgins, who questioned Walker closely yesterday about the finding of a sweater and a pair of shoes belonging to Mrs. Reynolds in the room occupied by Walker at the Reynolds mansion during a Fourth of July week-end celebration, said today that he knew of no reason why he should bring the case before the grand jury.

"The coroner's jury," he said, "composed of honorable men, have heard all the testimony and considered it carefully. They are not satisfied and according to their verdict they do not know how Smith Reynolds met his death.

"At this time we have no additional information. We presented to the coroner's jury all the evidence we had and unless something additional is discovered I know of no reason why the solicitor's office will make any further move in this case. However, the grand jurors, acting on their own initiative, have the right to make an investigation and submit a presentment if in their judgment such action seems proper. Under the North Carolina law the solicitor has no right to appear before the grand jury in any case. If the grand jury should call for the records I should consider it my duty to present them. Thus far they have not done so."

The special term of the present grand jury met today and will hold sittings also tomorrow and perhaps Thursday.

Miss Yurka and Others Go.

Except for the usual guards and the employés in the servants' quarters, Reynolda, the family estate, with its private lake and private golf course, its woods and its imposing mansion, was deserted tonight. Miss Blanche Yurka, the dramatic actress, a house guest who was at the barbecue dinner that immediately preceded the fatal shooting, left for New York at 4:50 p. m. C. Raymond Cramer of New York, who came here June 27 to tutor young Reynolds in higher mathematics so that Reynolds could familiarize himself more thoroughly with his pet hobby aviation, left on the same train.

Unborn Child an Heir.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Libby Holman's unborn child is a legitimate heir to the $15,000,000 left in trust for the slain Smith Reynolds, leaders of the New York bar agreed today. They added that the burden of proof would be upon any one who questioned the child's paternity and its right for that reason to inherit. It is declared that the child must be born alive.

The possibility that a $1,000,000 settlement which Reynolds gave his first child when her mother obtained a divorce might eliminate the child's chance to inherit is admitted by lawyers. A court decision might be necessary before the legal questions involved could be settled definitely.

The only question possible about Libby's child is its paternity—a question arising from the singer's astonishingly frank admissions of her husband's physical condition.

"These cases are common and probably in this one as in the Stillman case, the question of paternity will be brought up," former Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah Mahoney said. He referred to James A. Stillman's attempt to bar Baby Guy from a share in the National City bank millions, left in trust to his descendants by the elder James Stillman. The proof mustered by Stillman did not convince a jury, and Guy, now a school boy, will inherit.

Hit and Run Driver

Mrs. Sarah Greenberg, 44 years old, 1946 Wilmot street, the widowed mother of nine children, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries incurred Sunday when she was struck by a hit and run motorist at Potomac and Western avenues. Her husband was killed some time ago by an automobile.

Two of Mrs. Greenberg's daughters were struck by the car which injured her fatally. Marion, 13 years old, is still in the hospital, but Selma, 9 years old, has recovered.

The death of Mrs. Greenberg and three others yesterday raised the 1932 Cook county motor toll to 586. The other victims:

John Meroczek, 24 years old, 2646 Hillock avenue. Crushed to death when he was run over by a truck while shoveling sand at 2600 Eleanor street. The driver, Gale White, 2506 Forrestville avenue, River Forest, was not held.

Mrs. Dorothy Dale, 32 years old, of Barrington. Died in Grant hospital of injuries suffered on Monday when she was struck by a truck driven by Lawrence Yeoman on the Northwest highway near Barrington.

Eugene Roberts, 12 years old, 4941 Lake Park avenue. Died at the Illinois Central hospital from injuries incurred on June 19 when he was struck in front of his home. Luther Woods, 4531 Lake Park avenue, was the driver.

Mrs. Daisy Hoshaw of Rensselaer, Ind., was killed near Crown Point yesterday when a truck she was driving skidded into a ditch and overturned.

27 WITNESSES ACCUSE BINGA IN THEFT CASE

Jesse Binga, 67 years old Negro financier, who came to Chicago as a bootblack in 1891 and became a millionaire and head of the Binga State bank, now closed, heard twenty-seven witnesses testify against him yesterday in his trial before Judge John Prystalski on a charge of embezzling $39,000.

Among the witnesses was State Representative William J. Warfield, Negro, who said he subscribed for $1,250 of stock in a national bank which Binga claimed to be organizing in 1929. The state charges Binga kept the money given him to buy the bank stock.

"Mr. Binga is going to take the witness stand and prove to the jury that he is not guilty of this charge," Attorney John Cashen, Binga's defender, said in his opening statement. "We will show how he worked his way up from a humble beginning and was one of the leaders of his people, and church people will testify to his honesty."

DENOUNCE FALSE REPORTS THAT MAYOR IS WORSE

Fake reports that Mayor Cermak's condition had taken a serious turn for the worse aroused members of his family and his administration to expressions of indignation yesterday. One rumor was such a report had been broadcast from a local radio station, but there was no verification for that statement.

"It is impossible to believe that any one would circulate such a report knowing it to be untrue," said Henry Sonnenschein, the mayor's secretary, at St. Anthony's hospital. "The report spread so rapidly that the flood of telephone calls blocked the hospital switchboard."

Bingham Asks for Repeal Vote.

If the senator from Arizona was bluffing he immediately regretted it, for Senator Bingham's reply was immediate. He did not have to introduce a repeal resolution; he had one on the table, waiting; just let him have unanimous consent and he would call it up right now.

If the senator from Arizona really wanted to submit to the test he was to be disappointed; for Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic leader, rose in protesting dismay. He called the attention of Senator James E. Watson [Ind.], Republican leader, to the fact that consideration of the Bingham resolution would delay Senator Watson's home loan bank bill. He would vote for a proper repeal resolution when a proper occasion arose, said Senator Robinson.

Watson said he, too, would vote for a proper repeal resolution—a resubmission resolution—when the proper occasion arose.

But this was not the proper occasion, said both together, and on Senator Watson's objection the Bingham resolution remained on the table.

DEMOCRATS 2D TIME BLOCK BEER VOTE IN SENATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.] — Democratic senators were spurred up to the prohibition hurdle again today, and again they refused to take the leap.

Undismayed by the senate's defeat of his beer amendment yesterday, Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], mainspring of the wet Republican group, confronted the Democrats with a resolution framed to obtain the definition of an intoxicant, without which the senators pleaded yesterday that they could not vote for beer. He followed it with an offer to bring up his resolution for repeal of the 18th amendment.

SENATOR BINGHAM

Both challenges met with the same response as that given to the beer amendment. Democratic leaders protested loudly against being required to commit themselves at this time.

Asks Poll of Physicians.

Senator Bingham's first move was to introduce a resolution instructing the surgeon general of the United States to poll leading physicians and physiologists as to their opinion of what constituted an intoxicating beverage.

"I ask for its immediate consideration," he announced.

Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.], co-author and defender of the 18th amendment, looked hopefully about the senate chamber for someone else to do the job, found no one willing, and finally raised his voice to object.

That crisis past, Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.] felt free to join in. Why didn't the senator from Connecticut offer the Democrats a real test of their courage?

Ashurst Calls Move Insincere.

"The senator from Connecticut," he chided, "has been attempting to do what he called 'test the sincerity of the Democratic senators.' Never did he apply a true test. Let me tell him how. Let him introduce a joint resolution proposing to amend the constitution by abolishing the 18th amendment and let the roll be called. There will be no attempt on the part of the Democratic senators to avoid their platform.

"The senator from Connecticut with a shrewdness that I have not heretofore observed, but with the left handed cunning which always destroys the man who attempts to employ it, seemed to believe that by bringing before the senate a measure that would not be constitutional he could thereby make what he pleased to call 'a test of the sincerity of Democratic senators.' But the senator from Connecticut deceives no one.

"Let him introduce a joint resolution proposing the repeal of the 18th amendment, let the roll be called, and then after the Democrats shall have voted he may talk about a test. But let him not wash his hands with invisible sap in imperceptible water and try to put us to a test by asking us to do any unconstitutional thing."

2,000 ARMY OFFICERS SAVED FROM BEING PREMATURELY RETIRED

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—The long fight between senate and house over premature retirement of 2,000 army officers as an economy expedient ended today in victory for the army.

By a vote of 175 to 154 the house surrendered to the senate and the army's officer personnel will remain at its present strength, 12,133.

While this action removed the principal obstacle from the path of adoption of the long overdue 290 million dollar war department appropriation bill, last of the regular supply bills awaiting congressional approval, the measure was sent back to the senate to iron out some minor differences.

Representative Ross A. Collins [Dem., Miss.], author of the movement to retire the officers, waged a vigorous battle to hold out against the senate's repeated insistence that the proposal would hurt the army. Facing certain defeat on the question of demobilizing 2,000 officers, he cut the figure to 1,000 in a last stand, but in the end was beaten.

Representative Collins declared Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the army, had ordered a star to be placed beside the names of all officers who were fit to be promoted.

"Every officer who does not have a star beside his name," Mr. Collins asserted, "is deadwood and has no business in the army."

Loop Barbers Declare War on 25c Haircut

Plans for an active campaign against the 25 cent hair cut were made last night at a special session of the Loop Master Barbers' association in the Morrison hotel. It was reported that many loop shops, engaging in a price war, have found that even with large patronage the quarter trim is unprofitable. The master barbers recently adopted a minimum of 50 cents for a hair cut. Those present, including twenty new members, are pledged not to slash the rates below that.

CAPT. MULLANEY FREED BY JUDGE IN ALIMONY CASE

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday signed an order freeing John Mullaney, 70 years old, 908 West 37th street, a retired fire captain, who had been jailed for contempt of court because he refused to turn over part of his pension money to his wife.

The order was entered after the judge visited Mullaney at the county hospital where he was taken from alimony row at the jail where he collapsed Monday evening. Mullaney is seriously ill with pernicious anemia.

Judge Trude, who entered the order placing Mullaney in jail, yesterday communicated with Marshal Michael J. Corrigan of the fire department, who also is a member of the department pension board. Marshal Corrigan agreed to place Mullaney's case before the board with the suggestion that part of his pension money be given directly to his wife, Anna, who is destitute and ill. The pension board meets on July 20. Meanwhile Mullaney will remain at the hospital.

PREDICT GREAT TRADE BOOST FOR SEAWAY TOWNS

Large Companies Now Run Own Barges.

Citizens of the new port comprising the Illinois valley towns between Chicago and Pekin, with a population of 228,000, which will be created with the opening of the Illinois waterway, are looking forward to great developments in their industries and commerce when the trade route is established.

Asked by the Peoria Association of Commerce for a report on the area to be affected by the completion of the waterway, W. J. Power, general agent of the federal barge lines, said it could be told in two words—"the world." Mr. Power explained that the new artery of trade would connect the middle west with the Gulf of Mexico and through the Panama canal, with the Pacific on the one hand and, through the St. Lawrence seaway, with the Atlantic on the other.

Peoria Shipping Increases.

A. T. Griffith, Peoria publisher and leader in the waterway development movement for years, said yesterday that his city was already profiting by the extension of the nine foot channel to La Salle and Ottawa. Since the opening of Peoria's river terminal last June and the completion of the waterway to Ottawa three large concerns have started operating their own barges, said Mr. Griffith. These are the Marquette Cement company, the Apex Oil company, and the Cast Stone Construction company, the latter of Bloomington. The water freight at Peoria has increased more than 400 per cent in the last year the records show.

"Of course we will lose some of this freight that is now destined to Chicago and the east and goes part of the way by rail," said Mr. Griffith. "When the waterway is opened all the way some of the freight will go past us, but we expect the increase in that coming in from the east will be far greater than the loss."

M. Griffith explained that the type of barges now operating at Peoria carry 2,000 to 3,000 tons of freight in a single unit, and they can be towed in a convoy of five, seven, or nine. Each of these barges carries as much cargo as a freight train of 50 cars.

See Industrial Revival.

State Senator Richard Barr of Joliet said the citizens of that area were looking forward to the revival of industries and the consequent stimulation of employment as a result of the lower freight rates the waterway will make possible. Merchandise shipped from Joliet to the west coast by rail costs $2.50 a ton more than that shipped from the east coast by water, said Senator Barr.

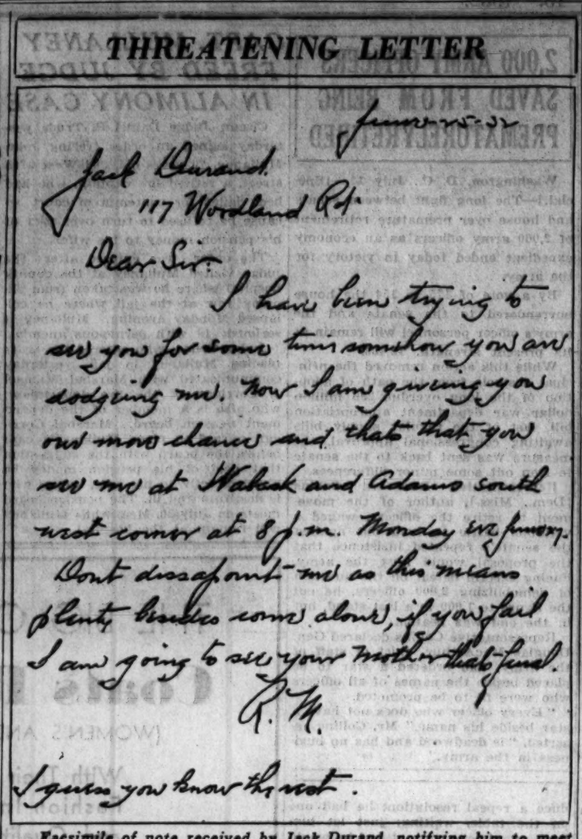
"There will be a great improvement in the steel industries here," Senator Barr said. "The manufacturers of wall paper, producing more in Joliet than is produced elsewhere in the west, will be able to compete with the manufacturers of eastern cities. Other commodities that are shipped to all parts of the country from Joliet are steam boilers and tanks, stoves, and corn shellers, many of which go to South America."

George A. Thornton, vice president, secretary, and treasurer of the Ottawa Silica company and former president of the Ottawa Chamber of Commerce, said:

"I think the deep waterway will bring cheaper transportation for bulk commodities."

J. E. Malone, president of the La Salle Chamber of Commerce, said industries now established in the Illinois valley were looking forward to a wider territory in which they may profitably compete because of lower transportation costs.

THREATENING LETTER



June 30-32

Jack Durand
117 Woodland Pl.

Dear Sir

I have been trying to see you for some time somehow you are dodging me. Now I am giving you one more chance and that that you see me at Wabash and Adams south west corner at 8 p.m. Monday evening. Dont disappoint me as this means plenty besides come alone, if you fail I am going to see your mother that fund.

R. M.

I guess you know the rest.

Facsimile of note received by Jack Durand, notifying him to meet members of gang. He did so, and they threatened to kidnap him.

FOIL A $50,000 PLOT AGAINST SCOTT DURANDS

On June 25 Durand received another letter, signed "R. M.," which he also gave Chief Storms yesterday. It read:

"I have been trying to see you for some time. Somehow you are dodging me. Now I am giving you one more chance, and that's that. You see me at Wabash and Adams, southwest corner, at 8 p. m. June 27. Don't disappoint me, as this means plenty, and come alone. If you fail I am going to see your mother."

"Durand met the gang as the letter demanded, but we did not find out about it until two days later," said Chief Storms. "There were five men waiting for him, in two automobiles. He showed them Dzan's letter but they told him, 'to hell with those guys. They're in jail and can't help you.'

Enough Disgrace.

"Durand told them that he had brought disgrace enough on his foster-mother, and that she would not pay a ransom to save him from kidnaping even if he told her of the plot."

It was then the gang changed its plan and decided to kidnap the Durand child Chief Storms said. Mrs. Jack Durand received a visit last week from two men, whom she identified yesterday as Cunniff and Verdico. They threatened to kidnap the child, and told her her husband knew where to pay the ransom to prevent it.

She told Mrs. Scott Durand of this and of other threats. Yesterday Chicago police received information that the kidnaping of Patricia was scheduled to take place immediately. Detectives guarded Jack Durand's home while his wife played on the lawn with Patricia and their infant son, Scott, 3 months old, to lull any suspicions on the part of the gang.

Appear at Farm.

Instead of appearing there, however, Cunniff and Verdico drove to Crab Tree farm, near Lake Bluff, and half a mile from young Durand's home. Unable to see Mrs. Scott Durand, who was shopping in Lake Bluff, they left after warning the housekeeper, Mary Warkentine, that they would return.

Meanwhile Mrs. Durand returned and hid in a milk cellar. From there she notified detectives when the men appeared the second time. They hurried to the farm and found Cunniff and Verdico sitting on the front porch. The prisoners gave up without a struggle.

Cunniff denied there was an attempt to extort ransom from the Durands. He said he had driven to Lake Bluff to see Jack Durand about aiding Lorimer, his old prison mate.

Early this morning Cunniff and Verdico were removed to the Lake county jail at Waukegan after they had been served by Sheriff Lester Tiffany and Chief Deputy Thomas E. Kennedy with warrants charging plain conspiracy. The warrants were issued late at night by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt on the request of State's Attorney A. V. Smith. Sheriff Tiffany dismissed Chief Spaid as a deputy sheriff for failure to notify the sheriff's office of his action in the case.

TRIBUNE TO LET BARGE LINE USE ITS WAREHOUSE

Speeds Operation of Lakes to Gulf Shipway.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Actual operation of government barges from Chicago to the gulf moved a step nearer today when the Inland Waterways corporation accepted an offer by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to provide a large warehouse for use in transferring freight to and from lake vessels and the barges operating on the Illinois waterway.

GEN. T. Q. ASHBURN

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE advised Brig. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the corporation, on July 2 that it would be glad to allow the federal barge line the use of a warehouse located near the mouth of the Chicago river from the time the waterway is opened until such time as other terminal and transshipment facilities were made available. The Inland Waterway executive today said he would accept the offer and take immediate steps to see how it could be utilized in expediting the opening of the lakes to the gulf route for commodity shipments.

Warehouse Near Mouth of River.

The warehouse is located near the mouth of the Chicago river, at what formerly was the site of the Great Lakes Transit company docks. Great lakes freight bound for the Illinois or Mississippi valley could be transferred to the warehouse or its dock at this point and later transshipped via barges to its destination.

THE TRIBUNE'S offer of wharfage facilities to the Inland Waterways corporation was made in a letter sent to Brig. Gen. Ashburn by E. M. Antrim, assistant business manager of the newspaper. In his communication Mr. Antrim said that as it seemed unlikely any one would risk money in the construction of the new terminal facilities before the canal is opened, THE TRIBUNE has decided to allow the federal barge line to use its warehouse for transshipments.

In recent weeks both THE TRIBUNE and the Inland Waterways corporation have had numerous inquiries from shippers desirous of bringing tonnage into Chicago by lake vessel for transfer to barges for shipment to valley points. Several queries as to rates also have reached Brig. Gen. Ashburn. There have been no indications, however, that private barge lines are planning immediate use of the waterway when it is completed.

"We will be ready to operate barges into Chicago in advance of the completion of the route," Col. Clark C. Wrenn, assistant to the chairman of the corporation, said today. "An operating study is being made. We are looking into the question of rates. We are taking advantage of every opportunity to expedite successful operation of the barge line."

Just when the final link of the waterway will be completed, thus fulfilling the dream of a great waterway, connecting the great lakes with the Gulf of Mexico, still is uncertain. War department engineers have advised Brig. Gen. Ashburn's office that the channels will be ready and bridge obstructions removed so barges can operate by not later than the opening of navigation next spring.

The channels are slated to be completed this fall and the bridges some months later. Special power boats are being designed for use in transporting barges through the Chicago area, but changes in the height of bridges along other sections of the waterway have been declared necessary.

Antrim Letter to Ashburn.

Mr. Antrim's letter to Brig. Gen. Ashburn reads as follows:

"Dear Gen. Ashburn: In anticipation of the opening of the Illinois waterway, we have had several inquiries recently from shippers desiring to bring tonnage into Chicago by lake vessel for transfer to barges to be carried through the Illinois waterway to various destinations in the Mississippi valley, including Peoria, St. Louis, Memphis, and Kansas City.

"I understand the Inland Waterways corporation has not adopted a policy with regard to port-to-port rates; that is, as to whether such rates shall be based on a percentage of the all-rail rate or upon what the traffic will bear. Assuming that this question will be settled before the opening of the Illinois waterway in such fashion as will make the movement of freight economical from the shipper's standpoint, the question of an interchange terminal at Chicago immediately becomes important.

"It seems likely that because of the excessive income tax no one will risk his money in private terminal facilities before the canal is opened, because he will figure that, should his venture prove unsuccessful he will lose his investment, while, if it should succeed, the government will 'muscle in' on the lion's share of the profits.

Located Near River Mouth.

"However, THE TRIBUNE has a large warehouse for the storage of newsprint located near the mouth of the river at what was formerly the Great Lakes Transit company, Canada-Atlantic Transit company and Goodrich Transit company docks. While it is not our intention to go into the general wharfage business on account of the need of our facilities for our own purposes, we will be glad to allow the federal barge line their use for transshipments between lake vessels and barges until such time as other facilities have been made available.

"If you will indicate a willingness to accept this offer I shall be glad to communicate further with the interested shippers in order that we may work out details of the through transportation charges."

Commenting on the letter and the opening of the waterway, Col. Wrenn said:

"Within the next few weeks an investigation of the entire terminal situation at Chicago will be completed. Decision will be reached as to the plans for transferring lake traffic to barges bound for points on the Illinois and Mississippi rivers."

CRUSADERS RAP LEWIS, PRAISE GLENN ON BEER

BY PARKE BROWN.

Telegrams of vastly different tone were sent yesterday to the two United States senators from Illinois, James Hamilton Lewis and Otis F. Glenn, by Seymour Wheeler and J. Russell Forgan, Illinois commander and divisional commander, respectively, of the Crusaders.

SEYMOUR WHEELER.

The message to Senator Glenn was as follows:

"We commend you most highly for your stand yesterday on the Bingham resolution. Your position has been consistent and in conformity with the expressed will of the people of the state."

Criticism for Democrats.

The telegram to Senator Lewis was longer and included criticism of the attitude of Lewis and other Democratic senators, charging that their stand on the beer bill had driven "many thousands of voters" away from the party.

"Two years ago," read this wire, "as a result of your position opposing prohibition laws of this country, this organization indorsed and actively supported your candidacy for the United States senate.

"In view of your pledges made at that time, which unquestionably elected you to office, and in view of the plank adopted by your party at the national convention, which, among other things, calls for immediate modification of the Volstead act, we are amazed that you voted yesterday against such a resolution.

"Are we to infer that your action is a repudiation of your own pledges and the Democratic platform? We believe that your action and that of a number of other senators who are members of your party and the recent events in the house on modification have lost your party the active sympathy of many thousands of voters.

"We point out to you that actions are better proof of political integrity than promises."

G. O. P. Committee Named.

Upon his return to Chicago from conferences in New York and Washington, Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced the appointment of an executive committee of fifteen which is to constitute part of the central arch of the party organization in the campaign. Chairman Sanders said the national committee will have more work on its shoulders than it did four years ago when the nominee was free to devote himself to the battle.

The fifteen new appointees include some veterans of years of experience in national contests, among them Mark L. Requa of California, Charles D. Hilles of New York; Walter F. Brown of Ohio, and David W. Mulvane of Kansas. Illinois' representative is its committeewoman, Mrs. Bertha D. Baur. Mr. Sanders said this selection was in no way influenced by the fact that the committeeman from Illinois has not been chosen. The state committee will meet tomorrow to make that choice.

Lewis Explains His Vote.

Washington, D. C., July 12.—(AP)—Senator Lewis said today that Illinois leaders of the Crusaders, an anti-prohibition organization, had misunderstood his vote yesterday to send the Bingham 3.45 per cent beer to committee. The senator said he advised them "my vote was to prevent the beer amendment being hung on the President's home loan bank bill, as it would have caused a veto of the bill."

He said the beer amendment "worked for neither repeal of the Volstead act or the prohibition amendment," and was "simply a scheme to discredit the President."

"I am for the measure for repeal that gives a chance for beer and for repeal," Lewis asserted, "but this did not."

HEADS ELKS

FLOYD E. THOMPSON.

Birmingham, Ala., July 12.—(AP)—The grand lodge of Elks, in annual meeting here, today elected Floyd E. Thompson of Chicago grand exalted ruler and chose Milwaukee, Wis., for the 1933 convention.

In his inaugural address Thompson warned against communism and appealed to the Elks to exert their power to restore prosperity in the United States. He succeeds John R. Coen of Sterling, Colo.

J. Edgar Masters of Charleroi, Pa., was reelected grand secretary, Lloyd Maxwell, Marshalltown, Ia., was elevated from the office of grand treasurer to grand trustee, and James J. Duffy, Providence, R. I., was named grand treasurer to succeed Maxwell.

Sen. Wright Pledges Aid to Banking Law Revision

State Senator Harry G. Wright of DeKalb, Republican nominee for state auditor, yesterday pledged his support to a definite plan for the revision of the Illinois banking laws. He proposes creation of a revision committee to report to the next general assembly, and also advocates a banking board of five members to supervise the work of a superintendent of banking who would have direct charge of all state banks.

ROOSEVELT BIDS FOR SMITH VOTES IN NEW ENGLAND

Chats with Party Chiefs; Sugary Words for Al.

Aboard Yacht Marcoon, Stonington, Conn., July 12.—[Special.]—Dropping into this quiet harbor after an all day sail aboard the Myth II., Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt extended the olive branch tonight to New England followers of Alfred E. Smith.

As his 40 foot yawl came to an anchor in the sunset waters, he met J. Howard McGrath, Democratic state chairman from Rhode Island, just around the neck of land and informed the leaders that Rhode Island's support of Mr. Smith at the Democratic national convention was understandable and that now that he had been chosen as the presidential nominee he expected the same kind of loyalty.

Assured He Will Win State.

"I not only understood but admired the loyalty of Rhode Island Democrats to our old friend, Ex-Gov. Smith," the governor told Mr. McGrath. "I am confident that they will give me the same kind of loyal support.

"I am counting on Rhode Island to give me her electoral votes. Having made an excellent shift into the Democratic column four years ago, I am sure she will stay there."

Mr. McGrath, who was accompanied on the visit by Martin Flaherty, managing editor of the Providence newspaper owned by former United States Senator Peter G. Gerry, a Smith follower, assured Gov. Roosevelt he would win the state.

Sugary Words for Smith.

The governor's indication that he was more than willing to let bygones be bygones in the territory where former Gov. Smith had his greatest following, was regarded as significant. It has been contended by some advisers that the soreness of the convention was continuing and that his fight with the former governor had sapped his strength dangerously in New England. His statement to the state chairman was viewed as an overt effort to overcome antagonism, especially in the light of his kindly words for Gov. Smith.

JUDGE DAVID TELLS 300 ATTORNEYS WHY HE FAVORS REPEAL

Superior Judge Joseph B. David, at a luncheon in the Chicago Bar association rooms yesterday, told 300 lawyers and judges why he thought the 18th amendment to the constitution should be repealed.

JUDGE DAVID.

Citing the history of sumptuary laws of ancient Greece and Rome, and of France and England during the 12th and 13th centuries, Judge David pointed out that all such enactments which arbitrarily destroyed the rights of the individual citizens ultimately were repealed.

"But America refused to see the lesson," said the judge. "All the wornout prejudices and foibles of which all sumptuary laws are composed were dumped here. And lo—the greatest of all arbitrary intrusions upon individual rights—the greatest sumptuary law of all, prohibition, had its birth."

"In Greece the Dorians passed laws prohibiting the inhabitants of Laconia from attending entertainments at which there was drinking," the judge continued. "In France, at the time of Charles V., laws were passed which prohibited women from wearing pointed shoes, and in England in 1336 it was made illegal to dine with more than two courses of meat in a single meal. Prohibition is just such another senseless law," said the judge.

DEPOSITORS IN 2 CLOSED BANKS TO RECEIVE $728,000

Depositors of two closed banks in Cook county will receive approximately $728,000 in payments in a few days, according to an announcement made yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson.

A 10 per cent payment, amounting to $450,000, will be disbursed to the depositors of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, 4753 Broadway, and a 20 per cent payment of $278,000 to the patrons of the Des Plaines State bank of Des Plaines.

The $450,000 payment of the Sheridan Trust, came in part from the payments of stockholders' liability, it was reported by Receiver Ernest Ridgeway. He added that the First National bank of Chicago had cooperated by agreeing not to force collection of a loan of $215,000.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday announced the appointment of two receivers for closed banks. Henry F. Tykal was named receiver of the Pinkert State bank, 4810 West 22d street, Cicero, and R. F. Gentzel was put in charge of the Prudential State Savings bank, 758 West North avenue.

DEBTORS TELL OF LOANS FROM WAUKEGAN BANK

Debtors of the closed Waukegan State bank testified yesterday at the trial of William H. Miller, former official of that bank, who is on trial before Judge Edward Shurtleff in Waukegan on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the bank failure. State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county said the purpose of this testimony was to show that the bank was insolvent long before it was closed on June 17, 1931.

Thomas J. Killian, a plumber, said he borrowed $9,500 from the bank which he is unable to repay. David S. Goldstein said he obtained $19,000 which he cannot pay back. Ray Bracher, former county treasurer of Lake county, said he borrowed $12,000 from the People's bank of Waukegan which later merged with the Waukegan State bank, and that afterwards he borrowed $10,000 and that he has made a few small payments on the $22,000 debt.

Edward Hall, receiver for the Clayton hotel, said the bank loaned the hotel $30,000 on a second mortgage, although there was a first mortgage of $100,000. The Rev. John B. Kloris testified he subscribed for $750 of the bank's stock—which was sold to the public shortly before the bank closed—and that when he was directed by a church society to withdraw the society's funds the bank wouldn't give him the money until he paid his note on the stock purchased.

ESCAPE AFTER GUN BATTLE.

Three automobile thieves abandoned the stolen car in which they were riding and escaped yesterday after a running gun battle in west side streets with Policemen Michael O'Rourke and Patrick O'Connor.

BAIN OVERVALUED ALL PROPERTY, CUTMORE SAYS

Harry S. Cutmore, chief deputy assessor, testified yesterday that property on which South Park Commissioner John Bain issued $375,000 in bonds was actually worth only $327,475. Cutmore was one of several witnesses at the trial before Judge John M. O'Connor of four members of the Bain family who operated twelve banks and are now charged with conspiracy to defraud the public.

HARRY S. CUTMORE

The day's testimony consisted mainly of figures purporting to show that Bain, as head of the chain of banks, grossly overvalued all property on which he sold bonds, that he took good securities out of trust funds and substituted his own collateral trust bonds which are now of little value, and that he drew out cash at will.

Cutmore gave testimony about values of forty-one pieces of property on which there were Bain bond issues. The Normandy Hall building at 79th street and Evans avenue, of which former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen and Dr. Walter Buhlig were joint owners with Bain, was given most attention because it has figured prominently in other testimony in the trial which is now in its fourth week.

Bain had appraised the property at $762,000 for the purpose of selling bonds on it. Cutmore, who was director of appraisals for Cook county in 1929, said the law provides that before a bond issue can be sold there must be two appraisals by disinterested persons and then the issue is limited to 50 per cent of the appraised value.

In 1928, when the Bain banks began selling Normandy Hall bonds, the value of the building was $178,375 and the land was worth $149,000, Cutmore stated. When the banks were closed, June 9, 1931, the total value had shrunk to $255,005, according to his estimate.

Traces Valuation Increases.

Of the forty-one properties listed, Cutmore gave the figure of $8,488,621 as the total value. Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber, in charge of the prosecution, said Bain's figures, for the purpose of selling bonds, were far in excess of the $5,000,000 valuation.

Lester B. Stark, an auditor employed by the state's attorney, testified regarding his examination of the contents of various trust accounts in the Bain banks against which bonds were issued. Some of the transactions showed rapidly increasing values for land. Stark traced one purchase of property at $68,000, a sale and repurchase at $73,000 and the eventual listing of the property as valued at $120,000.

Stark's records showed that in the months before the Bain banks were closed listed stocks were taken from the trusts, and stock in John Bain, Inc., put in their place. In one instance, Stark testified, Bain took out 1,514 shares of stock in a building at 63d street and Ashland avenue, which Bain's records showed to be worth as much as 8,700 shares of John Bain, Inc., but Bain only put back 3,000 shares of stock in his own company and used the equivalent of 5,700 shares to pay a debt to another of his subsidiaries, the Lewes company.

$4,000 Never Replaced.

Miss Anna Eunson, former secretary of John Bain, testified that on Jan. 1, 1931, she drew a check for $4,000 to Bain's order and against the account of John Bain, trustee.

"Did he deliver anything for this money?" asked Prosecutor Raber.

"No," she answered, "he hadn't decided what stocks to put up.

"Did he ever turn over any stocks to replace this withdrawal?" Raber asked, and the answer was "No."

MRS. LEONARD S. FLORSHEIM
—daughter of Colonel Aberle of St. Paul, mother of two handsome young sportsmen. One of society's smartest, most sophisticated. She golfs, plays bridge, goes to races (her husband is a founder and treasurer of fashionable Arlington Race Course). From Europe came her marvelous lingerie and linens, heavy laces from Spain, gorgeously colored satin damasks from Germany, rose and blue linens appliqued by magic French fingers, luncheon sets of Normandy lace. "Yet not one piece has ever changed," says Mrs. Florsheim, "because I won't let any soap touch them but American Family Flakes."

The more accustomed women are to the possession of fine things, the more careful they are to avoid the use of cheap soap flakes. Like Mrs. Leonard S. Florsheim, they know what damage the free lye and other harmful ingredients of bargain flakes can do.

Mrs. Florsheim is modern, and at the same time utterly feminine. She runs her town house and Winnetka home with cushioned smoothness. She entertains beautifully; is known for her lovely table settings, "and much of the effect depends upon the luster of linen and crystal," she says.

"American Family Flakes does wonders that way. It never leaves a soap film. White things iron smoother. Colors are just like new.

"Only American Family Flakes is used in cleansing my china and silver"...a magnificent English china set of a hundred and fifty pieces dated 1800, a gorgeous old Georgian silver service, royal-crested, and a priceless modern collection—treasures deserving the tenderest care.

"I've always used American Family. It cleanses so quickly that there's less handling, less chance of breakage—and so safely that there's no rubbing away of fine finishes on woodwork and porcelains. I think there is no comparison with other soaps."

So also say 4 out of 5 of Chicago's wealthiest women. They know that American Family Flakes is pure, safe and efficient . . . gives longer wear to all things washable and so saves you many dollars a year. Created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region, it makes double the suds of other flakes. It takes the rub out of scrubbing . . . makes laundering and dishwashing easier...and keeps your hands satin-smooth and soft.

SAVE MONEY—Use American Family Flakes. Its double-suds safeguards the costly laundry in 4 out of 5 Gold Coast homes.

Force Mayor to Let Them Help Pass on Budget.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The property owners of this, the richest and most spendthrift city in the world, have awakened from a long sleep of complaisant smugness and are striving to do something about their bureaucratically extravagant municipal government. The great mass of New York City's citizenship—the straphangers—still plod their way to work, however, blind to the fact that they too are paying a share into the greedy maws of a score of overlapping city bureaus.

The newly organized citizens' budget commission started its work today at a meeting at the Uptown club. Peter Grimm, a prominent realty man who is chairman of the commission, explained that the main aim of the organization would be to find methods of reducing budgetary estimates for 1933.

50 Million Budget Cut.

Following the meeting it was revealed that two of the economy points to be hammered at would be the elimination of overlapping bureaus and the substitution of fifty year bonds for four year bonds for financing present and future subway construction. It is estimated that a budget cut of almost $50,000,000 can be made in debt service requirements by the substitution of fifty year subway bonds.

The citizens budget commission has obtained the services of George McAneny, former borough president; Harold Reigelman, former special assistant attorney general, and Robert B McIntyre, a supervising statistician, to fill key posts in the organization which is composed of the leading property owners and real estate men of the city.

Mayor James J. Walker, who has been autocratic in the past in dealing with committees seeking to reduce the city's huge expenditures, has indicated that he will permit representatives of the citizens budget committee to sit in at conferences with department heads on the 1933 budget.

City Tax Collections Drop.

City tax collections for the first half of this year have fallen $19,173,000 under last year's corresponding collections. They are expected to drop even more in the last half of the year and probably will fall almost $50,000,000 short of the amount required to meet the approximately seven hundred million dollar budget for 1932.

Citizens and taxpayers have demanded drastic cuts ranging from 100 millions to 150 million dollars in the 1933 budget which is now in the process of being made up.

Charles L. Kohler, director of the budget, who draws a salary of $17,500 a year, returned from his vacation this week and optimistically told callers that "the cuts we will make will substantially exceed fifteen million dollars."

Demand Drastic Reductions.

Four times 15 million dollars will not satisfy the aroused tax payers of this city. They demand drastic real reductions. Among the demands made by the Merchants association, an organization working for governmental economy and elimination of bureaucracy, are:

The elimination of all activities not primarily a function of municipal government.

The reduction of salaries of city employés in keeping with those of other workers and parallel with cost of living, which has decreased 14.17 per cent since December, 1929. (The city workers as a whole have had no salary cuts.)

The filling of vacancies in the city service by promotion or transfer, without adding new names to the pay roll.

The prohibiting of any city employé from holding two salaried positions in the city service at the same time. (This is a common practice.)

Get competitive bids in letting contracts and purchasing supplies in excess of $1,000 in order to take advantage of enormous decrease in prices.

Eliminate overlapping by consolidating and coördinating the various city departments.

Revise the form of the budget so that it will show how the necessary revenues are proposed to be raised.

Kept Budget Figures Secret.

The proposal to permit a citizens' committee to sit in on city budget discussions in more revolutionary than the bare statement sounds.

In the past the various departments have begun submitting their budget needs or imagined needs along about the middle of July and from then on there was deep silence regarding the amounts so far as the public was concerned. The first word the taxpayers got of the amount of money they would have to dig up came around Sept. 1, when the city printers turned out requisition statements. By that time it was too late to do very much about giving the budget a shave and trim. This year New York City taxpayers are going to do the cutting themselves if necessary.

'BUGS' MORAN AND MONGOVEN FREED IN BARKER CASE

George (Bugs) Moran and Leo Mongoven, one time leaders of the beer gangs of the north side, were released from the detective bureau last night after witnesses to the killing of George (Red) Barker, labor terrorist, had failed to identify them.

Mongoven, earlier in the day, had appeared before Judge Harry Fisher of the Criminal court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was dismissed on a nol prossing by the state after Judge Fisher had ordered the suppression of the evidence, consisting of two pistols.

It was alleged that these weapons had been taken from Mongoven in May, 1930, when he entered the Madison-Kedzie State bank and threatened officials of the institution. But Policeman Thomas Burke, the principal witness, is dead and no one would testify that the gangster had the weapons on his person.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker asked permission to take Mongoven into custody as a Barker killing suspect. This was granted, with the proviso that he be released if no identification was made.

$15,000,000 CUT OR NO BANK LOAN, SCHOOLS WARNED

Bankers Tell Board to Reduce Levy.

plied Mr. Sargent. Trustee Robert F. Carr and Ernst Buehler indorsed this view, and Mr. Brown added: "Unless expenditures and tax levies are reduced, we will get no taxes in a short time. At present taxes are more than the people can pay. If taxes stay up, the property owner will not make much effort to pay. He will say, 'O, what's the use?'"

Plain Talk by Graham.

Mr. Graham referred to the view of Trustee Savage as a "threat, which will get nothing from the bankers." He went on:

"Your budget cannot be met. The people cannot pay the taxes. Your budget of $90,000,000 might just as well be $900,000,000. You won't get it. The $90,000,000 is as impossible as $900,000,000."

"Our investigation indicates that your expenses are out of all proportion. The reductions you have made are unsatisfactory. The parents of the school children cannot pay the price charged. We are confident that your expenditures can be reduced. We will work with you night and day.

"You have appropriated millions for new buildings, when you have hundreds of vacant rooms. You are constructing club rooms for the children when the parents cannot pay their taxes. You and I did not have such palaces when we learned the three R's. When we have the money, give the children club rooms and even horseback rides—but not now."

Myers Submits Letter.

President Lewis E. Myers submitted to the board a letter from School Architect John C. Christensen, recommending $4,025,000 savings in the appropriations for buildings. Mr. Graham said privately that more than twice that amount could be eliminated from the construction appropriations.

Under the plan adopted, of meeting in Mr. Graham's office, the entire school budget is to be combed for trims. Mr. Graham said that he desires to trim everything else before "touching teachers' salaries, which we hope to avoid."

The Sargent committee has compiled elaborate data, chiefly under the direction of John O. Rees, director of the Joint Tax commission, which will be presented to the trustees.

TEACHERS ASK PROSECUTION OF TAX DELINQUENTS

Massmeeting Acts to Picket Buildings.

A campaign to collect overdue taxes was begun at a massmeeting of teachers yesterday afternoon in Grant park. The meeting voted unanimously for resolutions demanding tax payments in order that they might obtain their salaries.

At the opening of the meeting Harry L. Tate, principal of the Whitney elementary school, the chairman, urged the teachers not to jeer the names of public officials and announced that a proposed demonstration in the loop had been postponed. "Mayor Cermak is ill in the hospital," said Mr. Tate, "and out of deference to him the demonstration will be called off."

Urge Prosecutors to Act.

One of the communications adopted was directed to State's Attorney John A. Swanson. It asked that he investigate immediately the possibility of "prosecuting on the grounds of criminal conspiracy" the organizations which are fighting the payment of their taxes.

United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson was urged to prosecute "all citizens of Cook county who, in making out their income tax returns, have deducted sums for local and state taxes when, as a matter of fact and record, they have not paid these taxes." Such a practice amounts to the crimes of perjury and income tax evasion, one resolution read.

Reads List of Delinquents.

Robert P. Russell, a teacher at the Oglesby school, read a list of large business houses, hotels, and stores which were delinquent in the payment of all or a major portion of their 1930 taxes.

Russell suggested that the teachers organize and picket in front of the buildings of large interests owing taxes. The proposal was greeted with applause and at the end of the program Russell made up a list of the teachers who volunteered to act as pickets.

Robert C. Keenan, a teacher at the Bowen High school, asserted that the judges of the Circuit and Superior courts should order the receivers for large buildings to pay taxes first out of the moneys collected. His plan was embodied in a resolution and passed by the teachers.

TEACHERS ASK TO BE PAID WITH OTHER EMPLOYES

Telegrams were sent to several city officials by the South Side Teachers' association last night protesting against the plan to pay all city employés excepting school teachers, and asserting such discrimination would be a violation of promises made by Mayor Anton J. Cermak.

"We have complete faith in Mayor Cermak's promises, so frequently repeated to large groups of teachers and consistently adhered to, namely, that no salary payments will be made to any city employés unless the teachers are paid at the same time," the telegrams stated. "We feel sure his cabinet will not take advantage of the mayor's illness to break his pledges."

The telegrams were signed by Robert P. Russell, secretary, and were sent to City Controller M. S. Szymczak, City Treasurer James Kearns, and Ald. John S. Clark of the finance committee. More than 5,000 teachers are members of the association.

Bargains with Fate and Loses, but He Wins a 'Decent Funeral'

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—George Peter Von Eff, who bargained with fate for $1 a day, a meal a day and a decent funeral, when he died burned to death today when a kerosene lamp overturned as he spent his leisure time in bed.

Since Jan. 1, 1931, when he made his odd bargain, Von Eff had lived in a two room house in the rear of some property in Newark, which once was his.

Makes Strange Deal.

He traded off that property, a three family house, to Mr. and Mrs. August Brighindi for a meal and $1 a day and their promise of a funeral. They paid off a $1,500 mortgage and $300 in taxes, and Von Eff moved into the smaller house behind them, to live on the income they had promised him in return.

It was a bad bargain for Von Eff. 72 years old and a retired baker, with his food and lodging secure. He spent his daily $1, Brighindi said today, mostly for magazines and liquor.

Policeman Discovers Fire.

Early this morning a policeman, walking a solitary beat, saw flames coming from Von Eff's tiny home. He called the firemen, but when they arrived the house was virtually destroyed.

Von Eff's charred body was found among the ruins. He had overturned the lamp, apparently, as he lolled in bed with books and liquor. He had been burned to death.

When reporters called today Brighindi was at work already making the arrangements for the funeral he promised—closing out the contract.

FELIX FRANKFURTER DECLINES BAY STATE SUPREME COURT POST

Boston, Mass., July 12.—(AP)—Rejection by Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard law school, widely known liberal, of a place on the Massachusetts Supreme court was disclosed today by Gov. Joseph B. Ely.

Gov. Ely sent Prof. Frankfurter's name to the executive council three weeks ago. Action by that body on confirmation was scheduled for tomorrow.

Stiff opposition to the appointment was registered by former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, who was governor during the unsuccessful efforts of Prof. Frankfurter and others to obtain a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolemeo Vanzetti, radicals, who were executed for murder.

Supporting the appointment were many leading members of the judiciary, including former Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Prof. Frankfurter said in a letter to Gov. Ely declining the appointment that he desired to continue his devotion to the teaching profession rather than to go to the bench. He said he made his decision only after "much anguish of mind."

"The future of the bar and bench would be determined," Prof. Frankfurter said, "by the quality of the law schools," and in such he desired to continue.

Gov. Ely said he would withdraw Prof. Frankfurter's name at tomorrow's meeting of the council.

Mail Pay Checks to 900 Sanitary Board Employes

Pay checks were mailed out yesterday to approximately 900 employés at the plants of the sanitary district. The pay roll was for the first half of April and totaled $125,038. The drainage board approved the pay at its meeting last Thursday, and also passed a pay roll for the last half of April, which will be sent out if funds become available.

Girls Barred for Wearing Shorts Ask Injunction

Ruth Smutny, 13 years old, 4464 North Kostner avenue, and Mona Thome, 20 years old, 4447 North Kostner avenue, filed a bill for injunction yesterday in the Superior court seeking to restrain commissioners of the Irving Park district and Eugene Utz, recreation director in the park, from forbidding their appearance on tennis courts there in the new tennis shorts for women. Utz ejected the girls from the park recently for appearing in shorts.

SUN BLAMED FOR $5,000 FIRE LOSS IN STEUBEN CLUB

Fire yesterday caused $5,000 damage to the roof of the 27 story portion of the 45 story Steuben Club building, 188 West Randolph street. This damaged roof houses and the club swimming tank. A 3-11 alarm was sounded and hose lines passed up the outside fire escape, but the flames were extinguished by chemicals and water from the building standpipe system.

Fire Marshal Patrick Pierce said the fire was started by sun rays deflected from the copper ventilator ducts to the tar paper roof. A crowd of several thousand, attracted by the heavy black smoke, gathered and a dozen were drenched when a coupling on a fire hose loosened.

BOY DOWNED IN LAGOON.

Virgil Brown, colored, 14 years old, was drowned yesterday in the lagoon at Washington park. Witnesses told the south park police that the youth had gone out in a canoe. He fell or jumped into the water and was unable to swim.

MINERS FLOCK TO CAPITAL TO FIGHT WAGE DEAL

Demand Their Chief Call Off Pay Cut Vote.

Thousands of coal miners from southern Illinois yesterday began converging upon Springfield for a demonstration protesting against the proposed basic wage scale, upon which they are to vote next Saturday. More than 5,000 of the miners had reached the city last evening and many other delegations were on their way.

JOHN H. WALKER.

The miners are demanding that President John Walker and other officials of the Illinois Mine Workers revoke the call for the vote on the wage scale, but their first efforts to reach him were unsuccessful.

In an organization meeting the protesting miners elected Jack Allen of Zeigler as president and A. F. Delforge of Christopher as secretary. Edward Hecklebeck of Zeigler was chosen as temporary chairman.

James M. Davis of Springfield announced that 1,000 miners had signed a petition for a special convention to repudiate the wage agreement of the state scale committee and the mine operators. Joe Dernancourt of Springfield, a member of the committee, was howled down when he tried to address the miners.

Blame High Wages.

While the miners were fighting the adoption of the proposed wage scale the Illinois Operators' association was appealing to them to accept it as the only alternative to bankruptcy of the industry and dependency of the miners upon public charity.

Illinois operators declare that the high wages paid to their workmen, all of whom are union men, have been directly responsible for the closing of 200 out of 370 Illinois mines between 1923 and 1932. The average number of men employed dropped from 99,000 to 49,000. The Illinois coal operators have lost out in the markets of the country, including the nearby middle west cities, because they cannot compete with coal mined in Kentucky and West Virginia by nonunion workmen, the operators say.

All Illinois mines have been closed since March 1. The 49,000 miners out on strike have contributed materially to the relief problem. Last week the joint committee representing the miners and the operators accepted the proposed reduction of the basic wage from $6.10 to $5 and yesterday ballots were sent out to the miners of the various local unions so that they could vote on the compromise.

Appeal to Mine Workers.

Thurlow G. Essington, counsel for the operators, yesterday produced statistics and arguments that are being circulated among the miners under "an appeal to reason" for the preservation of their jobs. Mr. Essington pointed out that in west Kentucky, where the mines are worked by nonunion men, the basic rate is $3.28 and that in other parts of the state it is $3.20, slightly more than half the Illinois basic rate. In West Virginia, all a nonunion coal mining state, the basic rate is $3.60. The following table shows how the production of coal has decreased in Illinois while increases have been shown in West Virginia and Kentucky:

1917	86 million	86 million	28 million
1925	66 million	124 million	56 million
1931	44 million	100 million	41 million

Coal shipped from Illinois mines to Chicago alone decreased from 13,358,358 tons in 1923 to 6,768,627 tons in 1931. More eastern coal is now shipped every year into the territory west of the Illinois-Indiana line than the total of Illinois coal, according to the statistics produced by Mr. Essington. Nearly 1½ million tons of eastern coal were sold last year in Iowa alone.

He'll Never Steal Another Locomotive—for Any Girl

Uniontown, Pa., July 12.—(AP)—No matter how much he wants to see his girl, Arthur Whirkey promised today that he'll never steal another locomotive. The Baltimore and Ohio railroad insists he wrecked one large engine and attempted to remove two others from a roundhouse. Whipkey pleaded he had "a date" and needed transportation.

TRIPLETS 15 YEARS OLD

Party at Momence

The Prusinski family of 3817 North Lowell avenue will celebrate the fifteenth birthday of the triplets, John, Martha and Frances, today in their summer home in Momence. The triplets were born on a Friday the thirteenth. The parents, John Prusinski, a photographer with a studio at 1209 Milwaukee avenue, and his wife, Rose, have two older daughters, Leona, 21 years old, and Verona, 20 years old. The girls were graduated in June from St. Viator's school.

STATE'S PAVING PROJECT IN CITY MEETS A DELAY

Bids Too High; Order New Ones.

BY HAL FOUST.

The state's first pavement construction in Chicago, after years of collecting license fees and gasoline taxes here, has been delayed because bids submitted by contractors were in excess of the highway department's estimate of a fair price for the work. New bids will be opened at Springfield next Wednesday.

FRANK T. SHEETS.

The project is for forty feet of pavement on Higgins road, from the city limits at Canfield road to Austin avenue, a distance of 2.31 miles. The bids, opened on June 15, were all from Chicago contractors. The apparent low bid was $217,386 submitted by John M. Bransfield company. The other contractors were American Asphalt Paving company, James A. Sackley company, R. F. Conway company, White Paving company, J. W. McGarry & Co., Calumet Coal company, Barber Asphalt Paving company, and the Contracting Material company.

Sending Notices to 1,250.

"Are you going to give outside contractors a chance for work in Chicago?" State Highway Engineer Frank T. Sheets was asked yesterday.

"We're sending notices to 1,250 contractors in all parts of Illinois and nearby states that we're advertising for bids on this Chicago job," he replied.

"Will local union leaders furnish labor to outside contractors?"

"I'm not making any statement," Sheets said, "except that all of the former bids were rejected because the prices were not comparable to our estimates nor to costs on other pavements nearby. I have no personal knowledge of labor conditions in Chicago nor of competition among Chicago contractors and I'd rather not be quoted in regard to the situation."

The Bransfield company's bid was at the rate of approximately $94,000 a mile. Last year a contract was awarded to the George Welch company of Beloit for a quarter of a mile of Higgins road pavement outside of Chicago but within Cook county on a bid of $12,868, or about $51,400 per mile. This year Jaicks Brothers of Chicago received a $65,651 contract for 1.04 miles of forty foot pavement in Niles. This price is at a rate of $63,000 a mile.

Widen Cicero Avenue.

The state is also advertising for bids to widen Cicero avenue from 63d to 87th street, a distance of 3.88 miles. These bids will be opened on July 27. At the same time bids will be opened for widening Waukegan road from the Cook county line to Everett, 5.17 miles, and for building approaches to the new Halsted street bridge over the Little Calumet river.

DEMAND MORE U. S. SPENDING, LESS ECONOMY

Profs. Robert Morss Lovett and Paul Douglas of the University of Chicago, and Miss Lillian Herstein, instructor in Crane Junior college, last night launched the campaign of the League for Independent Political Action for more federal appropriations and less governmental economy. The meeting, attended by many university students, was held in Harper assembly hall.

Norman Thomas is the league's candidate for President, Franklin D. Roosevelt having been discarded. Prof. Douglas explained, because the Democratic party, like the Republican party, is "controlled by the gangs and big business."

Prof. Douglas explained the platform adopted by the league at its Cleveland convention. It calls for direct federal relief for the unemployed, "an adequate public works program," public ownership of public utilities, higher taxes on the incomes and inheritances of the wealthy and no taxes on agriculture.

CITY PRESENTS ITS FINDINGS IN GAS RATE SUIT

Engineer Argues Wholesale Charge Too High.

Walter S. Bemis, consulting engineer employed by the city in its fight to have a fair rate fixed for the mixture of natural and artificial gas now being supplied Chicago by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, began presentation of his findings yesterday before the Illinois commerce commission.

Bemis testified that he had made an analysis of the exhibits and testimony introduced thus far. Taking the gas company's own figures, he estimated that the company could earn a fair net return of almost 8 per cent in the natural gas project investment with the wholesale price of natural gas at Joliet fixed at 24.85 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

The gas company has contended that the temporary experimental wholesale rate of 31 cents per 1,000 cubic feet which is now in effect should be made permanent. The difference to Chicago consumers between the company's 31 cent charge and Bemis' 24.85 cent charge is $300,000 to $1,250,000 yearly, Bemis testified.

Engineer Bemis based his 24.85 cent Joliet price on the assumption that the fair price of natural gas at Fritch, in the Texas panhandle, is 7 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

Minimum Life of Reserves.

The engineer said he also based his estimate upon the Natural Gas Pipe Line company's own estimate as to the volume of gas to be sold over a fifteen year period and upon an 8 per cent return on the pipe line investment between Fritch and Joliet. The engineer estimated 25 years as the minimum life of the natural gas reserves whereas contracts in the natural gas project set forth 15 years as the estimated life of the pipe line and the gas reserves.

At a morning session, Frank L. Griffith, a vice president of the gas company, admitted under cross-examination by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman that a $100,000 contribution to the emergency relief fund had been charged to the contingency reserve fund. This reserve fund was charged to the gas sold and consequently to the return on the company's investments.

"In other words, the gas consumers contributed indirectly to the emergency relief fund," observed Grossman.

"If you so consider it that way, yes," replied Griffith.

Rate Petition Heard.

The commerce commission also listened yesterday to arguments on a motion to dismiss the petition of the Utility Consumers and Investors League of Illinois for reduction of electric rates in the Public Service company of north Illinois territory around Chicago. The motion was taken under advisement by Commissioner Paul Samuell after two hours of debate.

WHISTLER FOR DEMOCRATS HURT AT CHICAGO DIES

Page had attended every national convention of his party since 1876 and earned his unusual title by blowing a postman's whistle during the Houston convention in 1928. The sound was carried to thousands of homes over the radio and brought many queries as to the identity of the whistler.

"The Sage of Wheatland," as he was known to his neighbors, made his whistle heard at the Chicago convention this year, too, and by a prearranged code of signals gave his friends an inside slant on the convention trend. A chest injury suffered in a Chicago taxicab accident led to an illness which proved fatal.

BURGLARS ROB DRESS SHOP.

1 AUTO + 1 POLICE BIKE = 2 CRASHES AT SAME CROSSING

Opening the police record book, the desk sergeant at the Oak Park station yesterday carefully examined one of the several entries for Saturday, July 9, and then, with a minimum of pen strokes, inscribed: "Tuesday, July 12, ditto for Saturday, July 9." His reasons:

Last Saturday, July 9, between 4:30 and 5 p. m., Motorcycle Policeman Hugh English chased a speeder in Madison street. At Carpenter avenue an automobile, driven by George Davidson, 604 Harrison street, Oak Park, veered, and Policeman English's motorcycle crashed into it. The speeder escaped.

Yesterday, July 12, between 4:30 and 5 p. m., Motorcycle Policeman Hugh English chased a speeder in Madison street. At Carpenter avenue an automobile driven by George Davidson, 604 Harrison street, Oak Park, veered and Policeman English's motorcycle crashed into it. The speeder escaped.

In yesterday's crackup Policeman English's motorcycle was wrecked and he was bruised and cut. Police last night were considering special traffic rules for English and Davidson, applying only to Madison street.

FAVOR LIFTING OF PARKING BAN TO PROVE BENEFITS

Sprague and Massen Say Rule Aids Trade.

Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, and Ald. John A. Massen, chairman of the council committee on traffic, yesterday indicated a willingness to allow another test to be made of automobile parking in the loop.

Both declared they were convinced that the no parking ordinance passed in 1928 had been a valuable asset in a business way as well as a relief to traffic congestion. They stated that they believed the suggested test would prove even to proponents of parking that they are mistaken.

Trial to Prove Error.

"The administration," said Col. Sprague, "cannot be put in the position of apparently stubbornly resisting a modification so widely supported. The only satisfactory manner of proving the error of permitting crowded business streets to be used for storage purposes is by actual trial."

"It is my conviction," declared the alderman, "that this parking prohibition should be continued; that it would be a serious mistake to repeal it. At the same time traffic regulations, except as they relate to public safety and convenience, should be adjusted to the current demands of the business served as far as practicable. If the business interests downtown are unwilling to be convinced otherwise, it may be that experience is the only way in which the city council can be relieved of the odium of continuing a regulation which these interests believe to be detrimental."

Claim Increase in Cars.

Col. Sprague pointed out that exhaustive surveys had been made of loop traffic before the ordinance was adopted and that they have since been carefully carried on. He maintained that there is actually more automobile traffic downtown than in parking days.

Representatives of loop stores, at a meeting of the council traffic committee on Monday, asserted their belief the no-parking rule was costing them millions of dollars of sales annually. E. J. McElraith, engineer for the Surface lines, declared that more automobiles were entering the loop than entered when parking was allowed.

Another conference of the committeemen and the traction and store representatives is scheduled for today.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Mayor Frank Kasten of Blue Island yesterday wrote the legislative body investigating the Illinois emergency relief commission that he could not verify the story he told the committee last week in which he said he had been informed that Miss Rose Marie Smith, suburban supervisor of the relief commission, went about her work in a large limousine driven by a Negro chauffeur. The charge proved only an unverified rumor, he wrote Senator Richard R. Meents [Rep., Ashkum], chairman of the committee. Miss Smith denied that she ever used a large car or chauffeur. When it is necessary to use one, she rents an automobile on a mileage basis, she said.

CALL JURGES TO TESTIFY TODAY AT GIRL'S TRIAL

Bill Jurges, Chicago Cubs infielder, who was shot twice last week by Violet Popovich Valli, divorcee and ex-show girl, probably will appear today in the Felony court to prosecute her despite his personal desires. She is charged with assault with intent to kill. Jurges thus far has refused to prosecute.

Steps to bring the ball player into court were taken yesterday by Judge John A. Sbarbaro. At the request of Assistant State's Attorney Russell Root Judge Sbarbaro issued a subpoena for Jurges, returnable today. Although able to get outdoors, Jurges is technically a patient at the Illinois Masonic hospital.

The shooting occurred in the Hotel Carlos, 3334 Sheffield avenue, last Wednesday. Jurges was hit in the ribs and the left wrist. Miss Valli was shot in the left hand.

All Flies Die

All Mosquitoes . . . At a Touch of This Perfumed Mist . . . Based on Flowers of Japan

There is a spray based on an extract of Japanese flowers. It was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Ten years and over $100,000 have been spent in perfecting it.

The name is Fly-Tox. When used in a new-type Fly-Tox sprayer, it fills the room with a cloud of perfumed mist, harmless to people, stainless to anything.

But that flower extract is deadly to flies and mosquitoes. It kills them quickly at a touch. And they can't escape if Fly-Tox is used rightly—to fill the whole room with that floating mist.

Fly-Tox, at a cost of 1 or 2 cents, rids a room completely of these deadly pests.

This is the latest, most efficient, most economical way to free your home—and keep it free—from these germ-bearing insects. They contaminate all foods they touch—infect when they bite. They destroy over 40,000 lives per year, mostly lives of children. Employ it liberally and often to be safe.

FLY-TOX ONLY

A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, and always in a new-type Fly-Tox sprayer. Then every stroke will release into the air some 150,000 particles of spray.

Fly-Tox is efficient beyond all compare. It is all-pervading, quick and economical. Every lot is tested on flies in our laboratory. Its potency is guaranteed by every dealer. Use nothing less efficient when the safety of your home is at stake. Fly-Tox also kills Roaches, Ants, Bed Bugs, and Moths. Fly-Tox is sold everywhere throughout the world. Harmless to people. Stainless. Made by the Makers of Moth-Tox.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE VETO AND AFTERWARDS.

It is to be hoped the President's veto of the Garner bill marks the turn of the tide of battle against congressional demagogy and irresponsible legislation. The proposal for loans to individuals was well characterized in the veto message as "violating every sound principle of public finance and of government." The President is not exaggerating in declaring that "never before has so dangerous a suggestion been seriously made to our country." It marks the lowest level of legislative intelligence or public character reached by the present congress and the American nation can only pray that it was a lower level than any future congress will reach. That it could be passed by the congress is ominous of the destructive forces operating upon our politics at this critical moment of our history, and this fact must rouse the people of the nation to the immediate defense of its safety. That defense must be practicably directed to the defeat of legislators who have thus demonstrated either their incompetence or their recklessness of consequences to the nation, and to the election of a better congressional personnel. Even the strength of this great nation cannot survive the consequences with which the present congress has threatened it.

That the Garner proposal has been prevented by the President is something for which the nation may be profoundly thankful, and we hope that we are now to escape into less perilous waters. But the best that may be expected is not full of encouragement. Even the compromises proposed in the message, while they avoid the fatal effects of the preposterous Garner proposal, insure an increase of the nation's burden of debt which must retard recovery, and can be justified, as the President intimates, only by the exigencies of an unprecedented emergency.

The great fight upon the essential issue remains to be made. This congress and government have failed to meet it. The drastic economy which is the only measure of salvation has been stubbornly refused. The citizenship of the nation must change that before it is too late. The next congress will be elected in November. There must be organization to challenge candidates and to resist the forces bent upon bleeding the resources of the nation to exhaustion and ruin.

The war against disunion presented no more critical and decisive issue than the war now on to save the nation from general bankruptcy.

A TAX THAT OUGHT TO BE REPEALED.

The increase in the tax on trading in grain futures has already resulted in driving buyers out of the market. It is apparent that the increased tax is costing the farmers far more than it will ever yield to the government. The imposition of the tax precisely at the moment when the new crop is coming on the market has been particularly unfortunate. Just when the market is under the heavy pressure of hedging sales the government has seen fit to discourage buyers.

If the tax had been seriously intended to raise revenue and help assure a balanced budget, the move to have the tax repealed before congress adjourns would gain little sympathy. The fact is, however, that the tax was imposed not to raise revenue but to punish the middleman. The professional friends of the farmer in congress still think that it does the farmer some good to discourage his customers from buying what he has to sell. Just how much good it does is indicated by the recent trend of wheat prices, which has been downward though the news of crop losses in the southwest might have been expected under ordinary circumstances to start a bull movement.

The grain futures tax is a burden, and a particularly heavy one, on farmers. They pay the amount which the government collects from brokers and they pay again in needlessly low prices. Congress has done the country infinite harm by its tax policy. No ruler has ever hurt its people more.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

A notorious gangster and a minor hoodlum have just been acquitted by a jury. Two other hoodlums, arrested for gun toting, were on the same day acquitted by a Municipal judge. These are not unfamiliar items in the news of the day in any of the cities. They are symptomatic of a general and most deplorable ineffectiveness of criminal law in our country. Assuming, as we should in the absence of knowledge to the contrary, that both the jury and the judge acted conscientiously, in the light of the testimony and in the strict enforcement of the law, the fact remains that four evildoers achieved a victory over the public authorities attempting to reach them. They are at large again, and, if inferences from their past conduct are reliable, they are at large for no good.

In the same issue which recorded the cases mentioned the public reads that C. K. Jenkins, who bore the ironic title of director of public welfare under Len Small, had testified that Fur Sammons is being held in jail contrary to the law. Sammons had been tried by a jury and sentenced to hang for murder. The sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by Congressman Yates, when governor. Later this sentence was reduced to 50 years by Len Small, and his parole board set Sammons free on parole. During this parole Sammons was indicted for another crime and arrested twice upon other charges. He is considered by the police a persistent and dangerous evildoer, and it would seem, his whole record being considered, that he is not the sort of individual who ought to be at large. Nevertheless the laws faithfully applied, as it is the duty of a judge to apply them, may require his release.

If so, and in any case, the effect upon public opinion must be still further to weaken confidence in the laws or their administration. It is at least obvious that the exercise of executive clemency in this case has had deplorable consequences, and the suspicion will amount to conviction with most citizens that executive clemency in this case was the result of political influence. The observation of such cases by the public leads inevitably to that suspicion of or disrespect for the administration of public justice which is the underlying source of its inefficiency.

The truth is that a vicious circle has been created. It is true that the public is responsible for electing officials who do not do their full duty and is therefore responsible for the failures which result in its own discouragement and cynicism. But this does not excuse official slackness or worse, and the job of breaking the vicious circle must be mainly the criticism of officials. The exhortation of the public to better selections would be of little value without it, though the final responsibility lies there.

THE DEMOCRATS VOTE NO BEER.

Twenty-four Democratic senators, who could have had the aid of fourteen Republicans and eleven Democrats to make the "immediate" in the Democratic beer resolution mean immediate, bolted from the scene of an easy triumph for their party pledge. A beer bill was offered them by the Republican Bingham of Connecticut. They sent it to committee where they can hold it.

It isn't often that a party is called upon to repudiate its pledges so soon after they have been made. The Chicago convention of the party had barely written its promise into the record when the Democratic senators nullified it. The thing is a scandal. It is an effrontery not often encountered in the worst of double crossing political action. A declaration of intent was immediately presented with opportunity. The house of representatives is controlled by the Democratic party and the speaker is the party's candidate for Vice President. The senate, although controlled by the Republicans, contains enough Republican members dissatisfied with their own party's stand on Volstead to give the Democrats a majority for the program to which they were committed.

Rank as the nullification had to be, the Democratic senators had the stomach for it. They stamped the word "worthless" upon the whole platform. Their convention had made a specific pledge. Time was made the essence of it. Immediate meant that the party realized that action now was important. The convention was aware of the fact that congress was in session. That fact was a condition in the pledge. The country needs a new source of revenue. It is tired of juvenile restrictions upon adults. A national party unqualifiedly recognized the arguments as valid and unqualifiedly indorsed them in the simplest words which could be used.

There was no question of delay or further consideration, but the pledge with immediate as its distinctive feature was immediately repudiated. The Democratic senators accepted the stigma of insincerity and double dealing. Their pretexts and excuses are too silly to be considered. They send the party into the campaign with an exposure of the worthlessness of the party promises. That is a notable performance and it will be interesting to see what comes of it.

Editorial of the Day

THE PORK BARREL PASSING.

[Aurora, Ill., Beacon-News.]

One of the most interesting things about the current demand for economy in government is the way in which numerous small cities reacted to the recent congressional proposal for an extensive postoffice building campaign.

In the old days the "pork barrel" bill was always a surefire hit. It got through congress over and over again because each congressman wanted to make the folks back home think that he was a big shot, and the easiest way to do it was by getting an elaborate postoffice building put up in some town in his district.

In the aggregate this was always horribly expensive, but such bills almost always got through because the separate districts always thought more of their own bit of pork than they did of the federal budget.

This year, however, things are different. There is, for example, the state of Missouri.

The proposal in the house of representatives would have given new postoffices to 17 northwestern Missouri towns. But it wasn't long before the people in these towns began to object violently. They would like new buildings very much, but they would prefer to see Uncle Sam practice a little rigid economy. So most of them let their representatives know in unmistakable terms that the pork barrel would make no friends back home this year.

Nor was this phenomenon peculiar to Missouri. It happened in many other parts of the country; in many, many towns. A great many congressmen who thought they were about to make themselves solid with their constituents discovered overnight that they had guessed wrong.

All of this, when you stop to think about it, is very encouraging to a believer in democracy.

One of the things that has kept democracy from functioning as well as it might in the United States has been the triumph of the sectional viewpoint. Too many congressmen have tackled all problems from the local angle and have let the national angle go hang. What we are witnessing now is a revival of the national spirit. It restores one's faith in the republic's integrity.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Here to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Ed. C.D.T.

ALONE, ALONE! ALL, ALL ALONE!

We would just love to slip quietly away from the cares of politics and the world and the Democratic party like Mr. Roosevelt did. From the newspaper reports the governor seems to have been accompanied only by the New York state troopers, the New York City police, the fire department, prominent Democrats in automobiles, prominent Democrats on bicycles, beautiful young women on floats, the Boston Ancient and Honorable Artillery, the New York Symphony orchestra, massed bands, Jimmie Walker in white flannels, the New York Yachting club, ocean liners carrying two thousand reporters and photographers, the Coney Island Annual Clam Bake association, the Atlantic Seaboard Longshoremen's Fun and Frolic association, the National Guard of New York, the Manhattan Choral association, the Bronx Business Men's Glee club, and the Radio Broadcasters' Amalgamated Representatives with flat boats, barges, and motor launches carrying microphones and motion picture apparatus. We should love a nice, quiet trip like that—the world forgetting and by the world forgot. Lykell, lykell, lykell!

"FRANCE TO AWAIT U. S. PLEASURE in Lausanne Agreement."—The Trib. Well, if we hear much more about the "gentlemen's agreement" that is said to have accompanied the signing of the great peace pact France will have to wait until a certain extremely hot place freezes before the U. S. exhibits any symptoms of being real tickled over the deal.

FOR THAT SENTIMENTAL BREAKFAST

(A bride speaks.)

For our newest little breakfast,
When I first shall cook for you,
I will have a cozy kitchen
Painted rose, and white, and blue.
The stove must be enameled
With bluebirds all around,
And the dishrags will sport roses
Upon a blue background.
The walls shall have a border
Of forget-me-nots in blue,
While the ceiling will have cupids,
With a turtle dove or two.
We shall have a rosewood table,
With a pink rug for our feet,
And we'll talk of stars and clover,
When we two sit down to eat.
Each dish, and cup, and saucer
Must be painted pink and blue,
When I serve our first new breakfast
In our little home for two!
I shall wear a checkered apron
And pink ribbons in my hair,
And if YOU burn the pancakes—
I know we will not care!

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

AND AS FOR THE LAUSANNE delegates who entered into that gentlemen's agreement—we're reminded of the vaudeville joke: "Who was that lady I saw you with last night?" "That wasn't no lady; that was your wife."

A MOTORIST out in North Dakota said that after a hundred mile run he found his car filled with grasshoppers. We all have our troubles; here in Illinois or Indiana after a hundred mile run you find your car filled with hitch hikers. Personally, we'd rather have the grasshoppers. A grasshopper doesn't borrow your cigarets and tell you he's on the way home to his poor old sick mother, and that he hasn't had anything to eat for two weeks but a cup of coffee and a hot dog. And a grasshopper doesn't tell you funny stories you heard when a baby in the crib. No, a grasshopper just hops into the car, says nothing, not even to tell you what a swell car you've got. He just sits up on the back of the seat for two or three miles and hops out again. But a hitch hiker! Now, that's something different again.

NO HOPE!

. . . (From the Joliet Herald-News.)

Dear Louise de Joliet: I have a B flat clarinet and a B flat cornet, and also a small safe, one of which I would like to exchange for an oil stove or a good loud speaker for a battery radio.

JANE.

CASPAR, who says he lives a block away from Jane, is praying nightly that she will not swap the safe for a loud speaker.

RED DAWN.

He ran to greet the morning sun
Upon a wind-swept hill.
The earth, except for matin songs,
Was breathless, hushed and still.
Then something smote his heart with fear,
With dread and cold, with chill.

The sky was radiant with flame
And rose—how could he know
Before the night had drawn dark shades
That all the winds that blow
Would kill his joy of morning hours,
And fill his heart with woe?

THE FIRST BINTURONG ever born in a zoo is reported from San Diego. We've been expecting something horrible—earthquakes, tidal waves, swarms of locusts, the seven year itch, and comets meeting in head-on collision in the skies. Yessir, ever since the Democratic convention we've just felt that some awful calamity would come right down on us. But if it's just binturongs—oh la la! that's easy.

HOW TO REDUCE THE ABDOMEN.

STANDING, clothing loose: Raise the arms above the head, pointing upwards; carry the trunk, arms, and head forward and downward, arms stiff and straight, legs stiff, knees unbent. If possible, touch the fingers to the toes or to the floor. Reverse the movement, returning to the original position. Repeat. To touch the fingers to the toes or floor is not difficult for a short-legged, long-bodied person with a fairly supple trunk. This will always be impossible for a long-legged, short-bodied man unless his trunk is exceptionally supple.

This exercise compresses the abdominal organs and uses the abdominal muscles. One not accustomed to it quickly becomes winded. Beginners should not push any exercise after they have become winded. On the other hand, a person in condition need not stop when he becomes moderately winded.

Sitting: Sit on the floor with the legs extended. Bend the trunk forward as far as possible, flexing not only the hip muscles but the trunk. Touch the toes with the fingers and the knees with the face. Reverse the motion. Repeat.

This exercise crowds and compresses the abdominal structures more than is done by bending while in the standing position.

Lying: Use a board six feet long and twenty inches wide, with stirrups for the feet at or near one end. Place a light pillow under the head. Lying lengthwise of the board, raise the legs to the vertical position, bending the hips and keeping the knees flexed. Reverse the motion. As the feet go back to the horizontal, the back tends to bow. Straighten the back. Repeat.

Put the feet in the stirrups. Raise the body to the vertical position. Reverse. Repeat. The beginner executing this movement will bend the knees and jerk the body upward. Without this, he probably would not succeed. As strength increases this exercise should be executed without bending the knees. The body should be slowly bent to the upright position without any snapping. Likewise, in returning to the horizontal the muscles of the abdominal wall and back should resist gravity and ease the trunk down.

Raise the head of the board six inches, using bricks or some solid, strong body for the purpose. Lying on the board, repeat the exercises given above. Lower the head of the board and then raise its foot six inches. Lying, repeat these exercises. While they crowd and compress the abdominal fat their chief purpose is to strengthen the abdominal muscles.

Lying flat on the back with the abdomen exposed, roll a cannonball, or some heavy substitute, over the abdominal wall in all directions. Rolling weights on the abdomen massages the fat. When fat is pushed around much the disposition is for it to be picked up and carried away, to be deposited in some more sheltered location.

Of the out-of-door sports rowing is about the best for reducing the girth. The boxer who stands up and lets his sparring partner pound his solar plexus is taking out insurance against a protuberant abdomen.

Of the various kinds of gymnasium work that on the bars is as good as any for the purpose in mind. Spading outranks other work in keeping the waistline down.

DIET NOT INDICATED.

Mrs. W. T. writes: 1. What kind of diet is best to produce more blood?

2. I cannot endure chilly weather. My hands turn blue and I shiver. Poor circulation may be part of the cause, but I feel sure my blood supply is low.

3. Sweets do not agree with me and yet doctors say I am not diabetic. They cannot find my trouble. I have had five babies, of which three died at birth. I nearly lost a fourth, but she was saved by artificial oxygen. She seems to be a healthy child, now 9 years old. The other one is not very healthy, as she was born with rickets. Why do you suppose I lost those three babies? They seemed to be low in vitality and had poor circulation. They were of normal size and strong looking.

REPLY.

1. If one has secondary anemia green vegetables, eggs, juicy steaks, and laxative foods; if pernicious anemia, tripe and liver.

2. Nothing in your letter indicates that you need any tonic diet. Your disturbance is in your vasomotor system. That has nothing to do with the richness of your blood.

3. Maybe you digest carbohydrates poorly.

4. Among the possibilities are deficiency of vitamin B complex in your diet during pregnancy. Have you ever had your blood tested?

ABOUT MILK.

C. M. M. writes: 1. Why is milk considered such a good food?

2. What is the relative mineral content of pasteurized and churned buttermilk?

3. Is it perfectly healthful for one to drink two glasses of buttermilk before going to bed at night?

4. Does the average adult who does not drink milk get a sufficient amount of fat and water soluble vitamins?

REPLY.

1. Because it is easily digested by most persons, and its food values are well rounded.

2. The mineral content is about the same. In making pasteurized buttermilk the sweet milk is pasteurized rather than the buttermilk itself. Souring removes some lime from milk. Therefore, buttermilk made from very sour cream contains slightly less lime than does that made from sweet cream, or cream that has barely soured. But the difference is not great.

3. Yes—for most persons.

4. An adult can get sufficient fats and vitamins from foods other than milk.

ABOUT ASPARAGUS.

C. I. writes: 1. Does asparagus have a tendency to irritate the bladder?

2. Does it give a strong odor to the urine?

3. What is its food value?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Yes.
3. It has 218 calories in each pound. It is fairly rich in minerals and vitamins.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 13, 1916.

LONDON.—The furious battle continues in the Contalmaison sector north of the Somme. Driven out from the Mametz and Trones woods, west of Contalmaison, the British succeeded in winning back the greater part of the former and in forcing the enemy out of a large part of the latter. Each hour adds to the fierceness of the fighting on the British front. The Germans have brought heavy reinforcements to this part of the front, acting on the assumption that the most serious menace on the west was Gen. Haig's army. London estimates that almost 750,000 German bayonets opposed the advance of the British forces. Heavy assaults on the Verdun front have won small gains with heavy loss in men for the Germans.

BERLIN.—Russian troops which attempted to establish themselves on the west bank of the Stokhod river in the advance toward Kovel were attacked by German troops and defeated, the war office announced.

ROME.—The official war report says that in the region of the Adige valley the Italians made progress north of the Serra valley and in the region of Malta Sugna.

CHICAGO.—The population of Chicago has passed the two and a half million mark. It is 2,550,000, according to the estimate of W. L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education, who made public his census of the minor population to the school board.

CONSTANTINOPLE.—The war office announced that the Turkish troops have beaten off onslaughts by the Russians who were attempting to check the Turks in the Caucasus.

CHICAGO.—Chief of Police Charles C. Healey issued a sweeping police shakeup order in which four captains were shifted and twelve sergeants were elevated to lieutenantships. It is understood the order is the first echo of the mayor's recent threat to clamp the Sunday lid on tighter than ever.

CHICAGO.—The moving picture exposition opened in the Coliseum with numerous stars of the film world present. Among them were Henry Walthall, Richard Travers, Ernest Maupain, Bryant Washburn, John Cossar, Edward Arnold, Thomas Commerford, Edna Mayo, Nell Craig, Marguerite Clayton, and Rose Tapley.

CHICAGO.—Dr. Arthur Cleveland Cotton, dean of Chicago's specialists in children's diseases, and one of the best known pediatrists in the country, died of heart disease at his home, 3218 Jackson boulevard, at the age of 69 years. Throughout his long career he held the position of professor of children's diseases in Rush Medical college and was a former president of both the Illinois State Medical society and the Chicago Medical society.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

What is corrosion, the factors affecting it, and some methods of prevention?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

What are steels and some reasons for their industrial and economic importance?

REPLY.

Steels are iron alloys. [Alloys are mixtures or compounds possessing metallic properties.] Pure iron is relatively soft and lacks mechanical strength. Addition of from 0.5 to 1.5 per cent carbon produces ordinary steel, which greatly excels iron in hardness and strength. The larger the carbon content, the harder but also the more brittle the steel; hardness can be further varied by tempering. Consequently, steel can be adapted to many different uses, as in rails, skyscrapers, and machines. Addition of metals, such as nickel or chromium, to iron produces special steels which possess unusual strength and toughness; some of them, like stainless steel, are rust resisting. Lathe tools of ordinary steel lose their cutting edge when used continuously because of the heat generated by friction; use of certain special steels, which retain their hardness even when hot, has made high speed work possible and is an important factor in modern mass production.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Evanston, Ill., July 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A built a house five years ago, placing a loan of $15,000 on it by his note secured by a mortgage. A subsequently sold the house to B, who sells it to C. The deeds were taken subject to the mortgage, but it was not stated in the deeds that the buyer assumed and agreed to pay the mortgage. Mortgage is now due. The present owner, C, cannot pay the interest or raise the $2,000 necessary to reduce the mortgage and renew it. Mortgage holder notifies A that he will look to him for interest and the $2,000. The present holder states he can sue A on his note without foreclosing on the mortgage. 1. Can the mortgage holder sue A on his note without foreclosing? 2. If A is liable on his note and must pay the interest and the $2,000, what are his remedies against the present owner, C, and what steps are necessary? 3. If mortgage holder does not sue A but forecloses, what steps must A take to protect himself in case of foreclosure? C. A. H.

1. Yes.
2. He should take up the notes and then enforce them against the property.
3. In general he should be represented by counsel. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Chicago, July 11.—The Democrats in their frantic desire to win this fall overlooked men of stamina and sound principles; instead they nominated a man largely because of his name. "That name alone will get votes," expressed a southern editor, "and, of course, we want to win."

Now we hear that the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform have themselves overlooked far more vital issues and indorsed the two candidates who stand for repeal. Why? Because in a preconvention announcement they pledged themselves to the party that would advocate immediate repeal. They were, the night of Roosevelt's nomination, like embarrassed children whose bluff had been called.

A weak man with a big name is dangerous. So is a man born to wealth who turns radical. So is he who has not the guts nor the leadership to advocate a reform until he sees on which side his own bread will be buttered. Did we read in the newspapers before the convention that Franklin Roosevelt—sixth cousin of the real Roosevelt—stood for immediate repeal? No! Instead, like a dog fearful lest his own shadow might bite him, he waited, read the platform, and then wired: "O. K. I'm for it."

A disaster it was for the Democratic party that the public witnessed their market place upon which hungry politicians laid their wares and bartered for jobs. As a result thousands, possibly hundreds of thousands, of potential voters have become stanchest Republicans than they before dreamed of being. For Herbert Hoover is, after all, stable, honest, sincere in his own convictions, and a safer berth for a ship riding a storm than this sixth cousin of a renowned name.

The country must now witness a fight for the vice presidential seat played upon the floor of congress. Garner! A fine President should Roosevelt, already stricken by fate, not live. Garner has shown for many months his sort of leadership. Are we going to put our future in his fumbling hands?

MRS JOHN BORDEN.

THE GENERAL WELFARE.

Wheaton, Ill., June 27.—I quote from an article in the "Voice of the People" on June 26 entitled "Federal Policing," by Charles Lee Bryson, thus: "It seems to me that the federal government has for many years been meddling in police matters in which the constitution gave them no right." Is Mr. Bryson sure that he read the constitution carefully? In article I., section VIII., clause I., it says that "the congress shall have power to provide for the general welfare of the United States." I think that this gives them power to meddle in police matters without permission from the various states.

What could be smaller, cheaper, less dignified, less worthy of a great government than not exercising this power when necessity demands it? Why not let the Supreme court of the United States judge the constitutionality of the laws that our congress desires? M. B.

THE CHINESE IDEA IS BEHEADING.

Chicago, July 6.—If the country would make a law that that all bank presidents and directors would be personally responsible for the closing of their banks with a life sentence I and many others believe there would be fewer bank failures. SADIE JACOBS.

COOLIDGE AND SMITH

Chagrin Falls, O., July 3.—The two conventions just concluded have shown us that it is possible for a man to be elected President of the United States merely because he wants the office a very great deal.

The one convention was dominated by office holders instructed to nominate the man who had hired them. The other convention nominated a man who—because he wanted the presidency more than anything else in the world—went out and organized and campaigned for delegates while far abler and more modest men stood back, thinking that the position should seek the man.

America is at the crossroads. Important decisions are going to be made in the next four years—too important to intrust to men who use such methods. Conservative people would like to at least have an opportunity to influence these decisions. As matters stand now they will not have such an opportunity, for millions of them have to all intents and purposes been disfranchised by these conventions.

The matter is too important to drop. A fight to the last ditch should be made to give these millions of conservative voters an opportunity to themselves select a President and a Vice President.

My own choice, considering the fitness of the men, and considering that we must elect them, and not merely register a protest vote, is a coalition ticket as follows:

For President—Calvin Coolidge.
For Vice President—Alfred E. Smith.

I do not know the politics of your paper. I do know that you are courageous, that you hate paternalism, and that the opinions you voice can be made to register throughout the nation.

D. B. WILSON.

A DISTINGUISHED DEMOCRAT.

Chicago, July 6.—When at the next Democratic convention names of distinguished party members are brought to public attention I hope that some appreciative delegate will honor himself and his party by remembering ex-Gov. Slaton of Georgia.

Some seventeen years ago he knowingly chose to sacrifice a promising political career rather than compromise with his conscience by yielding to popular passion and prejudice in the Leo Frank case.

And previously when he was speaker of the Georgia legislature he temporarily relinquished the chair in order to vote in favor of a tax on some form of land ownership that was bound to exact a heavy toll from his own property.

Surely John M. Slaton is a man who should not be consigned to the ranks of those forgotten. FLORENCE FISHEL.

THE POSTOFFICE.

Oconomowoc, Wis., June 30. — I was surprised to see in this morning's Tribune an editorial referring to the postoffice as "a monopoly protected in its gross inefficiencies." I think that it is universally conceded that we get better and more reliable service from the postoffice and at a lower price than from any other service that we buy, and if newspapers and mail order houses paid the government the bare cost of the service they receive the department would show a good surplus, thus helping to pay our debt. Why should the people be taxed to pay for service to these enterprises? H. H. PARKER.

PERUVIAN TROOPS FIND DEAD PILED IN CITY'S STREETS

Reign of Drunken Rebel Mob Is Ended.

LIMA, Peru, July 12.—(AP)—Drunken mobs coursed through the streets of Trujillo looting and murdering during the period when the city was in control of the rebels, dispatches reaching here today said.

Trujillo was seized Friday and was recaptured by loyal troops yesterday. Reports reaching here were that among the men slain by the revolutionaries during the time they ruled the city were Lieut. Col. Julio Silva Caceda and Maj. Oscar Perez Salmon. Two persons who came here by airplane said the streets were filled with bodies and there was evidence of looting and burning.

"Infuriated drunken crowds ransacked and murdered like the vandal barbarians of past ages," said the newspaper El Comercio.

Rebels Ambush Troops.

When a detachment of the Seventh Infantry, which was loyal to the government, neared Trujillo they were ambushed by a large force of rebels and there was several hours of fighting with heavy losses on both sides.

Red Cross workers were busy today trying to clear away the signs of one of the bitterest battles in the history of Peruvian revolts. The government used land, sea and air forces to recapture the city.

Brazil Woos Rebel Forces.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 12.—(AP)—Peace overtures were made to rebels holding the state of Sao Paulo tonight as provisional President Getulio Vargas ordered seven states of Brazil to lay down their arms. Gen. Francisco Flores da Cunha, interventor [governor] of Rio Grande do Sul, with other leaders sent a message to Francisco Morato and Altino Arantes, leaders of the Paulist "frente unica" party, proposing an armistice to permit peace negotiations.

Although Rio Grande Do Sul was officially reported quiet, private dispatches said the rebels had captured three towns in that state.

Loyal troops in Rio Grande do Sul were mobilized and awaiting marching orders.

MRS. HENRY T. SMITH.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Helen Menken, stage star, and Dr. Henry Templeton Smith, optologist, were married late today by Mayor Walker in the Hotel Ambassador suite of A. C. Blumenthal, motion picture magnate, and Mrs. Blumenthal.

There will be no honeymoon for the present as the bride is rehearsing for a new play.

Dilley Loses Life Guard Job for Hitting Boy, 16

George E. Dilley, Northwestern university football player, was dismissed as a life guard on Evanston beaches yesterday by Mayor Charles H. Bartlett on recommendation of the Evanston city council. Dilley is charged with knocking down Robert H. Moore, 16 years old, 1903 Colfax street, Evanston, when the boy reappeared on a beach after Dilley had ordered him away for a supposed infraction of rules. A charge of assault and battery will be heard Saturday. Mayor Bartlett appointed William J. McCurdy, another Northwestern student, to take Dilley's place.

JOBLESS RELIEF BY NATION FAILS IN NEW ZEALAND

The More Aid Offered the Greater the Demand.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, July 12.—In spite of the fact that she is still a country with much development work to be done and that even with present depressed prices her resources remain rich New Zealand today is evidence of the fact that government is powerless to solve the question of absorbing jobless labor.

More than 50,000 jobless out of a population of about 1,500,000 are registered here, and those figures do not include women or youths under 21. The total of the workless population here is 80,000 to 90,000, statisticians say, which equals nearly one in four of the employable citizens and 6 per cent of the total inhabitants of this island state. This estimate places the jobless at a figure equivalent to the total membership of all trade unions in the country, which is one of the most highly organized in the world from the point of view of unionism.

First Relief Local.

Faced with the problem of placing this army of jobless at work government has been unable to find a solution. Early tactics in dealing with the workless horde were to allow county and municipal bodies to hand out relief and to subsidize this work dollar for dollar. This was a grand opportunity for the local authorities and they seized it to carry out all kinds of improvements from roads to playgrounds.

The weakness of this system was early apparent. Instead of works being financed out of taxation or from profits earned by municipal and state enterprises the buck was passed to the foreign lender and both central and local governments paid for these undertakings with the proceeds of London loans.

The direct result of this in the long run was only to swell the total of taxation needed to meet interest on local and national debts and to show the legislators that their improvement schemes were being too dearly bought.

But while it lasted it was great work for the governments. Some idea of the size of the undertakings may be gained from the fact that the central government was borrowing up to 25 million dollars yearly to provide work for a jobless total then registered at only 5,000, while the city of Wellington alone raised loans by bond issues totaling 4½ million dollars in three years.

Topping this came bitter opposition from the labor unions which charged that the local bodies were disorganizing the labor market by having public works schemes carried out at wage rates below the scale set for industry by the Arbitration court which regulated levels of pay. To this criticism the government ultimately yielded and wage rates were fixed at $3.95 a day.

Immediate result of this was that farm workers, most of whom received only about $7 or $8 a week, flocked to the "relief works" as they were called and that large numbers of seasonal workers who earned high pay checks during the busy season found easy employment when they were laid off.

Millions Spent; Jobless Increase.

Millions of dollars were paid in the two years that this system lasted and the total registered jobless bounded up to levels unheard of before. As soon as the government gave way on the issue of wage levels for relief workers the figures climbed so high that Sidney G. Smith, then minister of labor, suppressed the total of the registrations, declaring that to publish it would "unnecessarily undermine public confidence." Yet at that time registrations were only 13,000!

With prospects of alarming growth in the totals of relief loans, the government determined that the country must pay its way and legislation was passed imposing taxation at the rate of 1¼ cents in the dollar on every worker, a special board being created to administer this fund and the government subsidising it at the rate of dollar for dollar from general taxation funds. This proved insufficient to meet outlay and within four months the money was exhausted.

Quadruple Tax Rate.

Work had to be slackened on all undertakings launched by the new board and special advances were made by the treasury in order to carry the board over until the house of representatives could meet and vote higher taxation levels. This last step was taken three months ago and at present every wage earner, man or woman, pays taxation for unemployment relief at the rate of 5 cents on the dollar.

Every increase in funds available has been followed by a rise in the total of jobless registrations. And today though the income from taxation stands at more than $15,000,000 yearly, the money available is still too little for the purpose for which it is needed. Until the last increase in the rate of tax only 30,000 of the 50,000 registered workless were receiving anything like full relief. The rest were proving a burden to the community in a new way—through the demands they made on the social welfare departments of the hospitals which here are financed partly by government grants and partly by local tax rates.

This new problem was serious two years ago; today it is desperate.

Even today the government still finds its funds too small to cope with expected growth of the figures of the workless. Despite the 100 per cent increase in money available due to the latest taxation [taxation being stepped up 100 per cent, but income of the unemployment board being lessened by ending of the government dollar for dollar subsidy] administrators fear to extend aid to the full extent of their powers. Back of all their policy lies the fear of continued growth of the jobless army which is expected to swell materially this winter.

It was due to this policy of caution and a cut in the rate of pay made to workless men placed on relief jobs with at the same time a demand for longer hours of work that led to the riots in Auckland and Wellington and the wrecking of areas in the center of both cities.

Clearly there emerges from New Zealand's experience the basic fact that increase in aid always brings with it growth in the number to whom aid must be given. The unemployment curve's leap upward is striking at the moments when parliament has liberalised provisions for payment to workless. And this is behind refusal to pay the "dole" to jobless—to extend relief without demanding work in return. Apart from the demoralizing effect upon workless men of any such policy as this government fears that once they concede the right to relief without work thousands of factory workers and others employed now only for part of their time will find it more profitable to "go on the dole" than to stay in their jobs.

BELGIAN FACTORY WORKERS JOIN MINING STRIKE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, July 12.—While thousands of troops and police still maintained a state of siege in the turbulent Charleroi mining area today to prevent disorders by striking miners, there were indications that a general walkout throughout Belgium is imminent.

Workers in a number of factories in the Flanders textile region, especially at Liege, laid down their tools. Scattered disturbances pointed to widespread disorders in that section unless the patrol area is extended. Two sons of a factory owner were severely beaten by a mob. Several similar disorders were reported. A score of Reds were arrested in the Liege district.

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . .

KEEP COOL WITH HILLS BROS COFFEE—iced

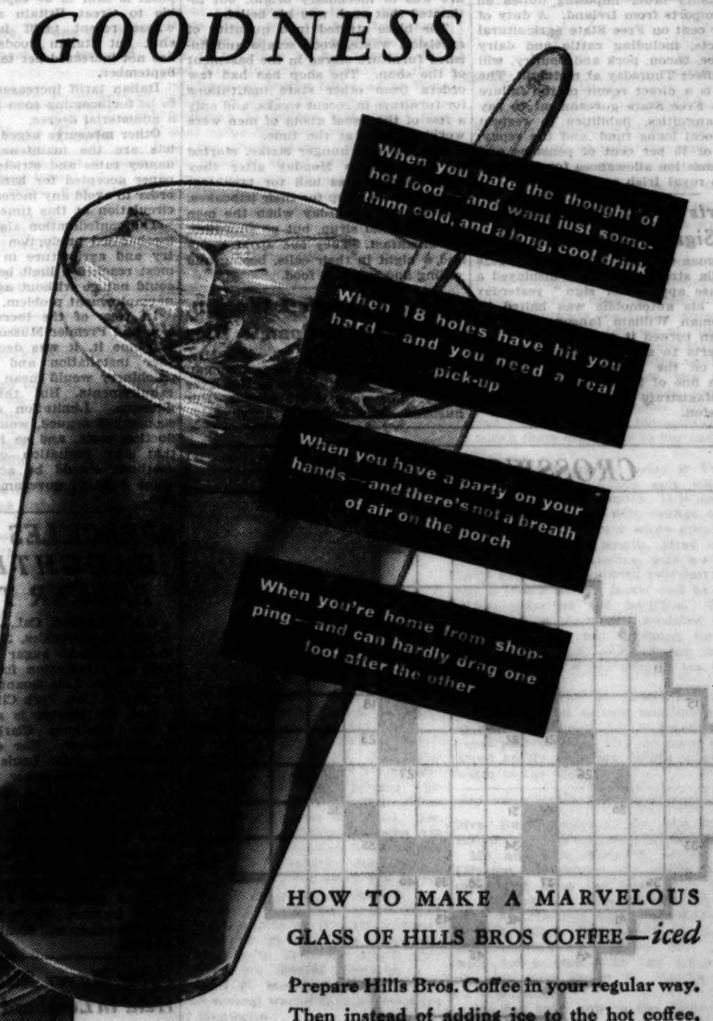
TO A FROSTY GOODNESS

THERE'S one drink that never fails to freshen a thirsty throat . . . to bolster you up and help you through a hard, hot day. It's coffee . . . Hills Bros. Coffee . . . iced to a cheering, chilling goodness.

What relief and new life you find, as you drink it slowly—savoring each sip—making the most of that rich, exquisite flavor! For here is coffee at the height of flavor perfection. Coffee with the taste that Nature intends—developed by perfect roasting!

Lift a golden-brown, icy glass to your lips and meet a taste and refreshment you never dreamed of. What a drink it is! For Hills Bros.' exclusive Controlled Roasting process roasts the coffee-berries to flavor-perfection . . . never under-roasts nor over-roasts.

If you're a Hills Bros. Coffee fan—if you know its pleasant, entrancing flavor hot—you can imagine what a delicious summer drink it makes cold. But really—you'll never know how delightful iced coffee can be, until you actually taste Hills Bros. Order some today, by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.



When you hate the thought of hot food—and want just something cold, and a long, cool drink
When 18 holes have hit you hard—and you need a real pick-up
When you have a party on your hands—and there's not a breath of air on the porch
When you're home from shopping—and can hardly drag one foot after the other

HOW TO MAKE A MARVELOUS GLASS OF HILLS BROS COFFEE—iced

Prepare Hills Bros. Coffee in your regular way. Then instead of adding ice to the hot coffee, cool it in a pitcher or covered dish—and chill in your refrigerator. Do not add ice until ready to serve—for ice dilutes the delightful, bracing flavor. Serve with cream, if desired, and sweeten to taste.

The vacuum process of packing coffee is the only method that fully preserves coffee freshness—the air is removed from the can and kept out. It was originated by Hills Bros. over thirty years ago. There is no magic about a vacuum can—it will not make poor coffee good, but it will keep good coffee fresh. No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it

FRESH ALWAYS!

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 12.—While Dublin discussed the possibilities of future Anglo-Irish relations as a result of the airing of Gov. Gen. James McNeill's dispute with President Eamon de Valera, the Irish Free State's dail today devoted long hours to the bill expunging the oath of allegiance to the British crown from the constitution. By a vote of 71 to 61 the dail refused to approve the bill as amended by the senate, which had omitted its vital parts.

As a result the bill will be held up for 18 months when it automatically becomes a law unless a general election takes place in the meantime.

De Valera today charged the opposition with dishonesty. Desmond Fitzgerald, former member of William Cosgrave's government, thereupon shouted: "The president has accused us of dishonesty. I accuse him of being a liar."

"Give and Take" Argument.

De Valera then said that if he had been guilty of a disorderly statement he would withdraw it. He emphasized that the country has no use for British interference. Challenged by Deputy McDermott to "do the decent thing and get out of the empire," the president replied he hoped "they could soon do that decent thing."

De Valera said he did not think that Britain would suffer a wrong if the Free State declared its independence immediately.

The republican president's newspaper today charged McNeill, representative of King George, with disobedience of the order of the executive council not to publish correspondence between him and De Valera over the shabby treatment McNeill claims he suffered at the hands of De Valera's ministers. The newspaper suggested that he be dismissed. This raises a difficulty, as there is no machinery for the dismissal of the governor general unless for a misdemeanor.

It is believed here that if De Valera asked King George to remove McNeill the king probably would refuse. None can envisage De Valera approaching the king for anything because his whole policy is to disregard the British ruler.

Britain Slaps on Food Tariff.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12.—The British government sprung a surprise on President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State tonight by issuing a treasury order imposing duties on food imports from Ireland. A duty of 20 per cent on Free State agricultural products, including cattle and dairy produce, bacon, pork and poultry, will take effect Thursday at midnight. The order is a direct result of the failure of the Free State government to pay land annuities, liabilities in respect to a local loans fund, and the repayment of 75 per cent of pensions and compensation allowances for members of the royal Irish constabulary.

STATEVLLE PRISON GUARDS BATTLE FIRE IN FURNITURE SHOP

Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, broke out in the basement of the furniture shop in Stateville penitentiary yesterday and sent dense clouds of smoke rolling over the prison walls. City firemen from Joliet were summoned to assist the prison department in extinguishing the blaze, which did damage estimated at $3,000.

Two thousand convicts were working in the prison yard and in other shops when the fire was discovered. Guards lined them up and marched them back to their cells without disorder.

Col. Frank D. Whipp, state director of prisons, ordered the twenty convicts who work in the furniture shop taken to isolated cells to be questioned. He declined to say definitely that the fire was of incendiary origin, but intimated that such was his belief.

The blaze started in a quantity of excelsior, waste, wood scraps and finished furniture stored in the basement of the shop. The shop has had few orders from other state institutions for furniture in recent weeks, and only a few of the usual quota of men were working there at the time.

Meanwhile a hunger strike, started by 200 convicts Monday after they went to the mess hall for breakfast and found no sirup for their pancakes, was quelled yesterday when the men got bread and sirup, but no pancakes, for breakfast. They had spent a day and a night in their cells, booing and yelling and refusing food.

ITALY TO RAISE TARIFF AS "WAR" GROWS IN EUROPE

New Measure Aimed at British, Germans.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 12.—An extension of Europe's tariff warfare loomed today when the board of directors of the Fascist Confederation of Industry petitioned the government to pass immediate legislation raising the customs duties on both industrial and agricultural products imported into Italy.

The measure is urged as a necessary retaliatory action to tariff obstacles placed before Italian goods in other European countries. The proposal is said to be especially applicable to Great Britain and Germany, whose recent tariff increases have shut out Italian goods, while Italy has not increased her tariffs since last September.

Italian tariff increases are expected to be forthcoming soon in the form of a ministerial decree.

Other measures urged by industrialists are the maintenance of cheap money rates and stricter selection of paper accepted for bank discount, in order to avoid any increase in the note circulation at this time.

The confederation also decided that mechanized production in both industry and agriculture in Italy had almost reached a limit beyond which it could not go without aggravating the unemployment problem.

In view of the increasing population and Premier Mussolini's policy to continue it, it was decided that further installation and perfection of machinery would mean reduced labor requirements. But this presents a dilemma. Limitation of machinery, economists argued, would add to production costs, and so it was decided that any limitation of mechanized methods should be accompanied by some form of government compensation.

JOHN RINGLING RECOVERING TO REFUTE RUMORS

No 'Amputation'; Last of Noted Brothers.

The statement was made with the utmost emphasis by a representative of Mr. Gumperts this afternoon that Mr. Ringling is now out of danger, that he suffered no amputation of his legs, as was earlier reported, and that he would soon be able to resume the conduct of his business enterprises.

Earlier in the day a bulletin sent out by a news service had conveyed the statement that the attack of blood poisoning suffered by the circus man had made necessary the amputation of both legs and that Mr. Ringling remained critically ill. It was stated also that the fact of his illness had been kept a closely guarded secret from his associates.

That there has been any amputation was promptly denied at the office of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey, and at the Half Moon hotel.

Mr. Ringling is generally regarded as the possessor of one of the largest fortunes in the United States.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"I Cover the Waterfront," by Max Miller [Dutton].

PLAYS and films about the drama of the lives of newspaper reporters have educated the public to believe them a hard living, hard drinking, hard swearing crowd, usually on the make and rarely with the ordinary pulse beat so far as the sentiments are concerned.

A novel of a few years ago, "Young Man of Manhattan," by Katherine Brush, did a good turn toward the whole reporting fraternity by making its hero a human and extremely charming being. But that reporter was a great and famous special writer and there was nothing of the unsung Milton about him.

MAX MILLER.

A type as yet unexploited is the sort of ploddy, gentle, and simple soul who runs his little beat conscientiously and turns in his perfectly adequate stories and would honestly rather be rushing out to do his daily stint and pounding his battered portable than be running the government or—since that comparison has suffered somewhat from the obvious disadvantages which the late years have shown it to have—being president of the International Hunger Appeasers' corporation at a salary of two million a year [and while man lives he must eat, so his job might not be in danger, even though he might feel called upon to give himself a ten per cent cut in wages].

To the casual onlooker, perhaps, being a reporter on a waterfront wouldn't seem like one of the jobs that nourish the soul. Even to most reporters it wouldn't, for it is not the top rung of newspaper reporting by any means, but to Max Miller, who lives in San Diego and whose job it is to cover its waterfront, the days and nights that he spends at it are actually spiritually nourishing.

Not that the book which has come out of his experiences, "I Cover the Waterfront," is sloppily sentimental about the joys of reporting or about life. But in its simple, quiet pages the reader actually does feel the thrill of the job which has kept the author at it for six years, a job which is usually merely a stepping stone to a more impressive berth. Max Miller LIKES being a waterfront reporter. He likes everything about the life which he leads as one. He likes everything about life!

And that is the real secret of the charm of "I Cover the Waterfront." It is so seldom that readers find a book in which a real zest for living shines through the pages. Mr. Miller has it, and without any false pretenses he shares it with his readers.

The chapters of the book are casual incidents which his six years have pigeonholed in his mind, few of them really dramatic, some of them concerned with people—like Herbert Hoover and "Slim" Lindbergh and Gertrude Ederle, with whom he swam the local channel, and the owners of little fishing or excursion boats that ply the harbor.

Sometimes fish and elephant seals and such come alive in the pages. Sometimes they merely adorn the decks of boats on which he has chosen to spend a few hours. Once he had a strange experience with a baby seal that crawled up on the sand beside him one night and lay against him for warmth. He tells of fishing for abalone, wearing two bathing suits not only to protect himself but so that he could have a way of carrying home the shells he pried off the rocks—between the two bathing suits as he swam to shore.

There are narratives, sometimes humorous, sometimes ironic, of the men and women he met on the waterfront, life stories in the confines of two pages. None of the sketches is more than a few pages long. No story or incident is recorded with anything but the barest details and the most disarming simplicity. The book is little more than the most fragile of documents. But when it is finished the reader has a real sense of having touched hands with some one to whom life is naïvely adventure, definitely worth the living. The author is twenty-eight years old, he says, and he writes as if he were ninety-eight, which is a characteristic of modern youth, believing itself past by thirty.

There is real charm in the unspoiled pen of Max Miller. Elmer Davis, who before he became a famous novelist, was himself a newspaper reporter, recommended "I Cover the Waterfront" to me. Somebody in New York had told him about it, and, he said, the town was getting excited over it, and everybody was asking everybody else "Who is Max Miller?"

Set Breakfast Tables with Bright Colors

New Linens Are Delight to Housewives.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THE gentleman who invented Sunday is never more thankfully considered than by the hordes of dieteers and hungry late sleepers who gleefully stuff themselves with Sabbath servings of crisp good food on those blissful, unhurried Sunday mornings that are reserved for such feasts.

While your weekly breakfasts are snatches of anything that you can grab, and usually swallowed with one eye on the clock or a time table, the Sunday combination of lunch and breakfast is something to live for and groan comfortably about through the weekdays to follow.

This leisurely feast is rapidly becoming an institution. Your reputation as a hostess can be made or marred by one performance, and while the food does its best to influence the critics, you'd be surprised how your reputation shines because of your table linens and other above the board equipment.

You may serve only three things . . . crisp, crunchy stuff in endless quantities and be a howling success because your table is alive with color . . . napkins, runners, cloths, and plate doilies of gloom dispelling plaids and checks and squares because distracting color combinations bloom riotously on the best breakfast tables.

Try butter yellow runners and napkins, a set that gives the appearance of hand woven miniature rugs with deep end fringes and contrasting borders of bright green and red stripes. With this glory set out your red glass goblets and matching butter plates.

If that color combination doesn't cause impressive comment, try a pale lavender set of the new sheer organdy breakfast sets, appliqued with white designs, use the same red glassware or, to be different, try out some of the new milk glass and watch the eyes of even your most hungry guest open and glisten with envy.

If you like squares and checks, why not get the biggest squares you can find . . . breakfast cloths and napkins made of huge squared linens, black and white, orange and green, red and bright blue, yellow and white and enough other unusual combinations to satisfy the most color mad soul that ever went shopping.

Stripes in some blazing, almost sizzling combinations will do wonders on a gray and rainy morning, especially if you set your table with the brightest colored china you possess. One particularly good looking striped set consisting of generously sized napkins and full size cloth is striped with jade green, russet brown and vermilion . . . black and white china could be used with breath taking effect with this.

Another trick fashion wise breakfast and luncheon givers are trying is dyeing luncheon and breakfast sets a certain tint or shade to particularly contrast or harmonize with a favorite array of dishes. Organdy lends itself most effectively to this stunt . . . and if you know your dyes and shades and color effects you can have things that cannot be duplicated.

Fringed breakfast sets of natural colored thin linen are ideal with peasant china and squat hobnailed glassware . . . amusing little designs are embroidered with varicolored threads in cross stitch . . . lazy donkeys pulling a cart of vegetables decorate one such set. Another shows a family of black cats sunning themselves in smug contentment. Others have colonial nosegays decorating each corner. Many other similar colorful motifs feature these fashionable treasures for the 1932 linen supplies.

Hampden to Tour All U. S. in Three Plays Next Season

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Walter Hampden is preparing for the longest tour he has undertaken since he became an actor-manager. Appearing in "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Caponsacchi" and "Hamlet," he plans a season of thirty-five weeks, traveling from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and from Duluth, Minn., to San Antonio, Tex.

Mr. Hampden has been led to arrange this activity by the success of his recent extensive tour in "Cyrano." He will show the Rostand comedy in cities east of the Mississippi river, which have never seen it, and will play also several return engagements, ending these "Cyrano" performances with a four weeks' run in New York, beginning the night after Christmas.

Following this Broadway appearance Mr. Hampden will start for the Pacific coast via the southern route, presenting "Hamlet" and "Caponsacchi" in cities where he played during the last season. "Caponsacchi" is a dramatization of Robert Browning's long poem, "The Ring and the Book."

Hot Weather Brings Pleas for Free Ice

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

That touch of real summer temperature yesterday, succeeding the cool days, got no such welcome in the poor districts as it did along the lake front. It was a social success on the north side, the south side, and the far west side, but in those areas neighboring the loop, where the poor are clustered along treeless streets and with doorways directly off the pavements, it brought shudders of foreboding. And a deluge of calls for ice.

Free ice, to keep a baby's bottle of milk sweet and cool; to protect the sorry array of vegetables and what few meats the tenement folk can manage on their severely curtailed incomes. By telephone and by mail the appeals for ice to fill their tubs and dishpans reached a new high yesterday, and social service workers gasped their dismay.

"Just seven and one-half cents per day will provide ice for one of these needy families—but so many of them are pleading for it that the prospect is appalling," declared Edwin C. Jones, United Charities official, discussing the problem. "We purchase ice through THE TRIBUNE free ice fund and one or two other sources for 50 cents per hundred pounds. Twenty-five pounds lasts a family two days, usually. So that for 15 cents they can be assured comfort and healthy food for that long.

"One family is nothing to handle. But just consider that the United Charities alone is caring for 18,000 families, as of our May records, and that there are a total of 127,379 cases on the books of the joint agencies comprising the Emergency Relief forces. Then you get an idea of the need there is and of the applications for ice we are receiving."

Contributions reaching this newspaper yesterday to help out in this philanthropy were:

J. C. C., H. M. D. [$5 each]	$ 10.00
Edwin J. Smith	3.00
Mrs. Helen Chase, Anonymous [$1 each]	2.00
Total	$ 15.00
Previously acknowledged	$245.60
Grand total	$260.60

Checks for the Free Ice fund and to send mothers and children out to Camp Algonquin for two weeks may be mailed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE at Tribune Tower. They will be listed as received.

Battle Against Evil at Home Is Plea to Baptist Convention

San Francisco, Cal., July 12.—(AP)—The annual convention of the Northern Baptist church opened here today with more than 4,000 delegates present.

"If Christianity in America and Europe is to be of greater service in Asia and Africa and the world generally in the struggle against slavery, the drink evil and the opium curse, it is incumbent that we recognize these same evils in our own nation and harness the forces of our churches for the battle at home," Mattison B. Jones of Los Angeles, convention president, said.

Jones lashed out against "an unregenerated church membership," saying "our people have erected gorgeous and commodious church edifices, and we ask to what extent do they minister to people when empty pews are the rule?"

What to Do About Debuts Is Big Question in Society These Days

Some Girls Decide Against Coming Out Parties While Parents of Others Plan Simple Affairs.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NO GROUP is more troubled these days about the proper policy to adopt than the mothers and fathers of the girls who are on the debutante list for the coming season. Most of them feel that they cannot afford anything but the most simple sort of entertaining, and many of them are of the opinion that it is bad taste even to attempt that, but others hold to the theory that every one should go ahead and do everything as much in the ordinary way as possible.

Debut parties, even the most unpretentious ones, mean employment for caterers, florists, dressmakers, and so on and so forth, and so, luckily for those people as well as for the sweet young things who are ready to make their formal bows to society, quite a number of families are going ahead with plans for their daughters' debuts, but no one is planning anything elaborate or expensive.

A few of the girls whose names have been on the tentative list but who are not going to be debutantes next fall are making their own choice. And, although their fathers and mothers have assured them that they need not be influenced in making their decisions by financial reasons, some of the girls prefer not to spend even one winter "doing society."

Eleanor Page, the daughter of the Edwin Pages of Astor street, who had planned to have her formal coming out party at the Exmoor club in Highland Park, where the Pages lived before they moved to town, has given up that idea and thinks just now that she won't have any sort of debut. Eleanor received most of her education in Italy and Paris and is as accomplished as she is pretty, which is saying quite a lot!

Harriet Tilden of Winnetka, the Averill Tildens' attractive daughter, has decided not to let her parents give her the tea they had planned for Sept. 16, and instead of staying at home from Vassar, where she will be a junior next year, the first semester, as she had planned, she will return to college for the fall term. The dinner that Harriet's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Poor, had planned to give after the tea, is "in the air" and they may or may not give it.

Mary Morris to Have Tea.

Another attractive Winnetka girl, Mary Louise Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Thomas Morris, is scheduled to make her debut at a tea on Sept. 16, too, but she is thinking some of postponing the momentous occasion a year, for she is entering Sarah Lawrence college this fall and so will not be here to enjoy much of the debutante festivities.

Pretty Honore White, who is taking a leave of absence from Vassar for the first semester next year in order to stay at home and make her debut and take part in all the good times there will be for the young "debbies," is to be presented at a tea to be given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Fenton, at their residence on Indian Hill road in Winnetka on Sept. 17. Honore was a freshman at college last year. She is at home this summer enjoying life on the north shore. Next summer she hopes to spend abroad.

Two attractive Chicago girls, Betty Brawley and Edna Doering, are planning to have their debut teas on Armistice day, although their plans, like every one's else, may be changed any day. Betty, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Brawley of Lake Shore drive, is spending the summer in Chicago except for a vacation in the north woods with her parents early in August. She was graduated from the Wheeler school a year ago and took a postgraduate course there last winter, which was interrupted, however, by a serious illness in February.

Edna is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering Jr. of Astor street, her sister and brother, Nancy and Edmund J. Doering II., and Mrs. Doering's mother, Mrs. Edward T. Jeffery, in Massachusetts, not far from Boston, where they have a house until September.

James Thornes to Show Garden.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, who are planning to leave for their annual summer visit to their Santa Barbara residence the middle of next week, are listed to open their beautiful garden there on July 29 on one of the summer garden tours arranged by the Santa Barbara Garden club.

Mrs. Agnes Patten Wilder, a former Chicagoan, was one of those who showed their gardens last Friday and next Friday the Ralph Ishams' gorgeous garden at Pompeiian Court will be among those exhibited. Dr. and Mrs. I. D. Kelley Jr., who are occupying the Clarence B. Mitchells' residence, La Bergerie, during their absence abroad, will show the lovely garden of that estate on Aug. 5.

The young Ward Thornes are spending the summer at Hyannisport and the Niblack Thornes are occupying the cottage in Wheaton which they have had for several summers.

Harold F. McCormick has left to spend several weeks in Santa Barbara and Montecito.

Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne have taken the Jack Gage Starks' house in Santa Barbara for the balance of the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Stark, she was Edith Leonard Glass of Chicago, have moved into a studio apartment in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson of Winnetka and her daughter, Mrs. Raymond Hardenbergh of Fort Hamilton, N. Y., have gone west to spend the remainder of the summer at Mrs. Johnson's Santa Barbara house. Mrs. Hardenbergh's son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Frahels R. Seitz, will visit Mrs. Johnson in August.

Mr. and Mrs. William Prescott Hunt and Mrs. Hunt's sister, Miss Marie Rozet, have leased a house at 855 Hill road, Winnetka, and will move out shortly for the balance of the summer.

Mrs. Philip B. Maher and the two little Mahers are leaving on Friday to spend the rest of the summer at Desbarats. Mr. Maher, who is recuperating from a tonsillectomy, will join his family a bit later for his summer vacation.

More News of Summer Plans.

Mrs. Robert Burns, the former Sarane Otis, and tiny Sarane Burns left Monday evening to join Mr. Burns at their home in Los Angeles, stopping in Minneapolis for a brief visit en route. They have been visiting Mrs. Burns' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Otis of Lincoln Park West.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Berry Jr. [Marion Blatchford] are being congratulated upon the birth of a son at the Evanston hospital last Thursday. Mrs. Berry's sister, Mrs. Ludlow Fowler [Elsie Blatchford] of New York, arrived the day the baby was born for a visit with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Blatchford, in Winnetka.

Another baby now in the Evanston hospital who has well known parents and grandparents is tiny Helen Dawes Sherman, born on July 4, to Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Sherman [Jean Dawes]. Little Helen is named for her grandmother, Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes.

The Daweses are expecting Mr Dawes' namesake, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dawes, to come to Evanston for a visit late this month or early next month with his sister, Harriett, and his mother and father, from Mobile. Miss Margaret Dawes is planning a trip to Banff and Lake Louise next month, but Miss Helen Dawes expects to spend all summer in Evanston.

Frock of Printed Organdy Boasts Matching Jacket

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris styles for superhot days include the suit of printed organdy. This crisp, transparent material makes a jacket that one can bear even on the most torrid days and the Parisienne likes a wrap over her summer frocks when she steps out on the street. It pleases her sense of propriety and the transparent organdy jacket over a matching, sleeveless organdy frock has wormed its way into fashion because of this.

Vera Borea, that clever young Italian aristocrat who started making clothes in Paris about a year ago, was the first to bring out the organdy jacket ensemble. La Borea knows how to design clothes for high temperatures, of which there are plenty in her native land.

The ensemble shown today is Vera Borea's printed organdy suit which smart women like so much. It is made of flowered organdy with orange and dull green flowers on a white ground. The jacket is hip length, fitted and flared below the waistline, with a scalloped hem. It closes with two buttons like a man's tuxedo jacket and has a small collar at the neckline. The sleeves, with their very modified leg o' mutton tops, are charming for a suit of this kind, and are the only frivolous touch Borea permits the ensemble.

The frock under the jacket is a simple one, with a square neckline and without any sleeves. It is actually a gored princesse line and the gores are flared gently from the hipline to give width to the skirt.

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who surrounded the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralising influence of Doria. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doria meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Pierce comes across Gold standing forward on the boat, alone, at dark. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Doria asks Gold to dine with her. They are joined by Pierce and Dorrance.

INSTALLMENT XV.

A SLAP IN THE FACE.

Gold Franklyn was a dancer by temperament. As was Doria; only that to temperament Doria added early years of intensive training. She and Pierce made a spectacular couple, and a number of people were watching them.

Gold was enjoying the waltz with Dorrance, who danced with the easy buoyancy of many rather fat men. Yet she could not keep her eyes from the other couple—Doria so languorous in Barney Pierce's arms. There was a flame in her, as there had been when he had come up to them before dinner, over cocktails, and had blankly ignored their first unconventional meeting. She was glad—glad that in that talk in the dusk she had spoken out honestly her resentment of his cynicism. He was a hard man, a bitter man, without the grace of kind thoughts, kind beliefs.

The waltz faded out, and with the fading last notes she rested, dreamily, in Dorrance's arms for a moment, entranced out of her hot thoughts against Pierce.

"Now the encore," said Dorrance, holding her.

The floor was fuller now. One lost sight of people in particular as they emerged and submerged again in what Dorrance said was "a surprising crowd for the first night out." And suddenly he caught her scarlet coat very deftly from the chair back as they passed their forsaken table, and, near an exit, muttered: "Let's slip out now."

They seemed to be, almost at once, out upon the deserted deck.

"That was clever of us, wasn't it?" said Dorrance, as if pleased with himself, and she could not help liking this ruddy, cheerful man. "You know,

I had an idea that your little lady and Pierce would rather be by themselves whenever it can be managed, and you say you think I'm right?"

"Well, this is all right, then. Sure you haven't any duties?"

"I can't think of anything just now."

"He'll be glad to take 'em over, anyway, I'd bet," the cheerful man chuckled. "He'll do a lot of your fetching and carrying this trip because he'll enjoy it. You're lucky, aren't you?"

"If you only knew how lucky!"

"Well, tell me, dear girl." He looked at her sidelong, bending his head very near hers, as if the better to catch her reply.

He tucked his hand through her arm.

"O, no," she said, as if dismissing the past, "it is the future that intrigues me."

"Well, tell me what the future is going to be."

"Work, I hope, as soon as I get to New York. Mrs. Hathaway is going to Havana, but won't want me then. And, though she will pay my fare back, I'd rather stay."

"Havana, eh? So am I—longing for the sunshine! That is, if I can put through the business I'm hoping to put through on this trip. Pierce is staying in New York, isn't he?"

"I haven't an idea."

"And don't care, either, sez she!" He pressed her arm, drawing closer; they trod the deck buoyantly. "If the business doesn't go through here I stay in New York. Because in that case, where his lordship is, there am I also."

"His lordship?"

"Barney Pierce. A hell of a fellow, isn't he? 'I don't know and don't care,' sez she!" He pressed her arm. "Well, dear girl, I don't want you to care, either. In this foursome it seems that you and I will have to pair a good deal. D'you mind that?"

"No!" she said, not minding anything so that she trod this springing deck, with the night wind making her hair, as Dorrance had suggested it would, a thicket of tossed gold, and the stars bright above her.

"I want to keep close to Pierce this trip. You can help me with a little tact, can't you? I think you can, because I think you're a remarkable girl."

She laughed: "I'll help you without flattery!"

"You're getting cheerier and cheerier. That's the tone! At dinner I thought you found things a bit of a strain. Well, let's see if there isn't something I might do to help you in return. What's all this about Golden Hair's 'work' in New York?"

"I want it."

"Work. What are you? Mannequin?"

"Stenographer."

"Are you efficient?"

"Yes."

"I believe you. Well, my dear girl, I will certainly try to do something about it. Let me help. Have you anywhere to go when you first land?"

"I must get a very cheap place."

"Must you?" He thought quickly and said: "The Tree Hotel, down Washington Square way, is little and quiet and cheap. You ought to know where you're going, because the immigration fellows may ask you—though they don't trouble the first class much, and you'll count as being with Mrs Hathaway. You both count as transients if she doesn't live over there. She'll take you ashore. If everything's not easy you can quote my Madison avenue address. I want to help you. Now, listen. You know nothing of the ropes?"

"No. I just seized the chance to get my fare paid over."

"You have a letter of reference?" She told him that Doria had easily arranged that.

"You are required to have fifty dollars in your pocket on landing."

She made an exclamation of dismay.

"I shall have two guineas fee from Mrs. Hathaway—that's practically all."

"Lend!"

"Give.

"No."

"Now, now! Fifty dollars is nothing. But 'lend' if you like. Not that they'll search you! You say you've got fifty and they take your word. Still, you can't go even to the Tree Hotel without that much. You've got to take it."

"You're awfully good. Why are you being so good to me?"

He laughed and checked their walk, looking rapidly up and down the deck. But except for themselves it was deserted.

"Because you're such a sweet thing." In another moment he had kissed her.

"Now," she said, angry with herself, her high heart sinking at the realization that she had probably estranged from her this genuine and worthwhile offer of help, "now you're not going to help me."

"On the contrary," Dorrance contradicted, still holding her elbows and looking down into her face, "I want to help you all the more. I believe you're wise enough to know there's nothing a man likes better than to have a pretty girl smack his head for him."

They walked again for quite a long while under the stars, until presently Dorrance said:

"You know, perhaps we ought to go in. I want to keep an eye on Pierce and get him along to the smokeroom when your lady has retired."

"What's the time?"

"Ten-thirty," he said, pulling out the thinnest of platinum [illegible] watches. "You go in. I want to stay out a little while alone."

"All right. And remember—I'm to help you. You don't worry. You can bet there are wickeder fellows than me aboard this very ship."

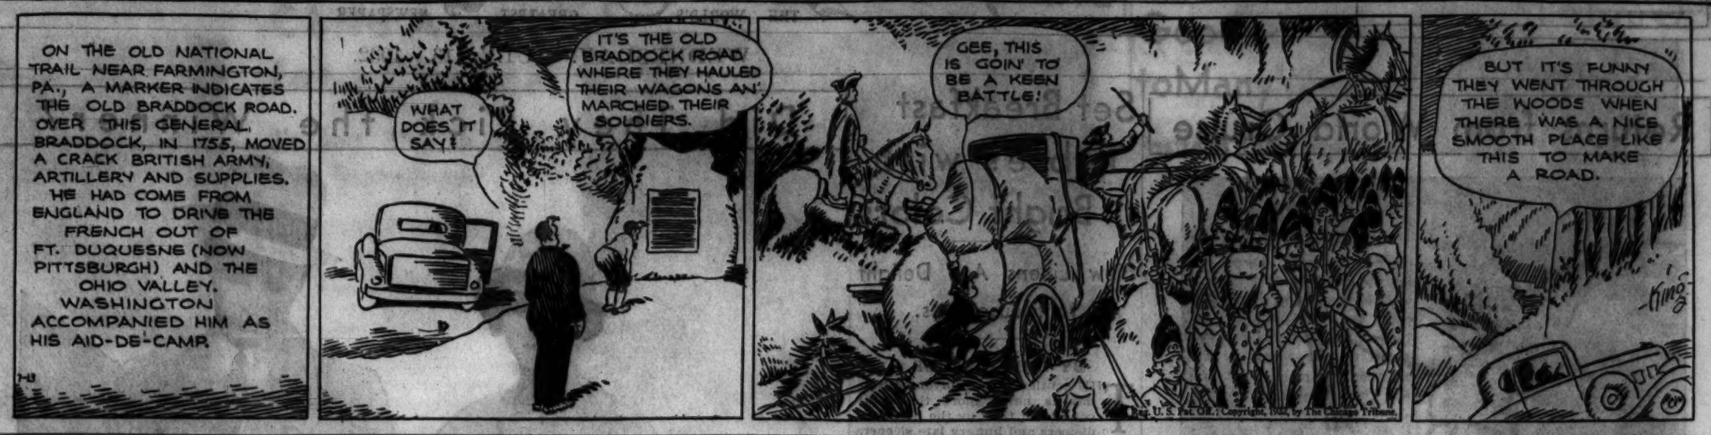
GASOLINE ALLEY—OVER THE HILLS AND FAR AWAY



ON THE OLD NATIONAL TRAIL NEAR FARMINGTON, PA., A MARKER INDICATES THE OLD BRADDOCK ROAD. OVER THIS GENERAL BRADDOCK, IN 1755, MOVED A CRACK BRITISH ARMY, ARTILLERY AND SUPPLIES. HE HAD COME FROM ENGLAND TO DRIVE THE FRENCH OUT OF FT. DUQUESNE (NOW PITTSBURGH) AND THE OHIO VALLEY. WASHINGTON ACCOMPANIED HIM AS HIS AID-DE-CAMP.
WHAT DOES IT SAY!
IT'S THE OLD BRADDOCK ROAD WHERE THEY HAULED THEIR WAGONS AN' MARCHED THEIR SOLDIERS.
GEE, THIS IS GOIN' TO BE A KEEN BATTLE!
BUT IT'S FUNNY THEY WENT THROUGH THE WOODS WHEN THERE WAS A NICE SMOOTH PLACE LIKE THIS TO MAKE A ROAD.

Screen Players Turn to Pens for Livelihood

Leading Women Find New Jobs as Writers.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 12.—With fewer acting jobs than there used to be, and many of them being snatched by girls from the New York stage, a number of Hollywood's leading women are turning up in the new capacity of screen writers.

Patsy Ruth Miller and Vivian Duncan for instance. Miss Miller, who is in semi-retirement as an actress, found the key to writing success as a collaborator with George Green, and is writing for Columbia.

Vivian ["Eva"] Duncan has collaborated with Nina Wilcox Putnam to turn out a story called "Champagne" about a continental traveling circus. It's a story with a musical theme.

Not only is Clara Bow going to come back as an actress, but she plans to invest some of her savings and help write and direct a film, this autumn, which is intended to star her husband, Rex Bell.

Jacqueline Logan, who was transferred to the British film area two year ago, still takes film leads there, but Jackie also has been doing some directorial and considerable writing work in London.

In taking the step from the acting to the writing field, these girls are only doing what Jeanie MacPherson, Bess Meredyth, Dorothy Davenport and Maude Fulton, all well known actresses originally, did successfully during the silent film days.

Incidentally, Radio Pictures anticipates a career as an actress for Dorothy Wilson, stenographer from Minneapolis and Chicago, who recently was promoted from her typewriter in one of the offices in that studio, to a leading part in the studio's "Fraternity House." The film is now about completed, with satisfaction felt in Miss Wilson's work, as well as that of Arlene Judge, Eric Linden and Dick Cromwell.

Gordon Westcott, an adventurous young Mormon from Utah who turned Irish Republican while studying at Trinity college in Dublin, and had to leave Ireland in a hurry, is one of the latest additions to Paramount's roll of contract players. Westcott got his film job in an odd way. Dinna Wynward, another new comer, had an invitation to go to the Paramount studio and make a screen test. She induced Westcott to go with her to act as her foil in the test. When it was made, Paramount hired the boy and not the girl.

Miss Wynward was at once picked up by MGM on the strength of another screen test. Westcott has been cast for "Hot Saturday" with Richard Arlen and Carole Lombard after doing minor rôles in a number of films to get camerawise.

Robert Mortgomery, who tried the game of polo for several months, and then sold his ponies, says: "No polo player ought to feel slighted at being left out of the handicaps. Playing the game on horseback is handicap enough."

Tay Garnett directing "Okay, U. S. A." with Lew Ayres as the know-it-all broadcaster, quit his station behind the camera to play the part of detective through several scenes this week when the actor originally cast as the "dick" failed to show up.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Four year old Billy Eugene came into the house holding his arm and crying.

"Why, Billy; what's the trouble?" I asked him. "Big boys don't cry!"

"But, mother," he answered, "there was a bumble bee sleeping in the oats; I woke him up and then he bit me!" P. F. F.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 12.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover entertained today a party of newspaper women who "cover" the social news of the White House and President's family, at luncheon at the Rapidian camp, the party leaving at 9:30 this morning in White House cars, having luncheon at 1 and returning here tonight at 8 o'clock. The party was composed strictly of women who write social news.

Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn entertained at dinner this evening for their house guests Comte and Comtesse de Janze of Paris, the latter formerly Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Ryan of this city. After the dinner the comte showed the motion pictures he took on a recent hunting trip in Africa. The comte and comtesse will sail for their home on the 20th.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis had a week-end party at their country place, Rippon Lodge, on the Potomac, a short distance south of Pohick church. The company included Senator and Mrs. James E. Watson and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bryan of Bedford, Ind., and Chicago; and Mr. and Mrs. Brice Clagett, the latter formerly Miss Sally McAdoo, daughter of the former secretary of the treasury, who has recovered from an injury in a taxicab accident last week.

Rippon Lodge, built in 1725, is the home of Mr. Ellis' forebears in this country, named after the ancestral home in England, the Blackburns. One of the daughters of one of the early Blackburns married one of George Washington's brothers and George Washington was a frequent visitor at Rippon, where one room has always been known as the Washington room. Many generations of Blackburns and some Washingtons are in the graveyard on the place, which has a splendid view of the Potomac toward Mount Vernon.

Sally Certain Guests Will Enjoy Party

Thurston's Tricks Baffle Own Company.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Do you think after seeing Howard Thurston, the great necromancer, at our party at the Uptown theater a week from Thursday, you'll be able to perform a few feats of magic yourself? Perhaps, if you watch very closely, you'll have no trouble pulling rabbits out of a hat or making objects disappear or performing other bits of sleight of hand.

I imagine, however, that it won't be easy to figure out Mr. Thurston's tricks. He does many of them now that even the most observing members of his company are mystified by, so I am sure we'll be baffled, too. And what a collection of tricks he has this season! Sawing a woman in half, producing magic fountains that spring up out of space, filling the air with flocks of birds, and causing people and objects to disappear with a few words of hocus-pocus is are some of this unusual man's feats. Won't it be fun to see them all?

You'll see them, too, as well as a very complete program including Jimmie Cagney's prizefight picture, "Winner Take All," if you write me a winning letter. All the letters must be in tomorrow, you know, so if you haven't written yours you had better get to work at it immediately. Remember, I shall select as my guests the hundred boys and girls who sound the most anxious to attend this party, the ones who would get the greatest pleasure out of it.

In writing do not ask for an invitation for any one except yourself. Each boy and girl must compose his or her own letter. Have it include your age and address it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Charles E. Hughes Jr., son of Chief Justice Hughes of the United States Supreme court, accompanied by Mrs. Hughes, Charles E. Hughes III., Henry Stuart Hughes, Miss Helen Hughes, and Miss Marjory Bruce, is sailing for Europe tomorrow night on the Albert Ballin.

Miss Edna L. Brokaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Brokaw, returned to the Chimneys, their country home at East Norwich, L. I., after spending the week-end visiting her sister, Mrs. James Russell Lowell, the former Miss Julia E. Brokaw, at Bridgeport, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hale Harkness are at Brioni, off the coast of Italy. They expect to travel later on the continent, before returning in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard S. Van Rensselaer have taken a cottage near Windom in the Catskills for the season.

Mrs. Henry Herman Harjes and her sons, Charles B., Henry Herman, and John F. Harjes, returned to the Hotel Pierre from Glen Cove, L. I., where they were the guests of Pierpont Morgan.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty have returned from Florida after having taken a party of friends on a sailfishing cruise in southern waters.

Symphony Concert.

A luncheon and card party to benefit the Woman's Symphony orchestra of Chicago will be held today at the Evanston Golf club. Mrs. Gerhardt F. Meyne and Mrs. Louis F. Anderson are co-chairmen of arrangements.

To be cook to a hungry family 365 days in the year is, you'll admit, something of a job. But when somebody in that family is ill, either temporarily or in prolonged invalidism, where the mother-cook has to become also a nurse-dietitian, then homemaking takes on real proportions, and the woman who can keep the well, the sick and the getting-well members all happily and wisely fed deserves a medal of achievement.

In most cases of illness proper food is of vastly greater importance than medicine, but since inactivity and a general upset condition often run away with the appetite it is our job not only to serve the right foods but to serve them in such a way that appetites will be lured out of hiding in spite of themselves.

Delicate, enticing flavors count. But those flavors will never be fully appreciated—may not even be sampled—if the foods are not exquisitely delightful to the eye, and the whole meal served with a distinction and charm that make it truly a moment to be anticipated with thrills.

A quick glance at a well planned tray for a getting-well meal shows these highlights. First of all, the quintessence of crisp, cool cleanness. The napkin and tray cloth, white or gayly figured, are newly laundered and spotless. The silver, glasses, and china are resplendently shiny. What's more, they're "company" dishes. For if ever there's a time when something new, unusual, and ultra-fine is appreciated, it's when we're climbing back to health. Tinted glasses and bright china add sparkle and pleasure if used with good taste and planned to harmonize with each other and the food to be served in them.

Unless the convalescent is too unsteady to make such a touch wise, a long stemmed water glass or sherbet will give a relieving, uneven horizon line to the tray. Flowers, just one or two placed in a well balanced bud vase or laid beside the plate, furnish a chance for endless variety and fairly compel a return to normalcy. For the child—and most of us are children when sick—some simple novelty, a clipped poem, a china piglet, or a gay trinket to celebrate the day or a date, will do wonders in adding zest to the job of getting well.

No one likes to eat alone, even when well. Let the well family members take turn about sitting with the convalescent and chatting over happenings of the outside world to add pleasure to meal times.

Then the foods to be served need a deal of thought. First and foremost, have things bubbling, steaming hot, or frostily cold. Lukewarm dishes are most discouraging to temperamental appetites. Season well but not too highly, as overseasoning will kill the taste for the more mild foods. Shun fried foods, rich desserts, heavy cream, and many sweets. You will find convalescent appetites respond much better to tart foods, fruits, salads, and fruit juices.

If starches are forbidden, thicken the soups and sauces with egg yolks—excellent strength builders in themselves. Garnish foods crisply—but be sure the foods taste as good as they look. Serve small portions of food with second helpings available. A heaped plate is a distressing sight to all but the almost-well convalescent.

Milk, included in almost all diets whether liquid or general, may become wearisome if poured down unassisted by other flavors. Interesting variations may be supplied by fruit and milk shakes, intriguingly flavored egg nogs, spiced milk whips, and chilled cocoa drinks.

CREAM BROTH.

This recipe of our grandmothers is still a favorite with many convalescents who are ordered to pad out their sharp places with a little more fat. To prepare it mix two cups of boiling water and one-half cup of sweet cream with one teaspoon of butter. Add salt and pepper to taste. Thicken slightly in a double boiler with cornstarch dissolved in a little cold milk. Remove from the fire and whip in one beaten egg. Serve at once.

Swimming Is Ideal Sport for Summer Season

But SWIM; Don't Bask on the Beach.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Are you scared to death of the water? Does contact with one overpowering wave make you a beach tenant for the rest of the season?

The beach is all right, so far as it goes. But it does not go so far as swimming when it comes to body building, reducing, complexion rejuvenating, and so on. I know many women have a dread of the water out of all proportion to the damage it could do, close to the shore. If they, as beginners or amateur swimmers, got out beyond their depth and a big wave threatened to swallow them up the fear would have some basis. But I'm talking about the women who go panicky once the water reaches knee level. They just cant brave it further.

The consequence is that the season is spent and little health savings are added to the year's fund. You know that the swimming season can bolster you up for months and months. If you SWIM. Not if you just languish under a beach umbrella and look pretty, or sit a few steps beyond the umbrella and coax a tan into being. You have to learn to SWIM. And then SWIM!

You can rid yourself of this water fear, as I have known it to be done, by taking a standing position in the water almost to shoulder depth. Take a deep breath and then duck the head under water with eyes open and there exhale. Don't wait until you come up to exhale. Do it with the head submerged. Do this little exercise until fear of the water is gone. It's a simple trick and invariably works.

When you come up for air after having found water isn't so fearsome a thing, after all, try pushing forward with your legs. Kick them up and down and swing the arms down and to the rear. Better do this pushing forward in the direction of the shore so there'll always be the assurance of being able to get your feet on the ground. Do just a few strokes and then stand. Go back and do a few more, ducking first, exhaling under water, and then pushing out with the arms, legs kicking up and down.

It's no trick to learn to swim once you've overcome the water fear. And swimming simply cannot be over pressagented for developing grace and health. It is the ideal feminine sport.

Singer Appeals for Clothes.

"I used to be a radio singer but it's been so long since I had a job I am almost destitute. I had to stop work because I lost my sight but I have had an operation and am slowly regaining it. All the money I had is gone and I have no family to appeal to. I could get work singing at weddings and entertainments now and then but I have no decent clothing to wear. What I have is literally in rags. Do you think you could get me a suit, size 50, a pair of shoes size 9, sox size 11, and shirts size 17? I am short, about five feet five.

"S. Y."

With a singing entertainment now and then this young man would be able to get along fairly well. It would be pretty difficult to get one, though, in the clothing he is wearing now. Can you help him out?

Predicts Popularity for "Boston 400" Fox Trot

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The four million will be dancing the "Boston 400" this fall, say teachers of the light fantastic, if they follow the trend at Cambridge, New Haven and Princeton. Miss Lucille Stoddard, chairman of the Dancing Teachers' congress now in session, explained today that the "Boston 400" is a conversative fox trot, danced in open fashion and interspersed with two walking steps every four to six beats. It has already found popularity in college ballrooms.

Try Letting Child Alone for a Change

It's Best Way to Curb Disobedience.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Now if you should happen to have a chance to ask a question of a person who had had a great deal of experience with children in behavior clinics, what would be one that you would think interesting?

A woman doctor who has untangled many snarls in childish behavior was asked what was one important cause of friction between parents and children, especially over disobedience. And her answer makes you think of the old saw, "Constant dripping wears away the stone." She answered, "We find that many of these parents who complain of disobedience are at their children all the time. They are constantly giving them directions.

"They do so much of this that after a while what they tell their children to do or not to do makes no impression. Or it arouses the child's resistance or antagonism."

Translate it into adult terms. Did you ever have anybody "peck" at you. Did you ever live with any one who kept an eye on everything you did, and had something to say about almost every move you made? Did you ever feel like exploding into, "O, let me alone!" to these domestic backseat drivers?

In some such way a child feels. Only he he doesn't understand himself or the situation well enough to yell, "Let me alo-o-ne!" And if he did, he'd probably be spanked. So he unconsciously sets up barriers of resistance, such as disobedience, motherdeafness, defiance, or sulkiness. And the more he does so, the more his parents keep at him—a very vicious circle indeed.

If you're having trouble with obedience, be thrifty with your directions. Be economical with your blame. Save your "don'ts," and you "do's," too, for the behavior that actually demands it. And give time for the act to be accomplished.

Try letting your child alone. Give him or her a little peace.

Restrains Them from Foolish Acts.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"In our group there is a very pretty woman of 29 of whom all the other women are scandalously jealous. They gossip terribly about her. She is married but her husband doesn't seem to mind if she goes out riding with other men. It seems to me that if he doesn't mind he is the only one to be considered.

"Certainly, it doesn't seem as if it is the neighbors' business. I can't understand why women can't be more broadminded about other women. They go on in the same catty, gossipy old way their grandmothers did.

"SABINA."

You, too, "Sabina!" You're taking a certain relish out of exposing the pretty woman's peccadillos, or I'm no judge of female behavior. Theoretically, you and I, "Sabina," and all the other women who speak our broadminded piece in public, privately rise little above the sisters who expose a fulsome delight in a "choice morsel." We all have the taste. Regrettable or not, it's part of our human cussedness.

But there's this to be said for prying into the goings on of Mrs. So-and-So and munching them over with our bridge playmates. We do denote a perfectly human interest in said neighbor. And that's a darned sight more human and natural than trying to keep the conversational tones on a toplofty level. If Mrs. So-and-So felt the onus of our chattering tongues, she'd take precaution to hide her peccadillos. Or, if she chooses to put her reputation in her neighbor's hands—that's her lookout! Why should the gossips try to save the woman's reputation when she isn't careful about it herself?

I'm not convinced that gossip, unless it is vicious, slander-mongering, isn't a fairly good thing for society. Fear of what people will say keeps many a woman tied to her knitting. As has been said by some wise person: "Gossip is a good policeman!"

It has done more to keep people on the straight and narrow path than the alleged broadmindedness you offer, "Sabina." If you'll notice, the broadminded claim invariably is presented with a toothsome bit of gossip. I like mine straight, I'm afraid.

Good Growing Weather Also Helps Insects

BY PAUL POTTER.

Nature is handing out favor to both gardeners and insect and disease pests this summer through offering almost ideal growing weather and at the same time creating conditions which favor the growth and increase of bacteria and insects feeding upon these same garden crops.

In vegetable patches and acreages in Chicago and Cook county various sized plantings of tomatoes promise a bountiful crop. Some trouble is being experienced in and near some of the suburbs in the southern portion of Cook county from early blight or blossom wilt, but the trouble is not considered serious enough to affect the hopes of a good harvest.

Sweet corn is in peril, however, for it is being revisited by what is known as Stewart's disease, a fungus infection which leaves no alternative but plowing up the rows and possibly planting in some fairly quick maturing crop of another vegetable. It has not been a menace since 1919, growers report, but this year is attacking many plantings. The chief hope is in the development of varieties resistant to this infection.

A good harvest of cucumbers for pickles is in prospect. Warm weather with sufficient rainfall has caused the hills of plants to force growth and their condition is good.

The insect called thrip is busy on onions. Gardeners who have been watching for the appearance of this insect, however, have been busy spraying their onions with nicotine solution.

Collins Receives High Praise for College Recital

Edward Collins, one of Chicago's eminent pianists, a pedagogue and a composer of repute, played a program in one of the Chicago Musical college summer recitals at the Punch & Judy theater yesterday morning. It is a pleasure to hear a performance from this artist, not only for the sure fingered certainty of his performance, but because he has well defined and usually persuasive ideas about interpretation.

Possibly it was too much of a task for him, as it has been for every other pianist, to bring complete conviction that the last two movements of the Beethoven Sonata, opus 28, were the equal of the first two in musical inspiration, but there could be no doubt about the first two being uncommonly stirring in his performance.

Elsewhere on his program he paid deference to the older composers, Bach, Mozart, and Paderewski's Caprice in the style of Scarlatti, also to the moderns, Debussy, Bartok, John Alden Carpenter, with a little Chopin and Liszt's paraphrase of the "Rigoletto" quartet for good measure. His audience found him an inspiring performer and gave audible evidence thereof. E. M.

BRITISH SAIL FOR CANADA TODAY ON 'SHIP OF HOPE'

Baldwin Leads Delegates to Imperial Conference.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 12. — In England they call the S. S. Empress of Britain, Britain's newest and finest liner, the "ship of hope." The liner sails tomorrow for Quebec carrying delegates to the imperial economic conference at Ottawa which opens July 21.

No vessel ever sailing from Britain carried a more important passenger list. Seven members of the British cabinet headed by Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council and deputy prime minister, and about 100 government experts and minor ministers will be aboard.

There are also delegations from India, south Africa, and Rhodesia. They will be joined at Ottawa by delegates from Australia, New Zealand, northern Ireland, and the Irish Free state.

Young MacDonald Publicity Man.

Two members of the northern Ireland delegation—H. M. Pollock, minister of finance, and W. D. Scott, minister of commerce—will sail on the Empress of Britain with the British delegates. Malcolm MacDonald, son of the prime minister, and undersecretary for dominions, will handle the publicity for the British delegation. He won his spurs for this post at the London naval conference.

The ship's passengers will be increased by more than 100 representatives of trade and economic bodies. They will act as observers, advisers, and lobbyists.

The Indian delegation is headed by Sir Atul Chatterjee, former high commissioner for India in London; south Africa by N. C. Havenga, minister of finance, and Rhodesia by H. U. Moffat, premier.

The Empress of Britain has been dubbed the "ship of hope" because Britain hopes the conference will succeed in diverting almost one-third of the world's trade to Great Britain and her dominions to the disadvantage of the United States, Argentina, and other foreign countries now holding a large share of the British commonwealth trade.

Interests Are Conflicting.

That there is little more than hope in the opinion of many well informed observers here. The interests of the various dominions are so conflicting it is difficult to see how their accommodation can be attained. Ireland, New Zealand, and Australia are competing to feed Britain. South Africa and Australia are competing for the British market for fruit and wine. Canada and Australia for wheat, and Canada and Britain on manufactured goods to the rest of the empire and so on.

So far efforts to secure imperial advantages have failed. A few weeks ago a delegation from the Lancashire textile industry returned from Canada without having secured from this dominion any concessions which would benefit Lancashire at the expense of Canada's infant cotton industry. Similarly, efforts made to secure a monopoly in the Canadian market for British iron and steel manufactured metal goods were without success. Canada assumed the attitude that she was willing to give Britain preference over other natons, but was not willing to lower her tariff enough to let British goods in at all unless they were of a kind not manufactured in Canada.

In addition to economic questions, the important constitutional issue of the Irish Free state's relation to the empire must be faced. President Eamon de Valera of the Free state, in trying to abolish the oath of allegiance to the crown and withhold payments on land annuities due Britain, has raised a question of good faith.

Farmers See Market Peril in British Economic Parley

BY PAUL POTTER.

American farmers will be interested bystanders, very much interested in the outcome of the economic conference which opens next week in Ottawa, Canada, and at which efforts will be made by leaders of the British empire to mold the British nations and dominions into an economic unit.

Announcement that the farmers of Canada and Australia would try to obtain the lucrative English market for their products, in exchange for preferred use of products from the British Isles, was the cause of this attention on the part of American producers.

Farm Markets Threatened.

Officers of farm organizations expressed the view that while the situation was fraught with danger for American farm products, they could do little except through regular governmental channels of international trade negotiations.

Next to Germany, the United Kingdom is the largest foreign buyer of American cotton, lard, wheat, flour and leaf tobacco. With other countries in the empire, England also buys most of our corn exports and large amounts of butter, bacon, apples, rice, poultry and beef products.

Export figures for the years 1927 to 1930, show that England has been taking an average of 1,823,000 bales of cotton, one-fifth of our yearly exports. Canada has been the largest foreign buyer of corn, taking an average of 8,866,000 bushels, or 41 per cent of American exports.

Heavy Buyers of Flour.

The United Kingdom, these figures disclose, has been buying nearly one-fourth of all American flour exports, and an average of 29 million bushels of wheat yearly, 23.3 per cent of the total wheat exports for the period studied.

Tobacco farmers also have found the United Kingdom their best foreign buyer of leaf tobacco. Forty-four eign buyer of leaf tobacco.

The tobacco, rice, cotton and fruit farmers were seen yesterday as less fearful of the new economic order the British seek to create than are the corn belt, dairy and grain farmers.

SHOWS EXPENSES OF GOVERNMENT CAN BE REDUCED

Urbana, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—An even greater saving than for the year ended June 30, when $471,700 had been effected is expected the coming year at the University of Illinois. The budget will be presented to the trustees by President Harry Woodburn Chase at the trustees monthly meeting in Chicago tomorrow.

According to Prof. Lloyd Morey, comptroller, every department of the university contributed to the saving last year by turning back a substantial part of its annual allotment unused. As a result, the university has been able to refrain from calling upon the state for a substantial portion of the appropriation made to it by the last general assembly.

Considerable other business is expected to come before the board of trustees at its meeting tomorrow.

GREET GERMAN BOXERS MONDAY WITH PARADE, SONG

CHORUS OF 100 TO BID WELCOME TO 8 CHAMPIONS

Berlin Writer Here

SIEGFRIED HEINZ REICHMANN, sports writer for the Ullstein Press News Service of Berlin, arrived in Chicago last night to cover the international bouts between Germany and the United States. He will write a series of articles on the German team for The Tribune.

BY ARCH WARD.

The first words the amateur boxing champions of Germany will hear when they arrive in Chicago will be "Sei gegrüsst in unserer Mitte," the German song of welcome.

The song will be sung by a chorus of 100 from the United German Singing society under the direction of Adolph Gill, president of the Teutonia Singing society.

Plans for the reception of the German team at the Union station Monday were completed last night at the Germania club by representatives of several German organizations. They also discussed arrangements for the public reception to be given the visiting fighters at the Germania club the night of July 23.

The Berlin boxers, accompanied by Frederich Burger, president of the German Boxing association, will arrive on the Golden Arrow of the Pennsylvania railroad at 1 p. m., daylight savings time, Monday. The song of welcome will be sung while they are leaving the train.

Will Visit Mayor.

Immediately after their arrival they will be escorted to Mayor Cermak's office for Chicago's official greeting. The parade will form in Canal street between Jackson and Adams. A special detail of police has been assigned by Capt. John Stege of the Des Plaines street district to clear this block of traffic.

The procession will be headed by color bearers carrying flags of the United States and Germany. They will be followed by a band, soldiers from the Medill post of the American Legion, German war veterans, officials' cars and members of the reception committee. The fighters in open cars with banners telling who they are and why they are here will bring up the rear.

The parade will move east on Jackson to La Salle and north on La Salle to the mayor's office in the city hall.

Train at Germania Club.

After the reception at the city hall the team will be taken to the Ambassador hotel, where they will be quartered during their stay in Chicago. They will train and eat at the Germania club, within walking distance of the hotel.

The following invitation to all German organizations to participate in the welcome to the guests from the fatherland was issued last night by R. G. Scheunemann, president of the Germania club, and H. C. Hintzpeter, president of the German club:

"Neither the German club nor the Germania club wishes to convey the impression that we alone are sponsoring the reception to the German boxers. We have taken the initiative because we have clubhouse facilities, but we are hopeful that all of Chicago's German groups will coöperate to make this an event the boys from Germany will remember the rest of their lives."

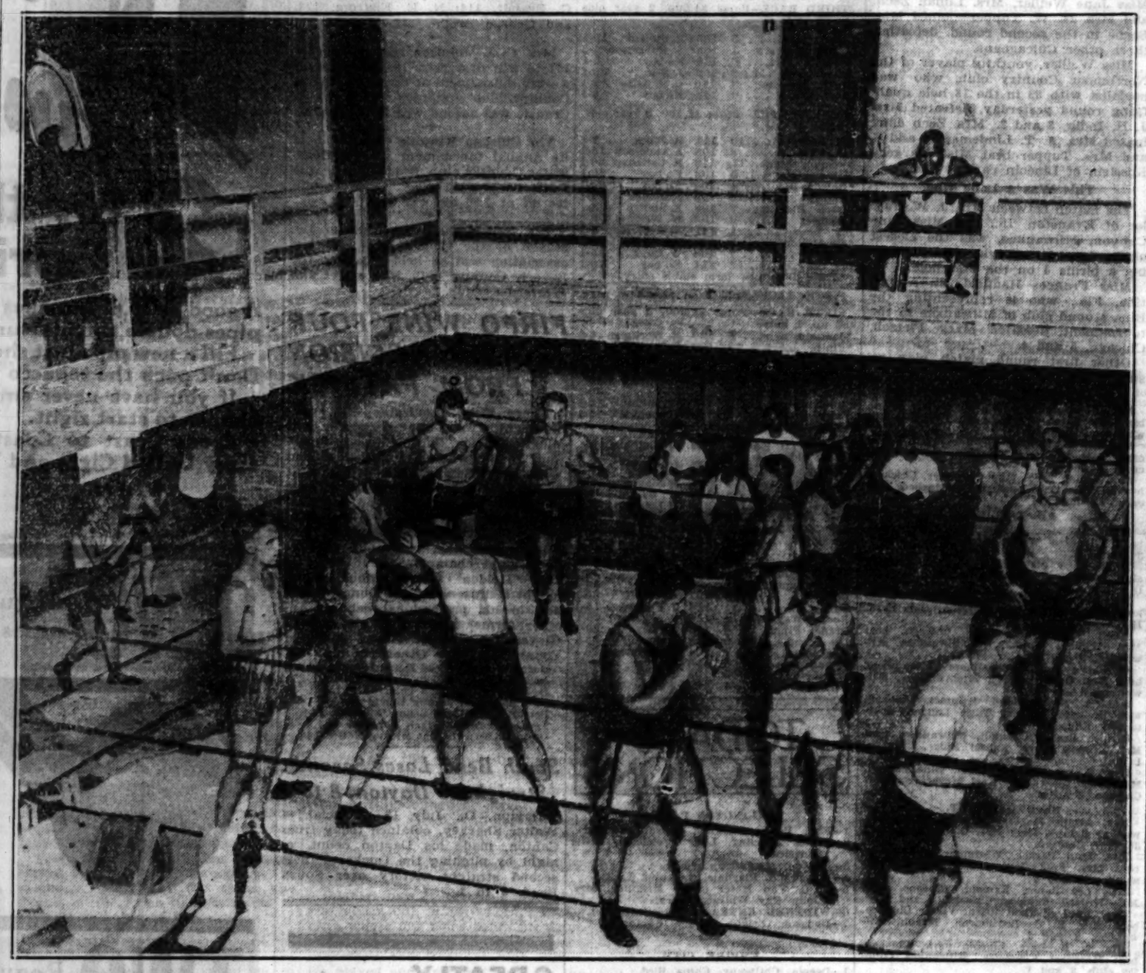
HARD WORK STARTS, BUT GOLDEN GLOVERS LIKE IT



Chicagoland boys who are assembled at Lake Wawasee, Ind., Golden Gloves training headquarters, indulge in their first strenuous conditioning chores for the international bouts with Germany's amateur champions at Soldiers' field on July 26. Shadow boxing was the first course, but before long they will slug it out among themselves for the right to single out a German opponent. (TRIBUNE Photos.)

International Victory No. 31 Goal of German Lightweight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD THE EUROPA, July 12.—When Franz Kartz steps into the Soldiers' field ring at Chicago on July 26 to meet the Golden Gloves lightweight champion he will be making his 31st start in international competition.

Kartz, 25 year old electrical worker from Oberhausen, a small town in Thuringia, has had 150 fights, 132 of which he won. He was defeated only ten times and boxed eight draws. Thirty of his victories have been scored against boxers from other nations.

Franz is determined to make his 31st start a victory and is one of the most diligent workers among the eight German champions who today put in their second day of training on the decks of the Europa, which is carrying them to America.

In the last international competition, the Four Nations tourney, he represented the German Amateur Sport association and was victorious in eight lightweight bouts.

Possessed of a teasing, aggravating style and better than average lightweight punch, Kartz strangely enough attributes his selection on the German team more to a hamburger sandwich and a stein of beer than to his own prowess.

Foe Fills Up on Beer.

In the elimination tourney, in which the champions for the American trip were selected, Kartz won his first bout by a knockout over one, Kurt Leitner. The outstanding challenger for Kartz's title whipped Heinrich Schmedes of Dortmund. This challenger, Hans Donner, then was to meet Kartz for the title and Chicago trip.

So elated and hungry had Donner become in the course of his success, however, that he went out and ate a hamburger sandwich and drank a stein of beer just before he was to box Kartz. At the weighing in he was one pound overweight, and the man he vanquished, Schmedes, was ordered to take his place. Kartz beat Schmedes easily, but he admits he had his misgivings about Donner up until the hamburger and beer entered into the scheme.

No Reason for Apprehension.

Kartz's apprehension was ill founded, boxing experts say. He would have whipped Donner as convincingly as he did Schmedes, they claim. His unorthodox style that has become known to amateur boxing fans in all the principal sporting centers of the fatherland is almost unfathomable, some boxing men declare.

He is the German counterpart to the American's Jimmy Slattery. He hops about the ring much after the fashion of a man jumping the rope, his arms dangling at his sides and his body erect. He punches with either hand. On the offensive, he lowers his head, assumes a crouch and wades in swinging both hands in short straight punches to the body and head much like Jack Kid Berg, the Britisher.

Kartz's start in boxing was due more to environment than a hankering for pugilistic acclaim.

"Right opposite my home," he explained, "there is a boxing club. The pleasure and excitement this club provided for other boys made me envious. I begged my mother to let me join but she refused. Consistent pleading, though, soon overcame her and she reluctantly gave her permission. I don't think she is sorry, now that I'm going to have a chance to see America and box in Chicago.

"Mother is over 60 years old," he continued. "I arranged with neighbors to take care of her while I am away. I am her only child and her only support; it made it a little difficult to leave under those circumstances, but my boss at the electric shop is going to call occasionally to see that everything is all right. I guess it will be—if I win in Chicago."

WOOD TAKES THE AIR! SETS MARK IN OWN PLANE

The former record was 1 hour and 46 minutes.

Favored by tail winds, Vance Breese, Wood's pilot, was at the controls when the trip started, but Wood handled the white cabin ship part of the way.

Two Year Olds Seek $24,875 Purse Today

Some of the mystery which has surrounded the 2 year old turf championship will be swept aside in the running of the Hyde Park stakes at Arlington Park this afternoon.

The stakes, which will have a gross value of $24,875, overnight attracted a field of 16, including most of the important stake winners of the year in America.

Red Whisk, Strideaway, Liqueur, and Mr. Joe will be the hopes of the west. Lined up against them will be most of the great juveniles from the east with Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory, the probable favorite. The field arranged in the order of post positions follows:

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whitney will arrive from New York to see their colt, Crowning Glory, run in the Hyde Park stakes. Sonny Whitney will be here Saturday to see his Top Flight go after the Classic pot of gold. William Woodward, chairman of the Jockey club of New York, will also be on hand for the Classic to cheer for his colt, Faireno.

Even Brave Men Cringe at That Height.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—We are having in the outskirts of New York this week the trials for the women's swimming and diving team which will represent the U. S. A. in the Olympics in California. The scene is a place called Jones' beach at Wantagh, L. I., and the principal attraction is the daring flips of the young ladies who fling themselves off the 33 foot platform.

This is the principal attraction for the same reason that the loop-the-loop used to be the climax of the circus. The reason for that, of course, was that there always seemed to be a fair chance that the management might throw in a serious accident extra for the price of admission.

True, the young ladies who hop off the high platform never are seriously hurt and the witnesses are very glad to be disappointed because, after all, the witnesses are ordinary run-of-the-street-car sort of people with no serious wish to see any pleasant young ladies knocked out of shape before their very eyes. But the high diving is certainly no prettier than the springboard diving from the ten foot level, and yet it is the thrill of the show.

Thirty-three Feet Is a Lot of Feet.

Probably it will be just as well to admit that there is a little bit of accident chaser in most people and thus account for the great fascination for the spectator in the ski jump, the high dive and the Olympic bob run. These things seem impossible, or anyway fatal, until the athletes do them.

Now thirty-three feet does not seem such a great number of feet in a horizontal direction, but when you up-end them over a splash of water and stand on a platform and gaze down, the standard foot stretches to something like ten yards, and you are very glad there is nothing in the law which says that you personally will have to nose off into space and do it.

A nondiving official of the Olympic trials who climbed the tower at Jones' beach to watch the young ladies perform some practice hops became so dizzy, with no rail to keep him from falling off on the watery side of the scaffold, that he got down on his hands and knees, crawled to the ladder, and climbed right down again.

You Must Have Good Ears.

There is an elderly lady of somewhere around 25 or 26 doing high dives off the tower at Jones' beach this week, trying for a place on her fourth Olympic team since 1920. This grandmotherly soul is Helen Meany, who will probably go on and on being an athlete until she is 30, a feminine Jim Thorpe, you might say, or an Eddie Eagan. Mr. Eagan, due to his age, retired from Olympic boxing this year and sat a firm, heavy seat as ballast on the championship bob team at Lake Placid. Miss Meany has withdrawn from the more frisky phases of Olympic swimming into the comparatively inactive specialty of high diving.

However, this high divius is not a sedentary pursuit like Olympic bobbing. It is only comparatively quiet. The high diver takes a bounce off into space and strikes a birdlike posture, with the wings spread, the head up, legs together, and (see the rotogravures), with nothing to do until she is three-quarters of the way down. At that point the hands come up before the head just in time for the plunge, but there is no marker or bell or anything to tell the diver just when to make the shift. The timing has to be done entirely by ear.

They Wear Sponges.

So the girls take a pretty bad beating in practice to perfect their diving and win places on the team. Miss Meany, for instance, has popped herself on the chin with the backs of her hands so many times, due to tiny errors in timing, that she now does her practice with sponges on her hands to cushion the blows. If the hands are just a foot or so too slow

Sox Make Only Eight Errors; Lose, 13 to 12

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—The affliction known as errors broke out violently among the White Sox today and finally got 'em down, 13 to 12, in ten innings. By some boisterous hitting the Chicagoans managed to start off with a seven run lead, but they tossed it off bit by bit. They finally got to the point where it was necessary to blunder so that the Senators could tie the score with two runs in the ninth inning. And then, probably on the theory that they already had worked hard enough for one afternoon, they kicked in the winning run in the tenth with the choicest of a total of eight miscues.

So many Washington pitchers appeared and so little of note was accomplished by them that they hardly deserve mention. But there should have been something better handed out to a couple of old men like Sam Jones and Red Faber. Jones surrendered before the fifth was completed. Only three of seven runs against his record were earned, but that was nothing compared to what Faber suffered from the misdeeds of his supposed pals. Six runs were registered against him and there should have been none.

How Those Boys Can Throw!

One thing that can be said for Faber is that he came close to winning despite the clowning going on behind him. He was so close that he had two men out in the ninth with Bluege on second as the result of a walk. Kuhel then singled to score Bluege and the game would have ended immediately if Hayes hadn't made a bad peg on Myer's grounder. Eventually Kuhel scored the tying tally on Cronin's fluky single to Selph, who had supplanted Sullivan because of the latter's lack of technique.

Then with two out in the tenth, Spencer singled and Crowder bounced to Appling. He threw the ball so far into right field that Spencer dashed all the way home to end the panic.

Away with a Rush.

The first part of the activity that sent the Sox away to a big lead was a run picked up on Seeds' triple and an infield out in the opening inning. A single by Blue set things going in the six run second. Appling also singled and the bases were filled when Kuhel threw late to second on Grube's grounder. Jones singled to drive in two of these fellows. Two more scored on a double by Seeds. Coffman came in as a rescuer and Hayes beat out a bunt. Seeds scored while Sullivan was forcing Hayes. Kress tripled to score Sullivan with the sixth and last run of the inning.

The Senators half started with a clean single by Cronin. Harris bounced toward third, but Sullivan gave the ball such a terrific fight that the official scorer decided it must have been a hit. Jones fanned West, and Grube whipped a bullet-like peg to first to nail Harris, but Blue failed to hold

PAT USES BAT AS WELL AS ARM TO GET REVENGE

Singles and Brings In Deciding Run.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Pat Malone, who lost to the Boston Braves Monday without achieving a single putout before he was hauled from the premises in the first inning, yesterday came right back and remained to become a hero with arm and bat in a 4 to 3 Cub triumph over those same Braves. The victory enabled the Cubs to keep apace with the Pirates, who beat Brooklyn in 12 innings to continue 2½ games ahead of the Chicagoans.

Because of a five hit blast with which the Braves had tied the score with three runs in the sixth, Pat had to do a sight of perspiring, after a brilliant start. But it was the big boy who scored the winning run after singling with two out in the ninth. So his great anguish vanished in thin air and the conquesor strode from the field, again a .500 pitcher, with eight wins and eight losses.

Extra Innings? No, Ladies.

In the final inning Hartnett and Hack had supplied easy outs and the 28,000 celebrants of a special ladies' day were preparing to stick around for extra innings when it was observed that Pat was going to do his own batting.

The Black Knight crossed up the customers and the Braves and surprised Pitcher Cantwell no end when he lined a single to left. Herman then singled to center and Pat, who dislikes hot days more than any one we know, had a nice easy waddle to second base. English then popped a high one to short right, and it fell among Maranville, Shires and Randy Moore, a technical double because it scored Malone from second with the winning run.

A Day of Atonement.

It was nice, of course, that Malone could receive the comfort of scoring the winning run and there was further balm in the fact that he was driven home by Woody English. It was Woody's ambition to play left and center field as well as shortstop that had gummed up the works and permitted the Braves to put on their tying act in the sixth. Then, too, it was Stanley Hack who drove in one of the Cub runs from first base with a triple in the fourth, after which he scored himself. Stan, you may recall, kicked a double play ball in the first inning Monday to hasten Malone's demise.

In many respects the final, which gave the Cubs three out of four in the series and six out of seven against the eastern invaders, was the best game of the series. In the first four innings Malone didn't allow a hit and only one man reached first. And after the blowup in the sixth Malone altered his custom by refusing to remain up in the air, allowing only two singles in the last three innings, both of which were wiped out immediately by two of the Cubs' three double plays.

It's All Even, Braves.

The Braves could curse their luck as to the character of the scratch hit that beat them but could console themselves with the knowledge that it was the same kind of a hit, by Worthington in the sixth, that kept them in the ball game. The Worthington hit was the one that made English chase Cuyler and Stephenson out of their domains and caused great distress at the time.

The Cubs seemed bent on making a run or two in the first inning, for they had the bases full with one out. Herman opened with a single to center and English walked. The pair progressed on Cuyler's sacrifice, then Stephenson was given an intentional pass to fill the bases. Barton fanned and Grimm flied to Worthington.

Hack's Triple Brings 2 Runs.

In the third the Cubs broke through for a run despite the devastating effects of a double play. English singled to right and went to third when Cuyler singled to the same terrain. Stevie tapped into a double play, Maranville to Urbanski to Shires, English scoring. Akers threw out Barton.

Two more runs were added by the

LONG SHOTS, LED BY SPRINGSTEEL, HAVE FIELD DAY

First 3 in Pre-Classic Test Are Outsiders.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The dope on the Classic to be run at Arlington Park Saturday was given a wild, mad stirring up yesterday in the renewal of the famous old Sheridan stakes, which engaged a field of 10 eligibles to the world's richest 3 year old race.

Springsteel, a gray colt from Maryland and a long shot, won the Sheridan by two lengths so handily that he immediately began to loom as a dangerous Classic contender. Rehoboth, another colt from Maryland and a longer shot, charged down the stretch with such courage that he finished second, two lengths back of Springsteel.

Evening Takes a Beating.

And in third place came the ever popular green and white jacket of Edward R. Bradley, carried by his colt, Bubble Up. He was running faster than either of the two leaders and was going so stoutly at the end it is fairly certain he will be sent right back after the Classic prize.

Next to last came the sensational Evening, a 7 to 10 favorite, thoroughly beaten and probably eliminated as far as any part of the wealthy Classic prize is concerned. Others which trailed behind the three long shots were Late Date, Evergold, Fairbypair, Indian Runner, Dark Hope, and Swift and True.

Springsteel ran the mile and a furlong in the good time of 1:50 4-5. He carried 115 pounds, and Jockey J. Burke, who will ride him in the Classic, was in the saddle.

Speaking of Prices.

If you don't think the three horses which finished in the money were long shots just listen to the mutuel figures:

Springsteel paid $26.90 to win, $15.46 to place, and $8.16 to show. Rehoboth's place price was $75.84 and he was at $32.82 to show. And can you imagine a Bradley color bearer, even though it was lightly regarded, Bubble Up, paying $87.02 to show? Well, that's exactly what happened.

If breeding counts for anything Bubble Up has a chance to beat any man's horse, for this fellow is a son of North Star III.-Beaming Beauty and a full brother of Bradley's sensational Bubbling Over. Bubble Up has been improving so rapidly lately most anything can be expected of him.

Fairbypair made a stiff early pace in the early stages of the Sheridan and was closely attended by Springsteel and Evening. They were running in that order when the field started rounding the lower bend.

Then Springsteel moved past Fairbypair so quickly that the Hertz colt seemed to stop almost in his tracks. Evening, struggling to get up into second place, made it when Fairbypair slowed up so suddenly.

Leiter Colors Go On.

Springsteel went on and won as he pleased. But Evening was able to hold second place for just a few strides. Rehoboth was first to step by her. Then Bubble Up, which had been running in next to last position, started his drive. It carried him on by every horse in the field except Springsteel and Rehoboth. He was going in such a determined manner it looked as if he could have caught them if the race had been a bit longer.

The running of the Midsummer purse at a mile brought back memories of the late Joe Leiter. For the same yellow, green and black colors carried to victory by so many of the late wheat king's horses again were unfurled in victory when Prince Hotspur, running as a representative of the Leiter estate, scored a thrilling nose victory over Mrs. John Hertz's Risque.

Prince Hotspur came from far back in the run down the stretch and got up only in the final strides to conquer Risque, which had made the pace from the beginning. It was a thrilling finish and it brought dismay to the favorite players, for Risque had mustered so many backers that she went to the post as an odds on favorite.

Risque Loses Early Lead.

Steffen sent Risque out into a long lead going down the back stretch and she headed into the home stretch two lengths to the good. Then Prince Hotspur began making up ground rapidly and 50 yards from the finish his nose was showing in front. He kept it there and ran the mile in 1:36 3-5. Animessic was also going very fast near the end and he got third money. Prince Hotspur's price in the mutuels was $7.90.

It was the second victory Jockey Silvio Coucci had scored during the afternoon and his fifth in two days at Arlington.

WANER BROTHERS ARE INJURED, BUT PIRATES WIN, 8-7

Substitutes Rout Dodgers in 12th Inning.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 12.—[Special.]—The league leading Pirates proved today in an 8 to 7, twelve inning triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers, that the slugging Waner brothers, Paul and Lloyd, are not indispensable parts of their machine.

Both were forced out with minor injuries early in the afternoon and it was the substitutes, Dave Barbee and Gus Dugas, who finally executed the coup that turned back the Dodgers. One was out when Barbee came up to face Cy Moore in the twelfth and banged a single to right field. Dugas, next in line, tripled to right center on a line and the game was over.

Neither of the Waners is expected to be out of action more than a day or two. Lloyd pulled a ligament in his leg rounding third base in the first and Paul opened an old spike wound in his left hand while batting in the fifth. Score:

Decatur Quits 3 Eye; Solons May Withdraw

Decatur, Ill., July 12.—(AP)—The Decatur member of the Three Eye league tonight withdrew from the circuit, which is one of the oldest class B baseball organizations in the country, and it was expected that Springfield would follow suit, following a league meeting today.

President Claude Barr of the Springfield club, which is operated by a fans' association, informed other club owners that his organization could no longer carry on, and waited only for confirmation from his board of directors.

Springfield started the season without debts, but to date had incurred a deficit of $5,000. Decatur, which opened the season owing $13,000, saw its indebtedness increased to $15,000 and counted it time to fold up.

There will be no games tomorrow, but if Springfield withdraws the circuit will resume operation Thursday with four clubs, Terre Haute, Ind., and Danville, Quincy, and Peoria. A new schedule will be drawn up by President L. J. Wylie of Decatur.

German Ring Champs Due Here Monday

noon. It all came about in this fashion:

Included in the equipment for the Golden Glovers' camp at Lake Wawasee are two man sized sandbags, quite proper for testing and improving the boxers' punches. By unanimous vote these bags have been dubbed Hans and Franz, and Erich and Heinrich. Coach Johnny Behr bought a can of black paint and tagged the dummies appropriately.

This afternoon, when the boys uncorked their best punches against the sandbags, they shot for Hans and Franz, or for Erich and Heinrich.

Boys Start Slowly.

The fighters swung into routine today. Henry Rothier was only one of the crew who was permitted to lounge around instead of hitting the ball. Henry has recovered from a slight touch of fever, but the coaches took no chances and ordered additional rest.

The hotel garage was the center of activity in the afternoon. All went through a session in the ring, although some of these were cut short. Many of the boys have "overboxed," and this week they need rest and other forms of exercise more than ring work.

The Syracuse Lumber company paid the camp a rush call last night to deliver some flooring. This was fastened together this morning, hammer and nails, to furnish a space some 12 by 16 feet so that the boxers might skip the rope and shadow box with proper care for their leg muscles.

Build Skipping Platform.

The floor of the garage is concrete. Not only is it wearing on the boxers' shoes, but it lacks the "give" of a wooden floor, the lack of which in a short time would cause the muscles of the calf to tighten, and eventually might lead to bruises. This danger now has been eliminated.

Curfew has been established at 10 o'clock each night. Shortly after that all the boys are in bed. It is not necessary to add that they are asleep. After several miles of walking, interspersed by wind sprints on the fairways of the golf course in the morning, the afternoon ring and gymnasium exercises, all are fatigued.

The baseball games, played with an extra sized soft ball so that a hard hit drive may not cripple a fighter's fingers, is the important matter of the moment. The 16 boxers, quite providentially, are seated at two tables. This has automatically divided them into two teams of eight each. Coach Behr has agreed to join one of the "nines." In fact, there was no one to keep him off. Jabber Young and your correspondent will toss up tomorrow to determine who will be drafted for the other team. The loser probably will umpire with suggestions from the umpire-in-chief, Harvey [Help Help] Woodruff.

The question of weight, fortunately, doesn't bother the boys, with a few exceptions. Leo Rodak, the team captain, has been told to go along gradually. If it is apparent he can scale 118 pounds for the international bouts with Germany, he will fight in that class. If not, he can advance to the 126 pound division. Rothier, as usual, is overweight.

In the Wake of the News

BOXING AMBITIONS.

LAKE WAWASEE, Ind., July 12.—Why is an amateur boxer? Perhaps the answer is love of the sport, just as boys make sacrifices to play football, baseball, tennis or other pastimes for which they receive no remuneration. As some of these amateurs eventually turn professional, so it is with amateur boxers, although, perhaps, a greater proportion of mitt wielders have that thought once they are started to success.

Let us take one example among the sixteen here in training at Lake Wawasee for the second international Golden Gloves tourney—that against Germany at Soldiers' field on July 26. This is Bill Connell of Streator, newcomer to the squad, who hopes to beat out Charley Neigo and Tony Sutton for the honor of being Chicagoland's middleweight representative against Germany.

Connell, now 22 years old and 5 feet 9½ inches tall, a low-voiced, retiring chap whose low voice belies his determination, was a letter man in football, basketball and track at high school. He played end and half back on the eleven, floor guard on the five and threw the javelin.

Because Pug Daugherty, his high school coach, went to Rice institute, Houston, Tex., Connell enrolled there as a freshman, where he earned his letter on the yearling football and basketball squads. Boxing was not allowed in Texas, but Bill had had amateur experience and liked it. In fact, he liked it so much better than he liked college that he did not return to Rice. For the last two years he has engaged in amateur boxing in his leisure time.

Connell competed in the Streator Golden Gloves sectional tourney last winter. He was three pounds over the middleweight limit, so had to give away weight and spar among the light heavies. He lost in the finals. Since then he has taken off weight until he now tops the scales around 160. At an amateur show recently he obtained a close decision over Charley Neigo. That accounts for his presence in this training camp.

So here's a fellow who gave up a possible college career for amateur boxing. Naturally The Wake asked him his reasons and ambitions. Connell said:

"Of course I love boxing. I didn't care for college and it's a pretty hard struggle financially when you're trying to earn part of your way."

"Then you expect to turn professional?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"When?" we asked.

"That depends. If I should make this team and then should win against Germany, I'd do so right away."

"Suppose you didn't make the team, or if you made the team and lost to a German, would you give up the idea of turning pro?"

"Not yet. I'd think I had not enough big tourney experience. I'd stay amateur until I did accomplish something."

"Wouldn't you get experience faster as a pro?"

"I don't think so. There are many good amateurs since the Golden Gloves tourneys were inaugurated and there always are chances to box. There are comparatively few professional shows. If you win in the Golden Gloves events, you get a reputation and command better purses as a pro because you are something of a drawing card. You have to be known to get on any regular card."

"Pugilism is a hard game. Few get to the top and make big money, while there are many who just make a living for the best physical years of their life, without really getting anywhere and end as mediocre has-beens," we remonstrated.

"I've thought of that, too," replied Connell. "I want to earn my chance in the amateur ranks, then become a professional. After I've had experience and tried it for a time, I think I'd have sense enough to quit and go into some other profession if it didn't look as if I could advance any farther. Any one fellow is a long shot at becoming champion, but some one has to be champion. Naturally every fellow thinks he may be the one. Any one who doesn't think so hasn't a fighting heart and doesn't belong in the ring."

So, friends of Chicagoland boxers, that's the viewpoint of one amateur, a boy of more than average intelligence, toward pugilism, both as an amusement and as a profession.

Indians' Rally in Ninth Beats Macks, 7 to 6

Philadelphia, Pa., July 12.—(AP)—A two run rally in the ninth inning enabled the Cleveland Indians to win their third straight game from the Philadelphia Athletics, 7 to 6, today.

A home run by Eddie Morgan and successive doubles by Sewell and Cissell gave the Redskins their two tallies in the final round.

Lefty Grove, making his second start since he returned to duty, was pommeled for 18 hits in suffering his second straight defeat. Six of the hits made off the southpaw star were two baggers.

Two doubles and a pass gave Cleveland a score in the first inning, but Simmons' 19th home run of the season with Cochrane on base put the A's ahead. The second inning found Grove still off his usual form and four solid swats put three more Indians over the plate.

Cleveland added another in the third, but the A's came back in the fourth to put over two tallies and scored two more in the fifth.

YANKS WHIP BROWNS, 4-2.

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—Airtight pitching by Charley Ruffing and a home run in the sixth from Ben Chapman's bat with one on base allowed the Yankees to defeat the St. Louis Browns today, 4 to 2.

The Yankees were held to five hits by Wally Stewart, but a pass to Ruth, a single by Lazzeri and Chapman's home run brought in three runs in one inning. Ruth, who walked four times, scored the final run in the ninth, crossing the plate on Stewart's balk. Ruth was credited with no times at bat, but scored two runs in the game. The Browns got only one hit an inning off Ruffing.

Hack Wilson and Brooklyn Open Cub Series Today

Hack Wilson and his Brooklyn brethern will open a four game series here this afternoon, probably pretty sore about the way Pittsburgh has been kicking them around. On the other hand the Braves are in Pittsburgh, pretty sore about the way the Cubs kicked them around.

The Cubs have won six games out of nine in the season's competition with the third place Braves for a percentage of .667, which is quite a little better than their showing against the entire National league, including the Braves. Their percentage against the seven other teams in their circuit is .551.

The special ladies' day yesterday was due to a big overflow of applications for last Friday's regular crash.

Monday's announcement that a double header will be played next Sunday with the New York Giants caused a great burst of speed in the Cub counting room yesterday.

Dr. Andy Lotshaw, the Cub trainer, is being congratulated on the condition of the Cub pitchers. In six games out of seven the starting pitcher has finished and Dr. Andy attributes the great showing to the magic of his lotions. At any rate the doctor has been so busy that he had a dentist come to the rubbing room to pull an ulcerated tooth so that he, Dr. Lotshaw, would miss a minimum of pats on high priced muscle.

Pitcher Plant Has Technique of the Borgias

BY BOB BECKER.

When vacationists go north at this time of year and leave the beaten paths near lakes and streams in the vacation country, they may see a plant that plays traitor to many fluttering insects. This insect killing bit of vegetation is the pitcher plant, an occupant of sphagnum or peat bogs, where their red and green pitchers invite one to stop to inspect their catches.

The next time you get into the north woods it will pay you to hike through a bog and make acquaintance with the pitcher plant, a curious flowering plant which catches and digests insects. It has hollow, trumpet shaped leaves which hold water. Usually we have found them at least partially full of rain water. The pitchers are from 4 to 7 or 8 inches long, green, with dark red veins.

How Killer Disposes of Victims.

Last summer we inspected more than twenty of these insectivorous plants in a Wisconsin bog. We wanted to check on two things: First, the relative growth of stiff hairs on the lip of the pitcher. These hairs spell death to insects which drop on the plant and enter the inside of the pitcher. The hairs bend inward. That is, they point toward the water. Secondly, we wanted to see if we could find any insects that had been trapped recently and were then being digested by the plant.

Here is the way the pitch plant plays the rôle of killer when an insect comes along. It is only natural for the insect to drop on the flaring lip of the pitcher. Then it crawls into the pitcher. Here the insects pass over the stiff hairs which point toward the water. They slide into the liquid and drown eventually. Their decomposing bodies are absorbed by the plant.

Given Many Names.

It is not strange that this insectivorous plant should acquire many names. Some of the more common are: Whippoorwill's shoes, side saddle flower, Adam's pitcher, fever cup, and huntsman's horn. The plant is found over much of North America, but Chicagoans who want to look for it close to home should go into the sand dune country where the spahgnum from East Chicago to Mineral Springs offer a habitat for this plant. It grows a flower, a nodding flower, which is round and green and maroon in color.

Sox Make Only Eight Errors; Lose, 13 to 12

the ball. Sad Sam then lost control and walked three men in a row, forcing in Cronin and Harris. Before the incident was concluded Bluege ran home on Kuhel's long fly.

My Kingdom for a Cleaver.

If Mr. Jones could have put his hands on a shotgun in the third he undoubtedly would have committed justifiable homicide on a couple of infielders. Manush bunted toward third, and Sullivan took the easy way out by letting it roll. Cronin bounced to the same young man, who fumbled. After Harris had died on a fly, West walked and the bases were filled. Hayes picked up Bluege's tap and tossed perfectly to Appling, who dropped the ball, Manush scoring. Then Sullivan threw out Spencer while Cronin was counting.

Jones grabbed at a chance to provide more protection for himself in the fifth. Two runs were the outcome. Blue led off with a single and moved to third on two infield outs. Jones' single to right scored him. Then Seeds doubled down the right field line and Jones dashed home.

Faber Relieves Jones.

Cronin opened Washington's fifth with a two bagger. Harris fanned, but West doubled and Cronin scored. Bluege was nipped on a fly ball, and when Spencer walked it was accepted as proof that Jones was a tired fellow. Faber came in to pitch to Marberry and would have ended the inning without more damage if Seeds and Appling hadn't tried to catch the same fly ball. It fell for a single and West scored, making the score 9 to 7. The Sox then added two to their lead in the sixth on hits by Sullivan, Blue and Appling.

Faber had a little trouble in the home sixth and more in the seventh. In the sixth Myer beat out a bunt, went to third on Grube's bad throw to catch him off first, and home on a long fly. Two more in the seventh grew out of Spencer's scratch hit, Hayes' wild throw on Marberry's grounder, which should have retired the side scoreless, and Kuhel's single.

LYONS PITCHES TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 12.—In concluding the visit here tomorrow Manager Fonseca will give the Senators a glimpse of the revived Ted Lyons, who a few days ago whitewashed the Athletics. Monte Weaver is scheduled to start for the Senators.

Fonseca either is slipping or has exhausted all possible lineup combinations. He hasn't made any unusual switches in the last five games.

While Jones was batting in the second inning, his former mates on the Washington bench subjected him to a barrage of alleged wit. After Sad Sam had singled and driven two runs home, he turned and tipped his hat in their direction.

The hitting racket was on such a flourishing basis that even Old Folks Faber took a hand. He singled to start the seventh, but Seeds spoiled the chances for run production by grounding to Kuhel for a double play.

Heinie Manush saved himself from a bad day at bat by beating out two bunts. The second of these opened the eighth. Cronin then bounced to Hayes, who drove Manush back toward first and then threw to Blue to retire Cronin. Manush meanwhile resumed his running for second and would have been doubled easily if Appling hadn't muffed Blue's throw.

DUANE SWANSON, WESLEYAN STAR, HURT IN CRASH

De Kalb, Ill., July 12.—[Special.]—Duane Swanson, Illinois Wesleyan basketball center, was confined to the Waterman hospital today as a result of an accident last night.

Swanson, driving a motorcycle, collided with a sedan driven by Ed Baie. Swanson was thrown into the windshield of Baie's car and was badly lacerated about the head.

MALONE RETURNS FOR REVENGE AND BRAVES FALL, 4-3

Singles, Scores Winning Run in Ninth.

Chicagoans in the fourth. Hartnett reached first when his grounder trickled between Urbanski's heels. Hack then slapped his triple, a nice long one which bounced to the wall in left center, Hartnett scoring, of course. Hack ran in while Maranville was throwing out Malone.

So the Cubs were leading, 3 to 0, at the end of the fourth and in their four innings the Boston team had batted exactly .000 off Malone.

In the fifth the Braves decided to end the no-hit business. Leach pushed off with a single and the effort immediately was nullified by a double play. Akers got credit for a single when his grounder took a freak hop and bumped Hack on the chin. Spohrer then fanned for the second time.

That Braves' Sixth.

And now we'll tell you about that Braves' sixth, which seemed so dire when it transpired: Brown singled to center and stopped at second when Maranville singled to right. Urbanski popped to Hartnett, who ran out to the pitcher's box to catch the thing. Berger singled to left and the bases were full when Brown pulled up at third. Worthington then popped one to short left center which either Stephenson or Cuyler could have caught in his teeth, but English hollered loudest and he was told to take, which he didn't do.

The ball fell for a single, scoring Brown and keeping the bases full. Leach then sent a long fly to Cuyler, Maranville scoring and Berger going to third. Shires came up with his second hit of the series, a single to left, which scored Berger with the tying run. Akers was the seventh and last strikeout victim for Malone.

in coming up to the diving position, the force of the water may drive them back and the lady diver may knock herself out.

Max Baer, the California prize fighter, used to pop himself on the chin in his dressing room before his fights, but he did that solely as a matter of training. Mr. Baer said the way to toughen a chin so that it would not notice punches was to punch it constantly, in the home, on the street, in bed, at meals, everywhere.

Only Kids, These Divers.

The high diving show is very bad for the male sense of physical superiority, as there is not one male in a thousand who would be willing to hop off that tower with a parachute and the defensive reflection, "O, well, they are Olympic candidates and they are used to it" is not a legal defense.

They cannot have been Olympic candidates very long because most of them are slim young kids and a deduction of five or six years would set them back to a condition of rompers and all day suckers. And they all had to get used to it, in the first place, themselves. The little one, Catherine Rawls of Miami Beach, is only 14 now.

But chivalry is not dead. As the Fauntz girls of Chicago, Ruth and Jane, were poising on the edge of the scaffold today, our Olympic official forgot himself for a moment.

"Hey, ladies," he yelled. "For heaven's sake don't jump. The fire engines are on the way."

ASK EXTRA DAY FOR FUTURE U. S. OPEN GOLF PLAY

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—A suggestion that the United States open golf championship tournament be lengthened from three days to four is being considered by the United States Golf association, it was announced today. The annual meet has been run three days since 1898.

The suggestion, made by Charles W. Hall, Birmingham, Ala., to H. H. Ramsay, president of the U. S. G. Other important tournaments, including the Western open and Canadian open, also are run on a three day basis with the final two rounds on the last day.

OUTLINE PLANS TO REFINANCE $944,000 BONDS

Fourteen Issues Will Be Reorganized.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization plans for fourteen more defaulted bond issues underwritten by the Home Mortgage and Investment company, having a total first mortgage indebtedness of $944,000, have been submitted to the bondholders by the bondholders' protective committee, of which J. Arthur Friedlund is secretary. These range in size from $18,000 to $190,000, and the committee is applying its liquidation trust to each. With the announcement of these fourteen the committee has submitted reorganization plans on fifty issues, totaling $4,242,500.

J. ARTHUR FRIEDLUND. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

"While all of the details pertaining to reorganizations have not been completed on all of the issues, a number of them have been successfully worked out and the committee is proceeding as quickly as possible to complete all details pertaining to the plans of reorganization," said Mr. Friedlund. "In the larger issues the trustee will hold title to the property and will operate it under the direction of trust managers, while in the small cases the trustee will operate the property without trust managers.

Will Acquire Title.

"In all cases the committee intends to acquire title to the property for the bondholders, either before or after the master's sale, and it'll then complete the reorganization. All net income from the property will go to the certificate holders, in proportion to the amount of the bonds held by them, until conditions improve, and the properties then held by the trustee may be mortgaged or sold at a fair price and a more substantial cash distribution made.

"Next Friday, July 15, is the day set by the committee for the consent deposit of the bonds in these issues. All bondholders who desire to join in taking over these properties should deposit their bonds with the Chicago Title and Trust company, as depositary; otherwise, they'll only receive their proportionate share of what is bid for the property, less the costs and expense of the foreclosure proceedings."

Osgood Building.

Following are the fourteen issues now being reorganized: The Osgood building, 3084 Milwaukee avenue, containing two store and a loft. The original issue was $35,000; now $30,000. Howard K. Hurwith, receiver, reports 100 per cent occupancy on April 30, 1932, with a monthly income of $117.

Orner building, southwest corner Troy and Argyle; eighteen flats; original issue $55,000, now $53,500; Metropolitan Trust company, reciver, reports 75 per cent occupancy Feb. 2; monthly income, $475; cash on hand, $309.

Harry Brown building, 1225 North Ashland; stores and offices; original issue $135,000; Metropolitan Trust company, receiver, reports 25 per cent occupancy May 21; monthly income, $200; cash on hand, $63.

RAILWAY CHIEFS SOON TO REPORT REVIVAL PLANS

May Act in the East Next Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Plans for reforms within and without the railroad industry will be laid before the advisory committee and the general membership of the Association of Railway Executives at meetings to be held here next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The twofold plan will provide for a declaration of policy in respect to regulation of competitive forms of transportation and for enunciation of means for improving management and operation.

The general meeting will be held on Wednesday following a meeting of the advisory committee on the preceding day. The fact that a general meeting has been called was accepted as indicating that a committee of three railroad presidents recently nominated by R. H. Aishton, chairman of the association, to draw up a report on the two problems for which the executives seek solutions, would be prepared to make that report next week.

Composed of Rail Chiefs.

The committee nominated by Mr. Aishton comprises Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, chairman; J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, and Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific. Until recently, Mr. Willard had not indicated publicly that he would accept the position. Calling of the general meeting next week, however, indicates that the committee has organized.

It is believed that in respect to managerial reforms the committee may suggest the appointment of a permanent body to aid in enforcing the recommendations made in the report. This would be the nearest the report would come to the idea of a "czar."

The western lines have agreed in principle to the appointment of a commissioner to adjudicate on rates and other subjects in their region, but the eastern railroads have until now contended that existing committees could be utilized for that object.

Would Guard Rate Structures.

Last week the presidents of the railroads east of the Mississippi river and north of the Potomac organized as a committee to prevent disorganization of rate structures by minorities among the carriers.

In the past such problems have been considered by the presidents only informally, but now they will fall within the jurisdiction of a permanent group. The coming report may call for further moves along this line to apply to such subjects as pooling of excess services, reform of purchasing methods, and cooperative research into improvements for all departments.

It is believed the report to be made next week will contain some suggestion, not only concerning remedial legislation the railroads seek, but also means for attracting public support for it.

To Cut Working Week.

The New York Central is putting into effect a plan for reducing the days of work of 14,000 clerical employés. That was disclosed today. The five day week will be offered wherever possible to unorganized employés as an alternative to a 13 per cent reduction in working forces. The organized clerical employés elected to hold to their agreement with the company for a guarantee of a six day week. In consequence, reduction in labor costs in that direction will be accomplished by layoffs.

John A. Robertson, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, informed John C. Walber, vice president of the New York Central, of the decision of the union membership not to accept the five day week proposals. The brotherhood had proposed as an alternative a five day week at five and one-half days' pay.

St. Louis Operating Center for American Airways, Inc.

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Centralization of operations of American Airways, Inc., in St. Louis will be effective July 15. That was announced tonight by offices of Aviation corporation, holding company for the air line will remain in New York. "Divisional offices of American Airways at Dallas and ST. Louis will be eliminated," the announcement said, "but operations of Southern Transcontinental will continue to be directed from Fort Worth. There executive offices and machine overhaul shops will be located."

C. R. Smith becomes vice president in charge of operations, and F. Warren Oakes becomes vice president in charge of traffic.

DOAK CITES PEACE IN INDUSTRY DURING BUSINESS READJUSTING

Silver Bay, N. Y., July 12.—(AP)—The current business cycle, Secretary of Labor Doak told the conference of smaller industries today, has brought employé and employers to common ground with an almost total absence of strikes, lockouts, and disorders.

The labor secretary's message was read at the second day of the meeting here of executives of small concerns representing more than half of the industry of the country.

"Peace in industry," said Doak, "is the thing most greatly to be desired. Let me say that despite the depression and loss of employment in many places, the period through which we have been passing has been marked by an almost total absence of strikes, lockouts and disorders. It is a remarkable record."

Credit Group Named for All Reserve Zones

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—Appointment of a national committee to deal with trade acceptances pursuant to the recommendation of the banking and industrial committee of this federal reserve district on June 27 was announced today.

The committee, whose chairman is E. W. Shepard, treasurer of the Graybar Electric Company, Inc., includes the following representatives in the twelve federal reserve districts:

NEW YORK—Robert H. Treman, chairman Tompkins County National bank, Ithaca.

PHILADELPHIA—Charles P. Blinn Jr., vice president Philadelphia National bank, Philadelphia.

ATLANTA—H. Lane Young, vice president Citizens and Southern National bank, Atlanta; Rudolph S. Hecht, president Hibernian Bank and Trust company, New Orleans.

CHICAGO—Craig B. Hazlewood, vice president First National bank, Chicago.

ST. LOUIS—W. F. Gephart, vice president First National bank, St. Louis.

DALLAS—W. H. Patrick, president First National bank, Clarendon.

SAN FRANCISCO—F. L. Lipman, president Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust company, San Francisco; George W. Wallace, vice president Security First National bank, Los Angeles.

The plan of campaign as outlined by the national or central committee contemplates the appointment of a representative trade acceptance committee in each of the twelve federal reserve districts. These committees are to coöperate with industrial concerns desiring to inaugurate the trade acceptance method in settlement of outgoing shipments and with banks seeking light on the most approved methods of discounting trade bills presented to them by customers.

NEW YORK PLANS $25,000,000 IN NEW BOND ISSUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—New York state, which has done no long term financing since Sept. 15, 1931, when it borrowed $40,000,000 at the record low rate of 3.2289 per cent, is expected to consider plans shortly for the offering at a later date upwards of $25,000,000 bonds. It is understood that Controller Morris S. Tremaine will do no further short term financing this year but will sell long term bonds.

Sentiment in municipal bond circles today was to the effect that the state could readily market such obligations at any time in view of the fact that the open market is practically bare of offerings of New York state bonds.

The state has an authorization of $20,000,000 for emergency construction, bonds for which must be sold this year or the authorization automatically lapses. The present market for long term state bonds is nominally quoted at about a 3.60 to 3.65 per cent basis, so that a new issue, according to dealers, could presumably be sold with a coupon of not more than 4 per cent.

In January Controller Tremaine allotted an issue of $25,000,000 of 4½ per cent notes, due May 1, 1932, and on March 31 an issue of $50,000,000 3¾ per cent notes, due Jan. 15, 1933, was allotted.

Soviet Purchases in U. S. Reported as 86% Lower

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Amtorg Trading corporation, commercial agent for the Russian Soviet union, reports that its purchases in the United States in the first half of 1932 totaled $5,549,000, against $40,593,000 over the same period of 1931, a decline of 86 per cent. The corporation said the shrinkage was due partly to lack of credit facilities here comparable to those available in Europe. Soviet buying in Germany increased and new long term credits in England, it was said, had stimulated Russian purchases there in the last few months.

Nation's Monetary Gold Stock Gains $2,698,400

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The daily statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank today recorded a net gain of $2,698,400 in the nation's monetary gold stocks. There was a net decrease of $1,701,100 in gold held under earmark for foreign account and an import of $997,300 from Canada. There were no exports.

HUFF REVEALS PLAN TO REPAY FEDERAL LOANS

Grain Corp. to Take 10 Years for Job.

The 16 million dollar indebtedness of the Farmers National Grain corporation, owed to the federal farm board, its sponsor, is to be liquidated in a ten year system of payments agreed upon yesterday by the farm board and the grain corporation. That was announced last night by C. E. Huff, president of the grain coöperative.

Twenty-eight regional and state grain coöperatives represent the stockholders in the national coöperative which was organized in July, 1929, under the provisions of the federal marketing act which also led to forming the federal farm board.

Borrowed capital and loans obtained by the grain corporation from the farm board were $16,295,393.58 on March 31, the grain corporation reports. The terms of the new financial arrangement provide for reducing this to an amount not to exceed $16,000,000 by Nov. 30 of this year and to make specified payments May 31 of each year.

This plan would clear off the debt in 1942.

Total Capital 20 Millions.

An indication of the profits of the grain corporation were evident in the statement of Mr. Huff, who said that "the orderly liquidation made possible by the funding agreement enables the Farmers National Grain corporation to make use of both its borrowed and earned capital, totaling approximately $20,000,000."

Interests of the farm board, he reported, are protected by notes of the corporation secured by elevator and other grain handling properties owned by the corporation or its subsidiaries, common and preferred stock owned in subsidiaries owning property and collateral due from member cooperatives.

"The plan of liquidation is such as to make possible the repayment of indebtedness to the federal farm board out of the corporation's earnings over the period covered by the agreement," Mr. Huff said in connection with the arrangements, which he indicated were the outgrowth of negotiations in the last few months.

Livermore Denies Rumors.

Jesse L. Livermore, grain and stock operator, denied yesterday rumors that he had become associated with the farm board in the handling of crop surpluses.

"I never have been and never will be," he said. "My chief interest always is in free, open competitive markets which permit commodities to express their true values."

Sears Community Bank Elects 2 New Directors

The board of directors of the Sears Community State bank yesterday elected J. M. Barker, vice president of Sears Roebuck & Co., and William F. Chiniquay, president of William F. Chiniquay & Co., to membership. Mr. Barger, who is vice president in retail administration of the mail order company, at one time was associated with the First National bank of Boston. The Sears bank reports that its deposits show an increase of $880,444 for the year ending with the bank call of June 30.

Canadian National Gross for Week Shows Decline

MONTREAL, July 12.—(AP)—Gross revenues of the Canadian National railways for the week ending July 7 were $2,564,837, as compared with $3,194,915 for the corresponding period in 1931, it was announced today.

"There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section."

CHILE REFUSES TO SIGN ACCORD ON NITRATES

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 12.—(AP)—Because synthetic nitrate producers are trying to reduce Chile's sales quota Finance Minister Enrique Zanartu sent a cable today to Chilean representatives at negotiations now going on in Europe, instructing them to refuse to sign the projected accord.

The finance minister warned the synthetic producers that unless a better quota can be arranged Chile will start dumping her large reserve stock of natural nitrates abroad.

A meeting of nitrate producers for the purpose of reviving the old cartel was scheduled for yesterday in London. Dispatches Monday said the Chilean ambassador to Great Britain would participate in the meeting.

SECURITY

In fifty years there has been no failure of a mutual life insurance company.
Annuities offered by an old line company, with assets of over two hundred million dollars, are an ideal investment for persons seeking security with maximum income.
They are issued to men or women at ages 40 to 85, and yield from 6% to 25%, depending on age.
For example: On a male life, age 65, an annuity of $1,000 yearly for life may be purchased for $9,760—a return of over 10%.
Younger persons, in anticipation of retirement age, may purchase annuities commencing at a later age by payments extending over a term of years.

OLD FASHIONED HARD WORK SEEN CURE FOR SLUMP

Depression Used to Alibi Failures.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Supicious that the depression has been used to cover a multitude of deficiencies for which it is not entirely responsible, manufacturers and dealers have begun to wonder whether sales volume may not be stimulated by a little old fashioned hard work and tenacity.

Here, for instance, is the story of one large automobile manufacturer:

Three men were sent out to discover the reason for the slump in sales of what had been a highly popular line of cars. One was an official of the automobile company. The other two were representatives of an advertising concern handling the account.

They went to the company's dealers with a story something like this:

"We don't want to interfere with your business, and we don't pretend to be great salesmen, but we have a few ideas and with your coöperation we'd like to try them out."

List Possible Buyers.

The investigators spent several weeks building up lists of prospective buyers, interviewing and clinching sales. Dealers also curious to know what had happened to buyers lent their full support.

The investigation disclosed that, whereas in 1929 it was necessary to work on 21 qualified prospects to make one sale, this year sales are made on the average of one to each 67 qualified prospects.

Encouraged to discover that sales could be stepped up by expending more effort, dealers bore down on their sales forces and most of them increased their sales.

"We found," says one of the investigators, "that the fundamental principles of selling haven't changed. The old methods still work. It's a lot harder to sell now, but goods can be moved if the salesmen will shake off their lethargy. The trouble is that too many people are licked before they start."

Increase Their Efforts.

This man's story is not unique. With increasing frequency qualified observers are expressing the opinion that many manufacturers, distributors and salesmen are trying to meet increased sales resistance with decreased sales effort.

A resident of a north shore community reports that he telephoned two separate agencies saying that he might be in the market for an electric refrigerator. One sent no salesman to call. The other telephoned three weeks later, apologizing for the delay, which was explained by saying that the memorandum had been lost.

Another suburbanite who last week bought a new automobile says he had a car of different make in mind, but that when he called to see it the model he was interested in was not in stock and the salesman made no effort to take him where he might see it.

When sales fall off, companies attempt to reduce their expenses to keep them in line with lower income. Sales forces are cut down to a point where it is impossible for the salesmen who are left to cover the whole field in the intensive way necessary to develop business at present. It is a vicious circle.

The most encouraging thing is that concerns like the automobile manufacturer mentioned above are beginning to discover that if they want to get business they have got to go out and develop it.

A manufacturer who formerly did a good business in pumps and pumping equipment and who saw that source of income dry up with the sharp decline in new building construction, the other day started making air conditioning equipment and apparatus for sewage treatment plants and reports a good volume of sales.

'LIVE STOCK ADVANCE BOOSTS NEBRASKA PRODUCTS $37,000,000'

Omaha, Neb., July 12.—(AP)—Substantial gains in the price of cattle and hogs are being received with increasing interest throughout the agricultural belt.

Market observers estimated the rise of the last two weeks, had hoisted by more than 37 million dollars the value of cattle and hogs on Nebraska farms. Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington railroad, asserted today "no other thing that has happened since the depression began has heartened me so much as the continued rise in live stock prices."

"Unquestionably the rise in commodity prices," he added, "would be the surest way out of the depression. It forms such a sound foundation. If commodity prices go up then the purchasing power of the farmer will be restored. After all, the rest of the country cannot be restored until the farmer has purchasing power."

Dr. Stephen I. Miller of New York, director of economics for R. G. Dun & Co., who with Mr. Budd was a luncheon guest of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce," estimated the recent live stock market upturn probably has added 75 million dollars to the value of farm holdings.

BOND PURCHASE POOL REQUESTS FIRST PAYMENTS

New York, July 12.—(AP)—The $100,000,000 Morgan sponsored American Securities Investing corporation, which was formed several weeks ago for the purpose of investing in premier securities, today issued its first call for payment on the subscriptions of its members. The call is for an initial payment of $10,000,000, or 10 per cent of the total subscribed by the member institutions.

Prior to today's call, it had been explained that the so-called bond pool would buy bonds against open credits, and would not call upon its participants to provide cash to cover these purchases until a substantial amount of bonds had been acquired.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—The stock market looked all wilted down at the close of trading today. Efforts to extend the rally which got under way yesterday afternoon petered out early in the session and the list spent the remainder of the day idly backing and filling.

Traders could find nothing much in the news by which to steer a course and with what pools are supposed to be still in the picture folded up for the summer, apparently there wasn't a thing to stir up interest anywhere. Hopes were expressed that congress would soon bow itself out of the scenery, but the day's dispatches from the nation's capital brought no indication that the lawmakers are in any hurry about prying themselves loose from the job.

Price Swings Narrow.

Outside of a dozen or so preferred stocks in which the market has worn very thin, and one or two specialties, price swings of the day were as narrow as they were meaningless. Auburn, which preëmpted the spotlight yesterday by its sharp advance, was more docile today. It idled along with the rest of the market for the most part, drifting gradually lower and finished showing a net loss of nearly 6 points. Such dignitaries as American Telephone, United States Steel, American Can, Eastman Kodak, Consolidated Gas and the like were heavy footed and kept to the background.

Among the preferred stock performances to attract mild attention were those of American Ice. Bush Terminal, National Lead, and General Baking, in which the losses ran as high as 5 points or more. American Sugar, Atlas Powder, Bangor and Aroostook, Century Ribbon, Commonwealth and Southern, Du Pont, United Air Craft, North American and Shell Union preferred on the other hand were stronger.

A 50 Point Drop.

A minor feature was Laclede Gas preferred which appeared on the tape for the first time this year. Ten shares of this "inactive" issue changed hands at $40 a share which represented a drop of 50 points from its last previous sale. The company is controlled by the Utilities Power and Light.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 7,000; hogs, 14,000; sheep, 7,000.

Cattle took the center of the stage in yesterday's performance of the markets by going up to new high levels, while all other live stock suffered reactions. Hogs came down 10 @15c, ending one of the longest uninterrupted advances on record. Yesterday's setback was the first real weakness the hog market has experienced for 34 days.

October Top $11.00.

It was not until Aug. 11 that top cattle reached $9.60 in 1931, but after that date there was a steeper rise, and the following week saw $10.35 cattle. Eleven dollar steers appeared late in October, and a month later the top jumped to $13.00. Until recently the medium and commoner grades of steers had fared best on the upturn, but buying orders now are swinging rapidly to the top classes, and these show the biggest advances since last week's close.

Weighty beeves are still in the lead, with all leading buyers hot after the 1,200@1,500 lb averages that are selling at $9.00 and above. Bulk of steers sold at $7.50@9.25, only occasional small lots of the poorest grades going below $6.50. Butcher stock ruled strong to 25c higher, yearling heifers reaching a top of $8.50, highest of the year. Calves advanced 25c more.

Margins of $4.00.

In the last few days some of the biggest margins in recent years have been reported by farmers selling cattle at Chicago. Frequently gains of $4.00 per cwt or initial costs of feeders are quoted. E. D. Noller, Keokuk county, Ia., sold 1,441 lb cattle at $9.40 that made an average gain of 600 lbs in weight in 9 months and brought more than $4.00 above the feeder cost. Raber Radke, Lake county, Ill., reported a margin of $4.30 on his $8.30 cattle bought in October. George Heitshusen, Iowa county, Ia., kept his cattle on feed only four months and sold at $9.10 this week.

Armour, Swift, and Wilson were aggressive buyers on the break in hogs, but enough was available to lower the general average 10c to $4.90 and bring the top down 15c to $5.40. Weakness in the wholesale market for fresh pork curbed buying by smaller interests and about 6,000 were left at the close, but only a light run of 14,000 is estimated for today. Packing grades of hogs and extremely heavy butchers showed most decline, with 500 lb packers at $3.75 and 500 lb butchers at $4.10.

Bulk of total receipts sold within a range of $4.50@5.30, all interests paying up to $5.35 for best light, while numerous sales were made at $5.40. The government report on the pig survey is bullish. It shows a 7 per cent decrease in the spring crop. The movement of these pigs does not start until October.

Lambs Break 25c.

Available supplies of lambs were beyond requirements of the trade and prices ruled weak to 25c lower in face of cheerful reports from the wholesale trade for dressed carcasses. Dressed lamb is selling at the highest prices since last summer, carcasses at 11@20c comparing with a range of 7@12c at the low time last December. Fifteen carloads of western range lambs went over the scales at $6.50 and below, while only odd lots of hand picked natives to city butchers brought $6.75@7.50.

Receipts at Chicago for today were estimated at 7,000 cattle, 14,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep, against 7,464 cattle, 12,829 hogs and 5,704 sheep the previous Wednesday, and 10,565 cattle, 12,858 hogs, and 17,050 sheep a year ago.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil was easier under increased liquidation and commission house selling promoted by the easiness of lard, hogs and cotton, and the more favorable weather for the cotton crop. Final prices showed net losses of 10 to 19 points. The bullish census report showing consumption in June of 260,169 bris, against 222,584 in May and 218,588 in June last year was ignored. The visible decrease to 2,046,500 bris against 2,252,000 a month ago was also ignored. Sales were 10 contracts or 1,500 bris. Crude oil was nominal in Texas, with sales at 3¼c in the southeast and the valley. Bleachable spot closed 3.80c; July, 3.90c; Sept., 4.10c; Oct., 4.10c; Dec., 4.14c.

WHEAT PRICES LOWER IN WORLD GRAIN MARKETS

U. S. and Canadian Data Called Bearish.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A bearish crop report on wheat from the United States department of agriculture, combined with a similar one from the Canadian government, with extreme weakness in foreign markets, had a depressing influence yesterday. Prices moved irregularly lower in practically every important market in the world. They closed around the lowest of the day, well toward the lowest of the season.

There were net losses of 1@1¼c on wheat in Chicago, with Kansas City off 1c and Winnipeg ⅝@½c. Liverpool has been on the down grade for several days and lost 1⅝@2¼c for the day, after opening 1@1¼c lower. Berlin closed weak, ⅞@3⅜c lower, and Buenos Aires also had a sharp decline.

A good deal of attention was given to the spring wheat crop in the American and Canadian northwest, and to the liberal primary movement. Lack of export business also was a factor. The Canadian government report, with a condition of 99 for spring wheat, was determined by a Chicago crop expert as indicating 455,000,000 bu for the three western provinces, compared with 284,000,000 bu harvested last year.

The American spring wheat was 305,000,000 bu, against 104,000,000 bu last year. The winter wheat production was also better than expected.

European News Bearish.

European news on the whole was bearish on crops, especially from the countries having exportable surplus. Australian crop prospects are said to be the best in many years. There was a good movement of wheat in the southwest, twelve principal points having 1,620 cars, although they were materially under last year's, when the receipts were 4,013 cars.

At the opening, Chicago was off over 1c a bu from the previous day's close, and the finish was with July 46⅝@46½c for old style and 46¼c for new. September old, 48⅞@49c, and December, 52¼@52⅝c.

Bradstreet's world's available supply of wheat decreased 7,600,000 bu for the week, with the total 354,000,000 bu, or 24,000,000 bu less than last year.

Hedging sales from the southwest was a feature all day. Canadian operators were said to be selling in their market and buying in Chicago, while a leading Minneapolis cash house was selling in the northwest and buying in Chicago.

Corn Action Stubborn.

Despite the bearishness of the government crop report on corn, although the estimated production was below the popular expectation, corn showed resistance to selling early, but the weakness in wheat gradually had its influence, and the close was ⅛c higher on July and ¼c lower on the more deferred deliveries. A feature was the weakness in December, which dropped from a slight premium to a discount under September, the first time this season, the last sales being at 31⅝@31¾c, with September 31⅝@31¾c, and July, 29¾c. Cash business was only fair.

Oats declined to new lows for the season, with liquidation and scattered selling by all classes of traders, while there was buying by cash interests on the break. The close was at losses of ¼@½c, July and September being 19½c and December 21¼c. Iowa reported cutting of a new crop had commenced. Rye was weak, ⅞@⅝c lower, with July 28½c and December 34¾c.

Western Union Telegraph Net $16,942 in Half Year

New York, July 12.—(AP)—Western Union Telegraph company report for the six months ended June 30 net income of $16,942 after interest, depreciation, rent of leased lines, and all other charges, compared with $4,382,765 in the first six months of 1931.

For the first quarter of this year the company reported net income of $83,428, which apparently was reduced by a loss during the second quarter, making the net for the first half only $16,942.

GRAIN LEADER RESENTS USE OF U. S. MONEY TO AID FOREIGN NATIONS

Thomas Y. Wickham, a director of the Chicago Board of Trade, has been named to head the grain committee on national affairs for the ensuing year, following a conference of representatives of the leading grain exchanges of the country. He succeeds Siebel C. Harris, retiring chairman.

E. J. Grimes of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce was elected vice chairman of the national committee. Serving with him and Mr Wickham will be E. B. Black, Buffalo Corn exchange; C. D. Sturtevant, Omaha Grain exchange; G. H. Davis, Kansas City Board of Trade, and E. F. Rosenbaum and Mr. Harris, Chicago Board of Trade.

The committee, Chairman Wickham stated, objects to the policy of using this nation's funds for the relief of other than Americans and added:

"We protest against the Reconstruction Finance corporation financing any commodities for export on credit, as provided in the Wagner bill, now before congress.

"Raw commodities have always been sold for export for cash only, and to introduce the element of credit is entirely unnecessary and will establish a precedent that will ruin the export trade of this country for years to come. No other nation sells export commodities on credit and this country does not need any more foreign notes to be repudiated.

"Commodities for export can be sold at the market for cash at all times. Any relief for the agricultural interests should be made directly from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. With millions of Americans unemployed, hungry and unclothed, funds of American taxpayers should be devoted to the relief of Americans, not the people of other nations."
